Building boom tapers off

No single-family homes built in village in 1973-74

by LYNN ASINOF

Single-family home construction disappeared from Wheeling during the 1973-74 fiscal year as the recent building boom tapered off, according to year-end village building statistics.

The number of single-family homes built in the village has steadily declined in recent years, dropping from 22 in 1970-71 to 21 in 1971-72 to three in 1972-73. During the past fiscal year, no single-family homes were built in Wheeling.

At the same time, the total amount of growth in the village also dropped from an estimated value of slightly higher than $19 million in 1972-73 to about $14 million in 1973-74. These figures show a leveling off of the recent village building boom that brought numerous apartments, condominiums and townhouses to Wheeling.

THIS LEVELING off is most apparent in the decline of multiple-family living units built in the village during the past fiscal year. Only 451 townhouses, condominiums and apartment units were added to the village in 1973-74, estimated at a value of $7 million.

In 1972-73, more than 1,600 units were added in Wheeling, and the year before 1,332 units were built. This building was valued at about $15 million in 1972-73 and about $14 million the year before.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he is not surprised by the disappearance of single-family home construction during the past year. Noting the cost of land and improvements, Passolt said it would cost between $65,000 and $90,000 to build a single-family home in Wheeling.

"Developers just don't feel there is a market for it," Passolt said, noting that families are not willing to pay that price for a home in Wheeling.

The manager said he expects small single-family projects to be proposed from time to time, but does not expect any major tracts of land to be developed for individual homes.

"A few individual lots, I think that is where you are going to find the single-family from here on in," Passolt said. He said one developer already approached him about building about 10 single-family homes in the village.

PASSOLT SAID HE has tried to encourage single-family development by suggesting it to companies proposing projects in the village. He said he also encourages developers to build townhouses rather than apartments, because of the local residents' preference for this type of housing.

In both cases, Passolt said developers often tell him such projects are "just too expensive."

"The single-family home is rapidly becoming a thing of the past," the manager said. "There are a lot of communities that are primarily single-family that have had apartments and condominiums going up with regularity. I think single-family living now is going to go into townhouses, at least until the money market changes."

By comparison, the amount of money spent on residential remodeling in the village nearly doubled in the past year. In 1972-73, residents spent about $138,000 to remodel their homes, while in 1973-74 that amount reached $269,533.

PASSOLT SAID THIS remodeling may reflect the increasing cost of single-family housing as compared to improvements made to existing homes.

Citing his own experience, Passolt said it is now less expensive to add rooms onto older houses than it is to find a larger house.

The only area of increasing growth in village building is in the industrial and commercial classification. During the past year, 11 industrial and eight commercial buildings were constructed in Wheeling. In 1972-73, the figure was 10 industrial and six commercial, while in 1971-72 only three commercial and five industrial plants were built.

Passolt said this growth is a result of the increasing population, with more and more people attracted to Wheeling by the apartments, condominiums and townhouse developments.

"The increase in population, I think, is a significant part of the increase in industrial," Passolt said, noting the need for manpower. "We've had several industrial parks that are developed, and from what I've read there does seem to be a trend for industry to move out to the suburbs."

IN THE PAST FOUR years, Wheeling has grown from a population of 14,799 to an estimated 22,000. Village officials believe the population will reach 30,000 in the next two years.

Future industrial and commercial growth is expected because of the increased population and because much of the vacant land in the village is zoned for industry.

WHEELING RESIDENTS can expect to continue seeing new multiple-family construction similar to these townhouses, despite a decrease in the number of townhouse, apartment and condominium units built last year. No single-family homes, however, were built in the village in 1973-74 and the trend may continue.

Park hires women's rec supervisor

Wheeling Park District residents can expect an increasing emphasis on arts and crafts and women's and girls' recreation in park activities.

Park Supt. Dave Phillips said the district has hired Sue Cristao of Northlake as recreation supervisor to oversee these programs. The job is on a part-time basis until the new budget is approved and the supervisor position is officially created.

Phillips said the expansion in personnel will allow the district "to consolidate some of our part-time hours and broaden our recreation into areas we haven't been able to get into."

Those areas, according to Phillips, include arts and crafts programs and women's and girls' recreation and athletics.

"We really haven't tried to get into those areas because we really didn't have the personnel to handle it properly," Phillips said.

The new recreation supervisor majored in park and recreation leadership in college, and Phillips said she is particularly well suited to handle these areas.

The park district is beginning a general expansion in all areas designed to provide better service and more comprehensive programs for a growing community. The expansion is being made possible by the fact that the district nearly has eliminated its deficit spending, and thus has more money to spend.

The proposed 1974-75 park budget shows substantial increases in park staff and equipment, in addition to a growth in the recreational program. Phillips said the district is trying to expand as a unit, without one area growing faster than any other.

PHIA endorses June park referendum

by TOM VON MALDER

The June 4 $1.1 million Prospect Heights Park District referendum is endorsed by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

"On the over-all balance, we felt it was a good proposal," said PHIA member Richard Wolf of the referendum proposal. He added that some PHIA members disagreed on some of the individual proposed park improvements.

The PHIA's endorsement came after members of the group attended Tuesday night's park district information meeting on the referendum. Primarily, the referendum, which would cost an estimated $18 a year for 16 years for each $10,800 assessed valuation, will provide funds to renovate the Lions Park pool, build an adjacent community center/sports complex and make other park improvements throughout the park district.

WOLF SAID THE park district's plans "show good foresight for the future of our area" and will benefit the whole community and "not just a few individuals." He said that strong community interest has been shown in the additional Little League baseball fields, tennis courts and new handball courts.

The PHIA support might also mean helping out the park district with informational coffees.

Several weeks ago a committee of the PHIA, the Environmental Action Force, decided to circulate petitions calling for opposition to the park district referendum unless it included money to aid in the public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course. These petitions stopped circulating several days before the endorsement was made.

In response to the petitions' circulation and talks with PHIA members, the park board added an opinion question to its referendum which asks voters if they would want another referendum at a later date to raise funds to help pay for Rob Roy. The referendum does not include any money for the Euclid Avenue golf course, which is the subject of current apartment zoning requests in Mount Prospect.

WOLF SAID THE PHIA was "very pleased" with the addition of the Rob

Hearing to set vote date continued

The hearing to establish an election date for a referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation was continued Wednesday until June 6. Attorneys for and against incorporation met in a lengthy afternoon session in the judge's chambers in an apparent attempt to begin negotiations that could lead to a resolution without further court testimony.

The June 6 date apparently was set to inform Cook County Circuit Court Judge

Harry G. Comerford of the progress of the negotiations. Neither Donald Kreger, attorney for the incorporation-sponsoring Prospect Heights Improvement Association, nor Jack Siegel, attorney for objecting Arlington Heights, could be reached for comment after the meeting in the judge's chambers.

Roy opinion question to the referendum ballot.

"We recognize they cannot include a specific amount of money at this time," Wolf said. He referred to previous park board members' statements that they have no legal power over the golf course because it is outside of the district's boundaries. The park district has said it would be willing to work with other public bodies in a joint effort to buy the golf course, however.

Other park district plans for the referendum money include 10 lighted tennis courts, lights for the Lions Park baseball field, development of park sites at Eisenhower and Muir schools and a $70,000 fund for land acquisition. The proposed sports complex would include a gym, two handball courts, sauna, exercise room, two craft rooms and three meeting rooms.

Tollway strike marred by death

The three-day-old strike by toll collectors against the Illinois Toll Highway Authority has been marred by the death of a tollway supervisor who suffered a heart attack after leaving work. The victim, Gordon Westrom, was stricken Tuesday after working his normal 6:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. shift at the ramp-type toll station on the Tri-State Tollway as it feeds into O'Hare Airport. According to fellow employees, Westrom performed his normal duties Tuesday and his death was not attributed to the strike action. Westrom was in his late 60s. Meanwhile, the strike by Local 73 of the General Services Employees Union begins its third day following an impasse in contract negotiations. Wednesday, both sides issued conflicting reports on the status of the strike.

According to tollway officials, it was business as usual on the Chicago area's three tollway systems — Northwest, Tri-State and East-West. They said no unusual delays were reported because of the switch to management personnel in the role of collecting 30 cent tolls from motorists without exact change. The officials also said that occasionally motorists were allowed to pass through toll booths free of charge on the Tri-State Tollway at 63rd Street because of construction tie-ups, a statement refuted by the union. Charles Smith, business manager for the 500-plus toll collectors, said the toll collection is down since the strike began Monday morning. "Some plazas didn't collect a dime yesterday (Tuesday)," he charged. He said he observed drivers being waved through the toll booths in an apparent attempt by the tollway to avoid traffic congestion.

Teacher contract agreement

Negotiators in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 have reached agreement on a teacher contract for the 1974-75 school year. Details of the settlement, announced Wednesday, were being withheld pending approval by the district's 588 teachers. Sources said the agreement calls for a pay increase of between 12.5 and 13 per cent and would make Dist. 59 teachers the highest paid in the state, pending settlements in other school districts. The school board is expected to vote on the agreement June 3.

Building moratorium asked

The Mount Prospect Village Board has been asked to halt further downtown construction until a plan for redeveloping the community's central business district is completed. Robert Bennett, downtown planning committee chairman, asked for a "short-term moratorium on building" until a plan is devised. In a progress report to the village board, Bennett also asked officials to hire a planner, commit themselves to redevelopment objectives and create a commission with the power to condemn property and issue bonds.

Housing subsidies backed

A resolution that could provide up to 100 subsidized apartment units for low- and moderate-income families apparently has the political backing of Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh. The resolution, now being drafted by the housing commission for village board consideration, would make Arlington Heights eligible to participate in a new federal rent-subsidy program. Families would be able to receive subsidies for rents of up to $349 a month for one-bedroom apartments, $434 for two-bedroom units and up to $516 a month for four-bedroom houses.

Prospect Meadows annexed

The 170-home Prospect Meadows subdivision west of Randhurst Shopping Center was annexed to Mount Prospect by the village board. The subdivision will officially become part of the village after a 30-day waiting period when owners of property on the fringes of the area can contest the annexation. Police and fire service is expected to begin this week and scavenger service will start in September.

Grocery scales faulty

A new city inspection program in Des Plaines last week found that grocery scales in at least one local store were registering untrue weights. A spokesman for the store, the A-Mart Food Store, 1111 Oakton St., said all of the faulty scales have been corrected and now weigh accurately. The new city program is designed to ensure regular inspections of weights and measures, which has been the responsibility of state officials.

$70 million more in school aid now seems likely

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Senate Appropriations Committee has approved a school-aid funding bill for the coming fiscal year that includes some $70 million more than Gov. Daniel Walker recommended.

The panel approved the $1.075 billion bill Tuesday despite testimony from state Schools' Supt. Michael Bakalis that Illinois schools don't need the money and that the state can't afford to pay it.

State education organizations, including the Illinois Education Assn., the state's largest teacher's union, and the Illinois Assn. of School Boards have been urging legislators to provide the $70 million.

The school aid bill sailed through the Senate panel on a 19-0 roll call. Members argued the state is obliged to provide that amount of aid to local grade and high schools under terms of the school aid formula passed during last year's legislative session.

The school aid formula passed last year, called the "resource equalizer" was designed to increase the state's share in school district budgets. The law establishing the formula called for it to be phased in over a four-year period.

WALKER, WHEN HE announced his fiscal 1975 budget in March, said he did not intend to seek enough school aid money to meet the state's legal commitment under the formula. He said he had not been convinced that schools need the money.

Instead, Walker recommended that the state provide public schools with about 92 per cent of the funds to which they are entitled under the formula.

Bakalis agreed with Walker's budget request. That decision, he told the committee, was based on two factors: Schools' need and the available resources.

"Full funding would be the ideal thing to do if the revenue picture changes," Bakalis said. "We would be glad to support it."

The bipartisan committee vote, coupled with wide support for full funding in the House, virtually guarantees that school aid will be at the full-funding level for the coming fiscal year despite Walker's objections.

3,000 area cement truck drivers stay out 7th day

by United Press International
Some 3,000 northeastern Illinois cement and ready-mix truck drivers remained off the job for the seventh day Wednesday. No negotiations have been scheduled between the unions and the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

A federal mediator said he has not been able to bring drivers and management to the bargaining table.

Union members walked off the job last Thursday when the association refused their demand for a $1.50 an hour raise over a three-year contract. The association offered a 25 per cent-an-hour raise for three years.

The drivers, whose contract expired May 1, earned under the old pact from $6.78 to $6.88 an hour.

Senate OKs funds transfer for lottery

The Illinois Senate yesterday approved a transfer of $640,000 within the Department of Revenue to pay start-up costs for the new state lottery. The bill passed on a 32-6 vote with 15 members voting present. The measure now goes to the House where passage is expected. Revenue Director Robert Allphin has said the funds are needed if the lottery is to start by late summer.

Motorman blamed for CTA crash May 10

A motorman was blamed yesterday for an elevated train accident May 10 in which 225 persons were hurt. A report issued by the Chicago Transit Authority said the motorman, Ronald Walton, was responsible for failing to keep a safe distance and for operating his train too fast to stop safely in case of emergency. Walton has been discharged.

House unit OKs $12.3 million school aid

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday approved an extra $12.3 million for school aid and an additional $67 million for welfare so the state can pay its bills in those areas for the next month. However the panel insisted the welfare money be all new appropriations, rather than a combination of new money and transfers of funds as Gov. Daniel Walker has asked.

House OKs $22.6 billion Pentagon budget

A powerful conservative front beat back liberal attempts to cut a $22.6 billion 1975 Pentagon arms budget bill in the House Wednesday and then rammed through a 358-37 vote for final passage. Earlier in the session, Hebert's forces defeated amendments that would have reduced the Trident missile submarine program to one boat instead of two in 1975, at a saving of $466 million, and would have killed entirely the Air Force B1 supersonic bomber at a saving of $500 million.

Millions for Nixon homes not all security

A congressional committee said yesterday $17 million in public funds has been spent on President Nixon's private homes in the name of security, but that some of it was not justified and should be recovered. The panel said the Secret Service and other agencies such as the General Services Administration "have permitted public funds to be used to procure nonsecurity items."

Nixon signs bill expanding disaster aid

President Nixon signed legislation yesterday expanding federal aid to victims of natural disasters. Nixon said the bill amending the 1970 Disaster Relief Act represented a major step forward, and, "This bill responds to a vital need of the American people, and it demonstrates the federal government, in cooperation with state and local authorities, is ready and able to provide compassionate assistance to the victims of natural disasters."

The Consumer Product Safety Commission issued a warning yesterday on possible hazards from suction in hydrotherapy swimming pools. The commission said the child's body was held to the bottom of the pool by the suction.

Story's same in Mideast: talk, strife

From United Press International
Israel heightened its frontier alert against Palestinian guerrilla infiltration Wednesday and sent reinforced patrols into the streets of Jerusalem, where police said they captured three Arab saboteurs.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made his ninth shuttle trip to Damascus and back to Israel, still seeking a breakthrough in Syrian-Israeli troop separation negotiations. Kissinger indicated he would fly home this weekend even without a full agreement.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said President Anwar Sadat would send an envoy or a message to Damascus to help Kissinger overcome "current difficulties."

On the 72nd day of the war of attrition on the Golan Heights, Syria said its artillery set fire to the Israeli military settlement of Khisfin. The Israeli command said it knew of no installation by this name.

Israel reported no casualties in artillery and tank clashes in the southern sector of the salient captured from Syria last October and due to be returned under the Kissinger plan.

ISRAELI ARMY unit patrols the streets of Jerusalem to heightened anti-infiltration alert. It was reported they guard against Arab guerrilla attacks following Israel's captured three Arab saboteurs.

Nixon repeats: no more materials

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Wednesday rejected two House Judiciary Committee subpoenas for evidence related to his impeachment inquiry and added emphatically that the panel will get no more Watergate materials from him.

The White House also turned down a month-old committee request for 66 tapes related to the ITT and milk producers campaign contributions, but offered to surrender a transcript of a portion of an April 4, 1972, conversation in which Nixon discussed the ITT matter.

None of the members of the committee appeared surprised by the White House refusals. Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said he would hold a meeting next week to determine the committee's response.

Nixon's refusal to comply with a May 15 committee subpoena for 11 Watergate-related tapes and four sets of official diaries was contained in a letter to Rodino, delivered while the committee was continuing its closed sessions.

Nixon speculated in the letter that the committee wanted the diaries as the basis for even more subpoenas.

The President said the 1,300 page transcript of his Watergate-related conversations which he released April 30 in response to the committee's only other subpoena was intended to answer all questions of presidential involvement "once and for all." He also repeated his willingness to answer written interrogatories or be interviewed under oath by the committee.

James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate attorney, replied in two separate letters to the committee's requests for 46 tapes regarding the milk producers' $2 million campaign pledge and 20 tapes dealing with the dropping of the antitrust case against ITT.

Although denying both, St. Clair promised to surrender the transcript of the April 4, 1972, ITT conversation "in a few days." This apparently would omit a conversation between Nixon, former aide H. R. Haldeman and former Atty. Gen.

John N. Mitchell in which plans for spying on the Democrats might have been discussed.

Meanwhile, Senate leaders of both parties said Wednesday they don't think Nixon will try to fire Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. With that, the crisis precipitated by Jaworski's charge that the President was trying to thwart his investigation — reminiscent of the events that led to the firing of Archibald Cox last fall — seemed to ease.

Civil war threat in Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — In its biggest operation in nearly two years, the British army sent 3,000 camouflaged troops to tear down street barricades in Belfast Wednesday. But Protestant militants put some right up again, leaving Northern Ireland overshadowed by the threat of civil war.

The barricades had been thrown up to help enforce the general strike called by Protestants which has brought normal life in the province to a virtual halt.

One minor shooting incident and a small-scale, short-lived riot were reported. But there were no deaths to add to the toll of 1,023 lives lost in nearly five years of strife among the province's majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and security forces.

The British army sent armed soldiers, their faces blackened with charcoal, into the streets before dawn to demolish the roadblocks. There was no violence as the barricades came down. In some cases the army removed them; in others uniformed civilians manning the roadblocks did the job themselves.

But within hours, more than 100 barricades went up again, particularly in East Belfast's Protestant strongholds and around Protestant housing areas to the north.

There was no break in the general strike now in its seventh day which has closed factories, shuttered grocery stores, forced electric power cuts and halted most transportation.

Kidnaped Patty charged with being a kidnaper

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst was charged formally Wednesday with kidnap with intent to commit robbery, an offense carrying a life prison term, and 18 other criminal acts as an accomplice of the Symbionese Liberation Army "acting on her own free will."

"This is the first time I have ever heard of a kidnap victim becoming a kidnaper suspect," said Los Angeles County District Attorney Joseph Busch.

The 20-year-old heiress, object of a massive search after being taken captive by the terrorist cult three and one half months ago, also was charged along with SLA members William and Emily Harris with assault with intent to commit murder and with robbery.

The trio have been hunted with orders to shoot them down if necessary after a wild fray at a sporting goods store last Thursday following which they allegedly commandeered four automobiles and kidnaped two persons — neither of whom was harmed. Six other SLA members were killed in a gunbattle with police Friday evening.

Arrest warrants were issued by Municipal Judge Morton Rochman who set bail at $50,000 each if the three should be apprehended.

In Hillsborough, Calif., a spokesman for the Hearst family said Patricia's father, newspaper publisher Randolph A. Hearst, is emotionally drained, and it is becoming increasingly difficult for his wife, Catherine, "to maintain her composure."

Confinement for Anne's would-be abductor

• The first man ever to try to kidnap a member of Britain's royal family — Ian Ball — pleaded guilty Wednesday of trying to abduct Princess Anne and was ordered confined to a mental institution "without limit of time." He also was charged on separate counts in the wounding of four men who stood between him and Queen Elizabeth's only daughter in the spectacular five-minute scuffle just 200 yards from Buckingham Palace March 20. For the first time, officials revealed his demands, reporting finding a note on him asking for $7.5 million in ransom in 5 pound sterling bills to be delivered in 20 unlocked suitcases on an aircraft to Switzerland. The queen herself was to come aboard with documents pardoning him for all his crimes.

• A happier note for Princess Anne: She and husband Capt. Mark Phillips have hired their first cook. She's 19-year-old Valerie Bugden, a recent graduate of Thanet catering college whose mother doesn't like her cooking because it's too "fancy."

• More postscripts on the Spiro Agnew case: the chief prosecutor against him, Maryland U.S. Attorney George Beall, said one reason Agnew was allowed to plead no contest to reduced charges last October was the fear that he might have become president. Beall said that was "unthinkable . . . knowing what we did about Mr. Agnew's past" . . . a Justice Department official said there may be a civil suit against the ex-vice president to recover payments he allegedly received from Maryland contractors.

• Appointed: Betty Murphy, a partner in a Washington law firm, by President Nixon to be the first woman to head the Wage and Hour Administration . . . Air Force Gen. Russell E. Dougherty, by Nixon to head the Strategic Air Command, an unusual action in that he never saw combat despite service in three wars.

• Sick call: jazz legend Duke Ellington, 75, seriously ill with pneumonia at a New York hospital . . . former Gov. Otto Kerner, 65, reported resting comfortably at Illinois Masonic Hospital, where he is still undergoing tests for chest pains he suffered over the weekend . . . Mrs. Catherine Hearst, mother of the missing Patricia Hearst, patched up for a broken wrist suffered when she slipped on a throw rug in her home.

• It was May-December time in New York City as Huntington Hartford, 63-year-old heir to the A and P millions, took as his fourth bride 21-year-old Elaine Kay of Fort Lauderdale. It was the first marriage for the bride, who met Hartford three years ago on Paradise Island, a resort he helped develop in the Bahamas.

• Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko who's made a reputation of falling in and out of favor over acts of rebellion — apparently is back in official good graces. Severely censured three months ago for his defense of exiled novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Yevtushenko had a new poem — an ode to a truck factory — published in the Writers Union newspaper which had denounced him.

• G. Gordon Liddy, described as the most-accused, most-convicted and most-sentenced man of the Watergate scandal, won a point in court Wednesday. He successfully argued with U.S. District Judge John Pratt for the lifting of a probation sentence imposed on him May 15 for contempt of Congress. Liddy's main point: the terms of the probation include not associating with known criminals. He's been in jail since Jan. 30, 1972, with "more than 700 such persons." Probation lifted.

• President Nixon has a friend in Bill Rogers. A 48-year old country and Western songwriter who previously twanged the praise of L.A. William Calley and Audie Murphy and condemned Jane Fonda with his rendition of "Hanoi Jane." Rogers now has taped "The Ballad of Richard Nixon," and has sent it to Nashville in hopes of getting it recorded. Its message: "Don't jump to conclusions."

• Julie and David Eisenhower have to give up the Bethesda, Md., home they rented from presidential friend Charles "Bebe" Rebozo, now that the place has been sold. They'll move into a $409 a month, two-bedroom duplex in Washington, which is reported very nice in all respects except the view across the street: the Watergate complex.

Lake County hearings Tuesday

RTA agrees not to spend money until court test

by STEVE FORSYTH

Attorneys for the Regional Transportation Authority Board have consented to a "gentleman's agreement" not to accept or spend any funds until a constitutional court test is decided.

The agreement avoids a possible court-ordered injunction, which had been sought by Lake County State's Atty Jack Hoogasian in his constitutional challenge of the RTA's right to exist. Hoogasian also approved the agreement.

Attorneys for sides agreed before Lake County Circuit Court Judge Henry J. Caldwell Tuesday that nothing would be done by the RTA board unless the court was first notified. Meanwhile, both sides will file briefs stating their positions, and will meet in court again June 10.

Caldwell has urged a rapid resolution of the issue. The June 10 date is considered very rapid action, since the first briefs, to be filed by Hoogasian, will be due Friday.

JOSEPH Tesson, temporary chairman of the RTA board, said Wednesday that the agreement not to take any action will not be a hindrance. He said the board's most pressing concerns now are the selection of a permanent chairman, development of a set of operating procedures, and self-education of the board members in the areas of mass transportation and the various agencies with which they will have to deal.

The RTA board was represented in court Wednesday, because board member Richard Newland, a Waukegan banker, was served a summons, thus drawing the board into the case.

Caldwell sought the gentleman's agreement, he said, because he is primarily concerned with "maintaining the status quo." He said the agreement is in the nature of an injunction, but "nothing on the merits of the motion (for an injunction) has been resolved."

Hoogasian had first sought to enjoin all officials who appointed RTA board members in the six-county area, but he was granted permission Wednesday to amend that. He asked for changes that would prevent the Illinois Department of Transportation from issuing any of the RTA funds authorized by the General Assembly.

Regner admits he lacks support

Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, conceded Wednesday that his Regional Transportation Authority amendment to give the suburbs the option to withdraw from the authority still lacks necessary support for passage.

Regner succeeded in obtaining a 3-7 vote in the Senate Transportation Committee Tuesday, sending his bill with the "opt-out" provision to the Senate floor.

However, he said, "If it was voted on today, it wouldn't pass." Regner added that "I will keep working on it," attempting to secure the needed votes when the bill is called in the Senate, probably in about two weeks. Observers have estimated that there are two or three votes lacking in the Senate to pass the "opt-out" plan.

Regner said that advancing the bill to the Senate floor, however, will give him the opportunity to correct what he considers other defects in the RTA legislation now in effect.

Regner's bill would allow any of the five counties outside Cook County to hold a referendum on withdrawal from the RTA through either a two-thirds vote of the county board or petitions by 10 per cent of the registered voters.

Walker OKs $7.9 million for CTA

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker, after receiving a pledge from Democratic legislative leaders that the Chicago-area Regional Transportation Authority "will not be dismantled," Wednesday released $7.9 million in state loan money to the ailing Chicago Transit Authority.

The money is part of a $29.7 million emergency CTA loan approved by the General Assembly last fall. The subsidy is intended to keep the CTA financially above water until the RTA takes over its functions.

The RTA will be obligated to repay the money.

Walker has been withholding the money because of legislative threats to "dismantle" the RTA. If such a step were taken after the loan was made, the governor argued, the state likely would never be repaid.

"I have satisfied myself," Walker said Wednesday, "that this state subsidy to the CTA can be repaid as called for by law."

"I have not received assurances from the Democratic leadership of both houses that RTA will not be dismantled. It will, therefore, be able to repay the loan."

Dist. 125 wrapup7 school districts to meet and talk

A joint meeting is planned between the Dist. 125 school board and boards from the district's feeder elementary school districts to discuss mutual needs, problems and programs.

Dist. 125 School Board Pres. Robert Anderson said last Monday night he would issue invitations to the meeting to districts 96, 103, 102, 73, 76 and 79 and ask for agenda suggestions. No date for the meeting was set.

Citizens' progress reports

The Dist. 125 school board received progress reports Monday night from the three citizens' committees who are doing research on the freshman studies, mathematics and guidance programs at Stevenson High School.

Freshman studies program committee chairman John Balme reported that half of his committee has visited New Trier and Stevenson high schools and is planning trips to Deerfield, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove High Schools.

The other half of the freshman studies committee, Balme said, is drawing up a list of questions to be sent to all freshman and sophomore students and their parents. After the questions are reviewed by the entire committee, they will be presented to the board.

Guidance committee chairman Marion Slaga told the board that group has met twice with guidance counselors at Stevenson and will meet again next week. Slaga indicated the group may be ready to submit a report by the June school board meeting.

Edward Smith, chairman of the mathematics program committee, said after two meetings, the group has been unable to decide how to evaluate the math curriculum at Stevenson. A list of questions to be sent to other schools was developed, Smith said, but the group decided to move in another direction and that idea was dropped.

Co-op bilingual program?

Districts 125, 96, 102 and 103 have filed a joint application for a cooperative bilingual program to begin next fall.

A Spanish-speaking teacher and one Spanish-speaking aide will be hired to periodically visit each of the schools in the cooperative program for students in kindergarten through twelfth grade.

Enrollment jump seen

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Baner told the school board he expects an increase of about 114 students in September, boosting the present Stevenson enrollment to 1,168.

Baner said the additional students would necessitate the hiring of about five new teachers for the 1974-75 school year, probably in the areas of English, math, social science, business education, home economics, industrial arts, physical education and freshman studies.

A recent survey of housing projects under construction in Dist. 125 reveals that just under 1,000 new units will be constructed in the district by the fall of 1975, Baner said. The following year, an additional 1,500 units will be built and by 1977, another 2,300 are expected to be constructed.

In spite of these figures, Assistant Supt. Edwin Ellis said an unusual influx of students to Stevenson is not expected. Ellis explained that the district is presently getting about one student for every eight homes built.

SEDOL rep named

Dist. 125 School board member Frank Clayton of Buffalo Grove was named representative to the annual meeting of the Special Education District for Lake County (SEDOL) to be conducted in Gurnee this week.

SEDOL is a cooperative formed by several Lake County school districts to provide for the needs of students with special problems such as handicaps and retardation.

$23,526 grant received

The Dist. 125 has received a $23,526 grant from the Illinois Capital Development Board in a new program recently enacted by the state agency.

The grant will be applied against the district's 1974 bond and interest taxes, reducing the tax rate by that amount.

Surplus of volunteers floods village

For the first time in many years, the Village of Wheeling has more volunteers for commission posts than it has vacant seats.

As a result, Trustee Al Lang has suggested increasing the size of several village commissions so that all available manpower can be used.

In asking for the expansion, Lang said the village is usually seeking people to serve on the commissions instead of turning them away. Some commissions, however, are more popular than others, and it is not unusual for volunteers to be turned down for seats on the powerful zoning board and plan commission.

THIS YEAR the surplus of volunteers seems to be for other commissions, such as the board of health which is currently filled. Applicants are also expressing interest in the new environmental commission in addition to the traditional requests for the zoning board and plan commission.

For example, the board interviewed five applicants for commission seats this week. Of the five, two were seeking board of health appointments, one applied for civil defense and two were interested in the environmental commission.

Lang said he would like to see the board of health expanded to at least seven members, and suggested that requirements for a physician to sit on the board be modified. The expansion was requested by the board of health members, who are in the process of reorganizing the previous inactive board.

In addition, Lang said the environmental commission should be expanded to seven or more members. The village board recently increased the membership of this board from three to five persons, although neither of the two additional seats have been filled.

THE TRUSTEE ALSO asked the village board to consider expansion of both the zoning board and plan commission, which now have seven members.

"The more, the merrier. Get everyone involved," Lang said.

Of the 20 commission members up for reappointment this year, Lang said only one person has asked not to be reappointed. He said Marvin Buerger has asked not to be named deputy director of civil defense for health reasons.

Reappointments are expected to begin in June. Although the board last year interviewed all commissioners up for reappointment, such interviews are not expected this year.

Second graders to perform 7 plays

Second graders from Eisenhower School in Prospect Heights will present a series of seven plays today and Friday starting at 9 a.m. at the school.

The plays to be performed for kindergarten, first and third graders are "Sleeping Beauty," "Manwick Goes to Town," "The Cross Princess," "The Gingerbread Boy," "Brother Rabbit's Friends," "Birthday Cake" and "The Apple of Contentment."

Each student in the school's second grade will have a part in one of the plays. The students, who each made their own costumes, will also serve as hostesses and ushers.

Laser beams topic of Rotary meeting

Wheeling Rotarians will learn about the history, development and uses of laser beams at their luncheon meeting Friday at Hans Bavarian Lodge, 931 N. Milwaukee Ave.

Terry A. Kleinheksel of Western Electric Co. will present a slide talk on "The Light Fantastic," and will explain what a laser is, how it works and its applications to everyday life.

1974-75 teacher pact may be signed tonight

The Dist. 21 school board is expected to sign the recently negotiated 1974-75 teacher contract tonight, giving local instructors pay hikes ranging between 8 and 14 per cent.

The board is scheduled to meet at 8:15 p.m. in the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Worked out by bargaining teams for the school board and the Wheeling Faculty Council last week, the contract calls for a 12.24 per cent increase in the total monies allotted to salaries. Teachers are to receive between 8 and 14 per cent individual pay increases, depending on their position in the pay schedule.

The contract also provides for a 10 per cent increase in the annual salaries paid to teachers for supervising extra-curricular activities.

Other items on the agenda of tonight's meeting include:

- Discussion of the 1974-75 preliminary budget.
- Review of school board policies.
- Proposal for data processing terminal.
- Resolution of tax abatement for Capital Assistance Program of bond retirement.
- Bond resolution.
- Custodial and secretarial salaries.
- Special report on the district-wide program for gifted children.
- General equipment bids.

More than 150 Stevenson High School students won scholarships, trophies and other awards at special honors ceremonies Tuesday evening.

At the top of the list of students recognized for outstanding achievements was John Patwell, Stevenson senior and winner of a National Merit Scholars scholarship. Patwell also won the Deerfield Rotary scholarship and will spend a year in France studying before entering John Hopkins medical school in the fall of 1976.

Two other seniors, Charles Kreuger and Doug Bergstrom, received letters of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship foundation. A junior, Mark Eibert, was also presented special honors for achieving the top score in his class on the National Merit Scholarship test last fall.

CERTIFICATES WERE presented to 26 Stevenson seniors who have been named Illinois State Scholars and have received scholarships to state colleges and universities.

State Scholars include Charles Andrus, Albert Bucweitz, Ann Choate, Mary K. Cole, Frances DeNinno, Susanne Forslev, Debra J. Gammon, Taco J. Homburg, Daniel Kelly, Gerald Kerrigan, Charles Krueger and Theodore Lammers.

Also included were Laura LaPlaca, Robert Lyle, Joel Marks, Marie Moody, James Offord, Jill Pollard, John Posh, Susan Przybylski, Robert Schauer, Annette Schmidt and Mary Ulibarri.

Heavy rains bring only minor flooding

Despite continuing rains, Wheeling residents have experienced only minor flooding problems in the past few weeks, according to Village Mgr. George Passolt.

Passolt said that while he got no calls on flooding following Tuesday night's heavy rains, additional thunderstorms probably will mean complaints from residents with wet basements.

According to Passolt, the village rain gauge shows that four inches of rain have fallen in the past three days. He said that is more than the average 3.3 inches estimated to fall during the entire month of May.

As a result, water levels are high in both the Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch and the Des Plaines River.

THE MANAGER said Wheeling has not experienced much flooding in recent weeks because village employees have been carefully watching local problem areas.

"We work so hard at it, really," Passolt said, noting that the village recently cleaned the sewer grates and asked the Metropolitan Sanitary District to remove debris from the creek.

These cleanup activities are part of a routine program for village employees, according to Passolt. He said this keeps village sewers and the creek ready in case of heavy rains.

"All of these things count in a flood control program because you've got to have everything running smoothly," Passolt said. "It isn't a solution to all the problems, but it sure helps. It's amazing how little it takes to obstruct the flow of water."

Phone books out June 10

New telephone books will be distributed to residents of the Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Long Grove area beginning June 10.

Previously, local directories have contained three sections including front white pages listing local and nearby numbers, yellow pages for the community and back white pages listing numbers of the general region.

This year the telephone book has been split into two directories. One book contains the local white and yellow pages. The second edition, formerly the back of the book, has been bound separately and is called the Northwest Regional Directory.

Residents will receive their usual quota of local directories, but only one copy of the regional book. Business telephone customers will receive their usual number of local directories, but only half the number of regional directories.

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will review a proposed subdivision of the Dunkin Donuts property, 294 E. Dundee Rd.

Owners of the property already have presented plans for the subdivision once, but plan commission members asked for a more careful review of problems associated with the property. The subdivision has been rejected once before because of traffic and parking problems.

The subdivision would allow property owners to sell the western section of the property for construction of a new business.

The plan commission also will consider final plans for the subdivision of the Skil Corp. property, 1444 S. Wolf Rd. The subdivision would allow the company to separate the property into three lots, with new lots located both north and south of the present plant. This would allow additional industrial development in the area.

Keith Lacy of Tekton Corp. will talk to the plan commission about sidewalks in the Cedar Run development on McHenry Road.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

John Sislow and Doug Bergstrom.

Literary magazine certificates were awarded to Laura LaPlaca, Elaine Brumby, Pamela Ervin, Linda Baker, Terry Moore and Jennita Cundiff.

Library aide awards were presented to Janet Hobbs and Julie Sage.

MEMBERS OF THE Stevenson technical crew winning outstanding certificates were Kenneth Paris, Dorothy Maloney, Michael Herskovitz, Robert Bergland, Curtis Hornback, Debra May and Todd Schuck.

Stevenson High School's four foreign students also were honored during Tuesday evening's ceremonies. thrown out in total. He also has said he will object to the election-requesting petitions. As one of his written objections, Siegel has questioned the constitutionality of the state law, passed last year, under which Prospect Heights is attempting to incorporate.

Any or all three of Siegel's objections could force the PHIA to submit a new pe-tion requesting an incorporation election.

In court Wednesday morning, Christina Carlson and Jack Gilligan, both of the PHIA, testified on the collection of the petition signatures. In addition, Gilligan testified that he checked the petition signatories against the registered voters lists and found only two of 316 signatories not to be on the voting lists. The law requires a minimum of 200 signatures.

Streaking comes to Oakton

Remember streaking? It was a fad that seemed to disappear almost as soon as it started but it has survived in jokes and cartoons.

Recently, at Oakton Community College in Morton Grove, a memo by F.N. an, the mythical memo writer who haunts the college, was circulated among the faculty. There have been a lot of rules for streakers put out lately, but this is the first one I've run across directed specifically at school employees.

The memo is as follows:

Re STREAKING

Due to the increasing popularity of streaking, it is necessary to issue a policy concerning guidelines for streaking by all employees.

• Employees will streak only in order of seniority, and contrary to rumors presently circulating, there will be no merit raises given for "Best performance by a streaker."

• It must be emphasized that safety glasses are to be worn by all streakers traveling through any laboratory areas. As concerning the classified staff, streaking will be on a rotating department basis, however, the administration frowns on coed streaking and respectfully requests that department supervisors advise their employees accordingly.

• It is further requested that streakers refrain from streaking on days immediately following floor waxing as this presents a definite hazard, according to Walter Toporek (superintendent of building and grounds). David Hilquist (college business manager) informs us that there is some question as to our insurance coverage covering streakers.

• Anyone streaking down Nagle Avenue (the street running through the campus) must be certain to first salute the United States and Group II flags. (The "groups" at Oakton are sort of like academic departments — Group II is one of them.)

• All streaking observers will kindly refrain from making derogatory remarks regarding anatomical structure of participating streakers. Hissing and whistling are definitely no-no's.

• Observers will not touch the participants. Bob Gihle (chief of security) will not tolerate tailgating. F.N. an

THE ILLINOIS General Assembly is currently working on the governor's budget, and in the process it looks like they are going to add money to his proposal for funding the state school aid formula.

Gov. Daniel Walker had proposed that the state aid formula, which was to be phased in over four years, not be fully funded this year. Now a senate committee, at least, has passed an appropriation which adds $70 million to the governor's proposal. The extra $70 million would provide all the money necessary for the formula for the coming year.

All sorts of legislative infighting will no doubt take place during the next few weeks, as this measure moves toward approval. But it's interesting to note that a number of education groups which are not usually allies are working together lobbying for the increase.

The Illinois Education Assn., Illinois Federation of Teachers, Illinois School Board Assn., plus the organizations of school superintendents and business officials have all formed a coalition working for full funding of the state aid formula.

This is remarkable because IEA, IFT and school board association, particularly, rarely find themselves on the same side of any issue. As collective bargaining for teachers has become more common, in fact, the school board association and teachers groups have often become bitter enemies.

One observer, in fact, said the school board association would probably oppose full-funding if IEA and IFT back it. But that didn't happen.

Cancer rate grows—so do cures, research

Chemicals in the environment why disease grows?

This year in the United States there will be some 6,000 more cancer cases than last. In 1972 there were 12,000 more cases than in 1971. Why?

Nobody is certain. One reason there are more cases of cancer is that there are more people. But a far more alarming possibility is man's increased exposure to chemical carcinogens in his environment.

"The air we breathe contains gases and particles that never before entered the human lung. Our food has chemicals designed to improve its taste, freshness, appearance — but which are strange to our intestines, livers, kidneys and blood. We touch, ingest, inhale, absorb an ever-increasing number of synthetic materials and, in other circumstances, agents which may have existed on earth but were never part of the immediate human environment," observe Drs. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society (ACS) and Irving Selikoff of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York.

The two, who head the ACS Environmental Cancer Research Project, are trying to answer questions about how these environmental changes threaten people. They are looking for data to confirm the World Health Organization's estimate that "approximately 85 per cent of all cancer is derived from environmental sources."

JUST A FEW months ago it was revealed that seven workers (of fewer than 300) working at the B.F. Goodrich plastics plant in Louisville, Ky., died of a rare tumor, angiosarcoma of the liver. Within weeks after the disclosure, by the Goodrich company's plant physician, other cases were discovered in New York, Texas, West Virginia and elsewhere.

The medical detectives — who daily out-sleuth even Colombo — have traced this alarmingly high incidence of the rare liver cancer to the fact that affected workers have been heavily exposed to the chemicals polyvinyl chloride and vinyl chloride. They are widely used in the production of plastics, some of which are even known as "vinyls."

Scientists say there is now no evidence that exposure to consumer products containing traces of vinyl chloride could cause the same results. But they are looking for a more certain answer.

One of the most worrisome facts about such chemically caused cancers is that many of them — the liver cancers in particular — had their origin 15 to 35 years ago. "Cancer-causing agents being newly introduced will not show their effect for decades," Hammond and Selikoff said at the recent ACS Science Writers Seminar at St. Augustine, Fla.

Lately the identification and study of chemicals that cause cancer has been one of the main goals in cancer prevention research. Already the list of compounds related to cancer causation in animals has surpassed 1,000.

BUT THE identification and study of these chemicals and other cancer prevention measures, such as the program to control cigarette smoking, represent only one of four major approaches to cancer control today. The other three are:

- Early detection and subsequent removal of the tumor by surgery or irradiation. The smaller the tumor when it is found and removed, the better the patient's survival rate.
- Inhibition and destruction of metastases, or secondary tumors which have spread from the original one, by chemical treatment or immunotherapy. Immunotherapy attempts to boost the body's natural response against foreign matter to help it destroy cancerous tumors on its own.
- Palliative therapy in which doctors are trying to improve both the length and quality of life of patients with advanced cancer.

This year there will be well over 600,000 new cases of cancer in the United States. About 335,000 will die of cancer. And of the more than 200 million Americans living today, nearly a quarter of them — 53 million — will eventually hear a doctor say three words we have learned to fear: "You have cancer."

STILL, MANY cancer victims will not die of the disease. Some 218,000 will be cured this year, according to the ACS. A patient is considered "cured," if he remains without symptoms of the disease for five years or more.

There is room for much more progress. ACS President Dr. Justin Stein says that "approximately 100,000 cancer patients die annually in this country who could have been saved by earlier and better treatment."

"If an intense effort to assemble and apply current knowledge is made, a major share of the 100,000 deaths due to late diagnosis could be averted and additional thousands of those in the 'inevitable' mortality category might well never occur because of preventive measures," Stein adds.

To this end, Stein suggests more work in the area of identifying so-called "high risk groups" among the public. These include heavy smokers, workers exposed to environmental hazards, women with a high likelihood of developing breast cancer and others.

OTHER EFFORTS include the campaign for every woman in the country to have a Pap test and the ACS Breast Cancer Task Force program which supports 27 centers where women are carefully screened for breast cancer.

Cancer is a terrifying disease. It's no wonder that last year the ACS raised some $90 million. And in the realm of public funds, the National Cancer Institute gets the biggest single piece of the federal medical research pie.

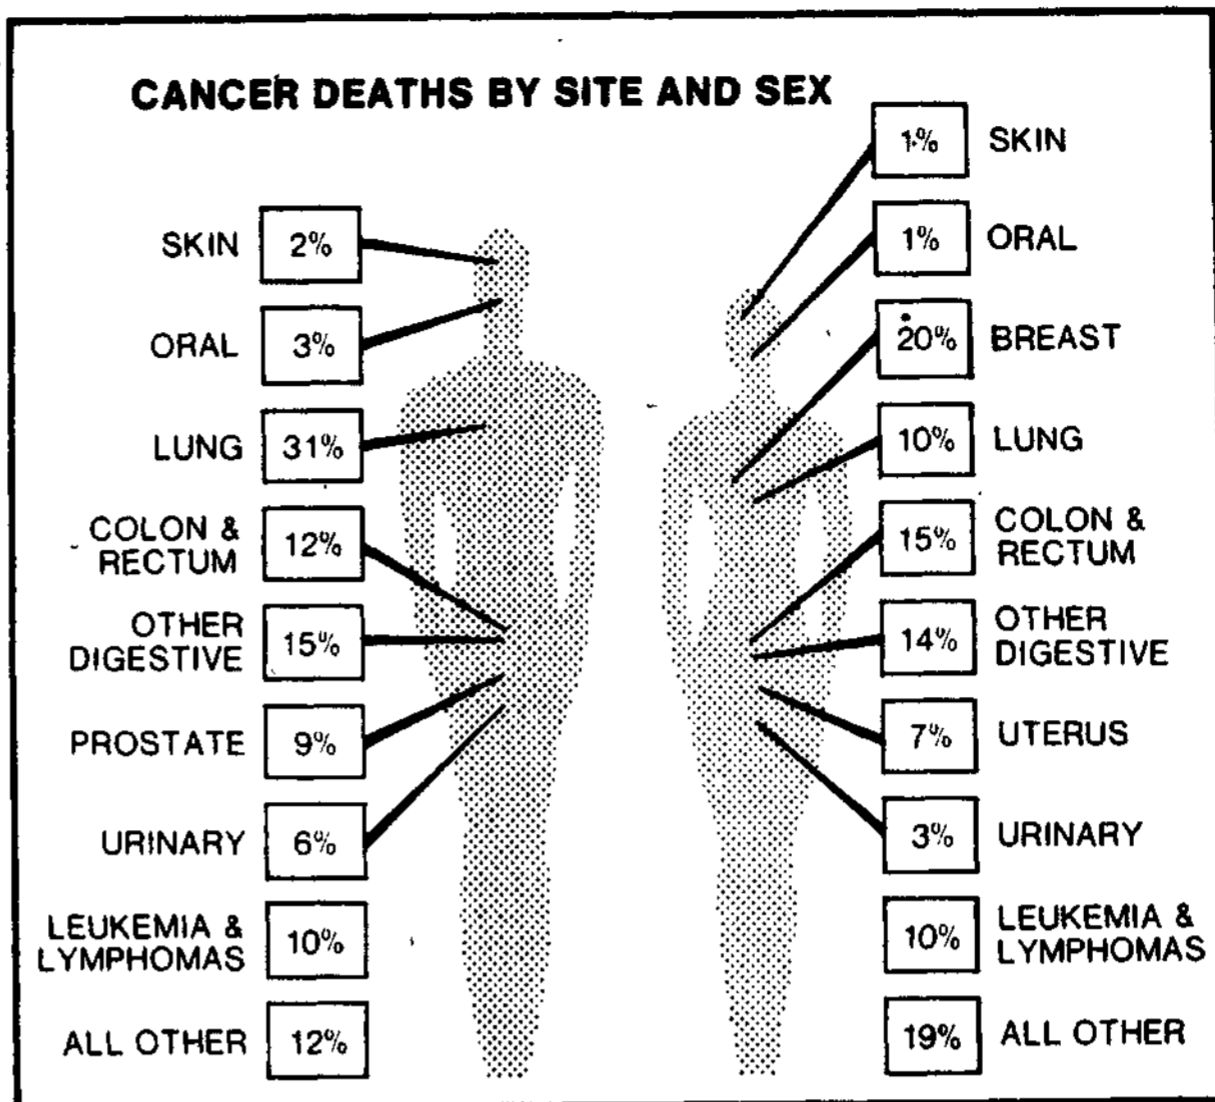

With the help of such expenditures of time and money, significant strides have been made in treating localized cancers, Hodgkin's disease, leukemia and other forms of cancer.

And even though the cancer fighters bring us scraps of good news regularly, progress is painfully slow. There is still no miracle cure for cancer, the catch-all term that describes what scientists believe to be more than 100 separate diseases.

The best hopes today lie in prevention and early treatment of cancer, because between one-third and one-half of all cancer patients can be cured if their disease is found early and treated properly.

National Cancer Institute ready to help cancer victims, relatives

A relatively small number of cancer patients, their families and their doctors are aware that the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md. is standing ready to answer their questions about cancer and, whenever possible, assist in finding the best cancer specialists available for consultation.

This is too valuable a service to go unnoticed, since the more than 100 diseases collectively called cancer may be widespread and devastating, but the individual types of cancer aren't all that common.

Such a statement may come as a surprise to many, but the statistics are clear: There are some 655,000 new cases of cancer seen each year in the United States, and a total of about 330,000 die annually of the disease. Compare that to the actual number of practicing physicians in this country, about 350,000, and it is easy to see that the average physician sees only about two new cases of cancer each year and has only one patient who dies of the disease.

"If I had cancer," says Benno C. Schmidt, the head of President Nixon's Cancer Panel, "I would go to a medical center that specialized in cancer treatments."

In a recent interview, Dr. Guy Newell, deputy director of the National Cancer Institute (NCI) said that "Most physicians actually see very few cases of cancer in their practice in a year. And most of these doctors want to consult cancer specialists to determine whether referral is necessary. Frequently the cancer specialist can determine the best course of therapy and the family doctor can continue it."

EACH YEAR the NCI information office answers about 18,000 letters from cancer victims, their friends or families. Frank Karel, associate director for cancer communications at the NCI, says that if persons who have cancer, or think they have cancer, write to the NCI, there are several things they are told.

"We tell them first of all that if they don't have a doctor they should get one. Second, we provide them with the names of the nearest institution or investigator who is doing work applicable to their situation. We even give them the telephone numbers of experts their doctors can call on the phone."

If you write to the NCI, and address your letter correctly, you can usually expect a reply within a week after it arrives in the NCI offices.

The address is: Office of Cancer Communications, National Cancer Institute, Building 31 - Room 10A25, Bethesda, Md. 20014.

Each person who writes to the NCI, Karel says, can be assured that the letter will be dealt with on an individual basis. Trained professionals are assigned to each letter, whenever it is more than a simple request for a booklet or statistic. Physicians who are cancer specialists are always ready to help.

AT ANY GIVEN time there are some 20,000 cancer patients being treated in formal clinical studies funded by the NCI. Participating in this work are some 1,600 investigators at 320 institutions. With an annual budget of more than half a billion dollars, the Institute funds about 85 per cent of all clinical cancer research in this country.

The work that the NCI funds breaks down into several categories of significance to the potential cancer patient and his or her doctors:

- Clinical Cooperative Groups, in which doctors are working together to develop new clinical treatments. These scientists tend to work together on a regional basis.
- Cancer Centers of various universities and hospitals. These break down into comprehensive cancer treatment centers and those that specialize in areas such as surgery, radiation or another specialty.
- The NCI Clinical Center program at the Institute itself. Here there are 205 patient beds, where the initial work on promising new therapies is carried out until it is proven acceptable for broader use.
- Cancer control programs, which help local hospitals develop drug therapy for the three types of cancer that have been most successfully treated — acute lymphocytic leukemia in children, Hodgkin's disease and other lymphomas, or cancers of the lymph glands.

ONLY A relatively small number of cancer patients can expect to participate in formal research programs, called protocols by doctors.

Dr. Newell explains that "clinical research on new types of cancer treatment has to be done very carefully and with precise statistics and other controls and therefore is not open to everybody and anybody. Being selective is the price that must be paid to do good research that will prove most effective in the future."

But, he adds, "the point is not that every patient need be put into a protocol, but if a team of experts is consulted, they can make their best recommendations based on broad experience with a particular kind of cancer. They may put the patient in the formal study, but it is also possible that they will use the same treatment as in the protocol on that patient."

Even if a patient is accepted in an experimental cancer therapy program he or she should understand that a "sure cure" is not in the offing.

It is encouraging that several forms of cancer are being treated successfully, and patients are often "cured," but, Dr. Newell says, "Research advances are painfully slow. We're talking about shaving percentage points."

The key, of course, is that each tiny fraction of a percentage point of success means that more cancer victims are living longer, happier lives.

AND ONE thing that concerns leading cancer fighters around the nation is the large number of cancer victims who are jumping into unproved and disreputable treatments with drugs like Laetrile. A growing underground network is touting this derivative of apricot pits as a so-called cure for cancer of all types. But leading investigators have found it to be ineffective at best.

"What's really disturbing," one expert said, "is that such quack treatments can keep people away from something that will in some cases cure them, or keep them happily alive for months or years. And when it is hopeless, the top specialists can at the very least keep cancer victims as comfortable as possible."

Just what is the American Cancer Society?

What is the American Cancer Society? And why are you giving it almost $100 million a year in contributions?

These questions may seem to be oversimplified and self-serving, particularly to the American Cancer Society (ACS). But the fact of the matter is that they can mean a great deal to you now and in the future both on a personal level and on the basis of things to come.

For the American Cancer Society provides a way for you to become personally involved — even though you're not a scientist — in the battle against cancer, the diseases of the savage cell.

It all works much the same way as the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the first giant voluntary health group, which enlisted thousands of volunteers and millions of dollars in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Because of those remarkable efforts to support research and education, the first effective vaccines against polio were developed.

Today, the ACS is the world's largest voluntary health organization and enlists the support of more than 2 million volunteers, 50,000 of them are doctors.

Many wonder why a voluntary health group is needed to fight cancer when the United States government supports a National Cancer Institute that receives more than half a billion dollars in federal funds each year.

THE FACT IS, says ACS President Dr. Justin Stein, that his organization has been instrumental in prodding Congress into funding more and more cancer research.

"Our whole program," Dr. Stein said in a recent interview, "is based on fighting fear with knowledge. We believe that the lay people should have an equal voice with the professors in the determination of policies. The consumer's opinion must be taken into account."

"And we have to be a free and independent agency so we can criticize as we see fit," he adds.

Along those lines, Dr. Stein says, "we believe there should be more training programs for basic scientists and clinical investigators, yet funds for such programs were recently reduced by the federal government."

LAST YEAR THE ACS spent the largest chunk of its budget, more than $24 million, to fund research projects. In past years the society has put up more than $320 million for this purpose and many of the nation's major cancer research programs were developed with ACS help.

Dr. Stein says the Society's volunteers can offer the federal programs valuable help by educating the public. "They can take the information from the laboratories and educate the doctors and people as soon as possible so there will be better delivery of medical care to cancer patients."

"Years ago, for example, everybody was dragging their feet about the Pap smear test for cervical cancer. The ACS-sponsored the first Pap smear program with more than a million dollars in funds to educate the public. Soon patients began going to their doctors and demanding the test," Dr. Stein says.

Although the Pap smear program has been considered successful, the ACS is still pushing hard. Only 53 per cent of white women and 22 per cent of black women have had the test, the best way to detect uterine cancer in its early stages. But even though many women still have not been tested, the mortality from this type of cancer has been reduced by two-thirds in the last 20 years in the United States.

WITH THE National Cancer Institute the ACS is now sponsoring a network of 27 centers throughout the country which perform and promote breast cancer screening and examination techniques.

Among the most important services the ACS offers are those that help individuals already stricken with cancer. One of these special programs is Reach to Recovery, in which mastectomy patients are visited by volunteers who themselves have had a breast removed. These volunteers, who made 27,000 patient visits in 1972, offer the patient both psychological support and answers to practical questions on how to look normal and return to normal activities. Volunteers work in cooperation with each patient's private physician.

A similar program has been developed to aid victims of colon cancer who had colostomy operations performed when their tumors were removed. In this surgery a new opening from the colon to the outside of the body is produced, and body wastes are excreted into a sterile plastic bag worn under the clothing.

Volunteers who have had the operation themselves offer counseling and advice to new patients, and help them make the adjustment to their new way of life.

ANOTHER ACS-SPONSORED group that helps patients is the International Assn. of Laryngectomees, an outfit that helps people who have lost their voices to cancer. Its purpose is to support the rehabilitation of those who have had their voice boxes (called the larynx) removed and to help these people learn to talk from the stomach instead of the throat.

After the 1971 National Cancer Act was passed by Congress, the ACS wondered what effect the infusion of federal funds into the fight against cancer would have on the public's habit of making contributions.

"The survey found," Dr. Stein says, "that only 30 per cent of the people even knew of the National Cancer Act, and even those who heard of it said it would have no effect on their giving."

Auto maintenance aid limited

As an eligible veteran, would I have to make a down payment on a Veterans Administration GI home loan?

The Veterans Administration does not require a down payment, but the lender may require one.

I'm a disabled veteran who received a $2,800 auto grant from the Veterans Administration. Will VA help out on engine repair?

VA pays for repair, maintenance, or replacement of special adaptive equipment necessary to operate the car. The agency is not authorized to bear these expenses on the vehicle, itself.

I was honorably discharged last week after two years in the military service. If I go to school, will the Veterans Administration pay for my books and tuition?

Books and tuition are provided under VA's vocational rehabilitation program for veterans with a 30 per cent service-connected disability; or less, if the disability is a pronounced employment handicap. Veterans without a disability who enroll in school under the GI Bill receive monthly education assistance allowances to offset school expenses.

I am a disabled veteran. My wheelchair, provided by the Veterans Administration, does not permit me to participate in some sports events. Can I have my chair modified at VA expense?

A "sports-model" wheelchair is available from the VA when it is medically prescribed and the veteran's sports activity warrants the wheelchair for his physical rehabilitation.

I'm planning to be married next month. I have selected a house to buy. Does it make any difference if I apply for a Veterans Administration GI home loan before I am married?

VA now accords full recognition to income and expenses of both veteran and spouse in determining ability to repay loan obligations. Formerly, local rules sometimes had the effect of discounting the spouse's income.

Applying for first job? Get a card soon

My 32-year-old son, who has been disabled since birth, lives with me. He has no income, and he doesn't own any property. Would he be eligible for the new federal assistance payments?

Since your son doesn't have any income and resources, he might be eligible for supplemental security income payments. However, his payment would be reduced by one-third in consideration of the value of the room and board he gets from you.

Social Security & you

ments for people who have little property and low income and who are 65 or older, blind, or disabled started in January, 1974. My father, who's almost 90, is confirmed in a mental hospital. Medicaid pays his bills there. Will he be eligible for the new federal supplemental security income payments?

He may be, but his payments would be limited to $25 a month because he is in a medical institution and supported by Medicaid. The $25 is intended to purchase small comfort items for those recipients who have no income.

I'm past 65 and still working. Since I earn more than $8,000 a year, I don't get any monthly Social Security payments. When my retirement benefits are refigured to give me credit for the months after 65 that I didn't get monthly payments, will it also increase my wife's Social Security check?

The delayed retirement credit you'll get because you are working past age 65 is applied only to the worker's monthly Social Security retirement payment. It does not affect payments made to other family members entitled on the worker's earnings record. However, your continued work may mean a higher benefit for both you and wife if your pay raises your average annual earnings.

I want to get my first job this summer, and one of my classmates told me to make sure I have a Social Security card before I start looking. When should I apply for a card?

You should apply right now — several weeks before you'll need it. All applications for Social Security numbers are screened against central files in Baltimore to make certain one person doesn't get more than one number, and this screening takes time. It's a good idea to have your card with you when you go job hunting, because some employers require that you have a Social Security number before they'll hire you.

I'll be 65 in a few months, and I just got in the mail a Medicare card showing I have coverage under both the hospital and medical part of the program. Since I'm a Christian Scientist, I want only the hospital part and not the medical part. What should I do?

Just fill in the information on the back of the card you received and return the card in the enclosed envelope. This will enroll you in only the hospital part of Medicare, and you'll be sent a card showing your hospital insurance coverage. The hospital part of Medicare covers certain services in certified Christian Science sanatoriums.

I've heard that the new federal pay-

New regulations may be slow in coming

by LEA TONKIN

Don't hold your breath waiting for new state regulations that would clamp down on companies that manufacture, store or transport potentially hazardous materials.

The announcement by Gov. Daniel Walker this week that he wants to slap stiff fines on Bulk Terminals Co. and Cabot Corp., in connection with the recent hydrochloric acid leaks on Chicago's South Side, and his directive to the state Environmental Protection Agency to come up with state standards and inspection procedures came in the wake of a widely publicized air pollution incident.

Getting results will be time consuming. A series of public hearings is required by the Illinois Pollution Control Board before such standards could be enforced. And the reaction by industry could be adverse, according to Orville Bergren, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers Assn.

"If we feel they go too far, naturally we will oppose them," he said Wednesday. Bergren said industry favors reasonable safety precautions, but "the trend of our times is that regulations of this kind seem to be passed in a highly emotional state, and we overreact."

Faster results can be expected in the case against Bulk Terminals and Cabot Corp. Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said he will file charges against the two firms by today with the pollution control board, charging air pollution standard violations in the April 28 leak of hydrochloric acid fumes.

UOP catalytic converter OK'd

California Air Resources Board recently accredited the Universal Oil Products Co. Purzest catalytic converters for installation on pre-1973 model cars. The converters, installed near the exhaust manifold, contain catalysts which chemically change unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide into a mixture of carbon dioxide and water vapor.

Tests were conducted over a 20-month period by the ARB on a fleet of 100 cars equipped with converters produced by the Des Plaines-based firm. Results indicated a 69 per cent reduction in hydrocarbon emissions, 65 per cent for carbon monoxide and 14 per cent for oxides of nitrogen. Similar results were obtained by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, Colorado and UOP's own test fleet, said James Dunham, manager of UOP's automotive products division.

Farms, woods going urban?

Farms, wooded areas and other open spaces are being converted to urban uses at an increasing rate, notes the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. Land disturbance associated with development contributes to a serious problem of soil erosion and sediment damage in Cook County. More than 25,000 tons of soil may be removed from a square mile of land and find its way into sewers, streams, rivers and lakes. The soil particles reduce water quality in lakes and can contribute to flooding problems.

This type of erosion can be avoided by implementing a conservation plan, according to the service. A plan describes how a developer will control soil erosion and sedimentation during and following construction. Terraces, sediment basins, dams and plantings of trees and shrubs are among the conservation measures which may be taken.

For additional information about conservation plans, contact the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District, P.O. Box 555, Lake Zurich, Ill. 60047.

Environmental exposition ends

The Fourth annual International Environmental Exposition continues through today at the Regency Hyatt Hotel, Rosemont. The conference is dedicated to solving environmental problems in an energy-short economy. Controlling pollution in the workplace, and meeting energy needs with environmental protection are among the conference topics. It is sponsored by McGraw-Hill publications.

Strip-mining bill opposed

Illinois Coal Operators Assn. and the Coal Producers Assn. of Illinois are among the groups protesting the federal strip-mining control bill recently passed by the House Insular and Interior Affairs committee. The Senate passed similar legislation last October. Coal industry representatives contend that the bill's provisions for returning strip mined land to its approximate original contour are too tough.

"The bill insisted upon by the House Interior Committee is not intended to regulate surface mining, but to obliterate it," said coal industry representatives in a joint statement. "Its approach is not to solve the problems of mining and reclamation, but to prevent them by prohibiting mining on almost any excuse." State laws tailored to the local topography and climate should be allowed time to work, the coal operators said.

Lottery 'millionaire' promised every 6 weeks

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois state lottery should produce an "instant millionaire" once every six weeks and should have a top weekly prize of some $300,000, according to the man who engineered its passage through the Illinois General Assembly.

State Rep. E. J. "Zeke" Giorgi, D-Rockford, outlined what he said will be the lottery's prize structure Tuesday during a meeting of the House Appropriations Committee. Giorgi, who tried for years to gain approval of the lottery, is known as the "father" of the game.

Giorgi said lottery officials likely will hold hearings before formally announcing the prize structure for the game, which is expected to sell its first tickets late this summer.

But, he said, "Projections show that the amount of tickets we're going to sell that would be the comparable amount of prize money with what other states give."

Other details of the game still remain to be decided, including the price of tickets and the locations for their sale.

The legislature approved the lottery last year as a revenue-producing measure and Gov. Daniel Walker, who opposed the game during his gubernatorial campaign, signed it into law.

'Inflation rate' unfair

Runaway, galloping inflation's best friend is the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, judging by that company's proposal for a rate increase based on inflation.

In the past, the phone company has sought increases based on expenses, and this procedure seemed a perfectly legitimate way for a public utility to keep abreast of rising costs.

However, the latest plan, which will shortly face hearings before the Illinois Commerce Commission, which can approve or reject the hike, represents the kind of thinking which can only encourage lock-step inflation.

What Bell proposes to do is apply a "cost and efficiency" factor to phone bills each month to determine if phone bills should increase to keep up with inflation. The higher the inflationary spiral, the more you'd automatically pay for the privilege of using the telephone.

Implicit is more and more inflation. If the cost of living automatically hikes your phone bill, the more likely you are going to need more money to pay for phone bills. The effect is an intensifying of the already-ruinous inflationary spiral that affects every one of us.

Bernard Carey

This proposal, quite naturally, has raised the ire of a variety of consumer groups who charge it with being automatically inflationary. In addition, Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey has filed a motion with the ICC in Springfield, charging that the proposal would allow Bell to "police its own rate structure and bury the cost of telephone service in a maze of complex mathematical calculations."

Carey's objections should be taken seriously by the commission — as should the public's obligation to attend ICC public hearings on this proposal.

It gives all of us a rare opportunity to strike back at killer inflation, the mechanism which gnaws away relentlessly at our ever-decreasing purchasing power. There's no better opportunity to challenge this beast than when hearings are held on this automatically inflationary-prone Illinois Bell rate hike plan.

'A good cop'

Mount Prospect has a new police chief and in selecting Ralph Doney for the job we believe they have selected one of the best police officers in the Northwest suburbs.

In a move that would be a surprise in many police departments, the village manager went to his own department and selected Doney, a sergeant on the force and the head of the Mount Prospect detective division. It may be considered unusual to go to the sergeants' ranks for a chief, but in our opinion the choice was based on the merits of the man, and in this case the merits are substantial.

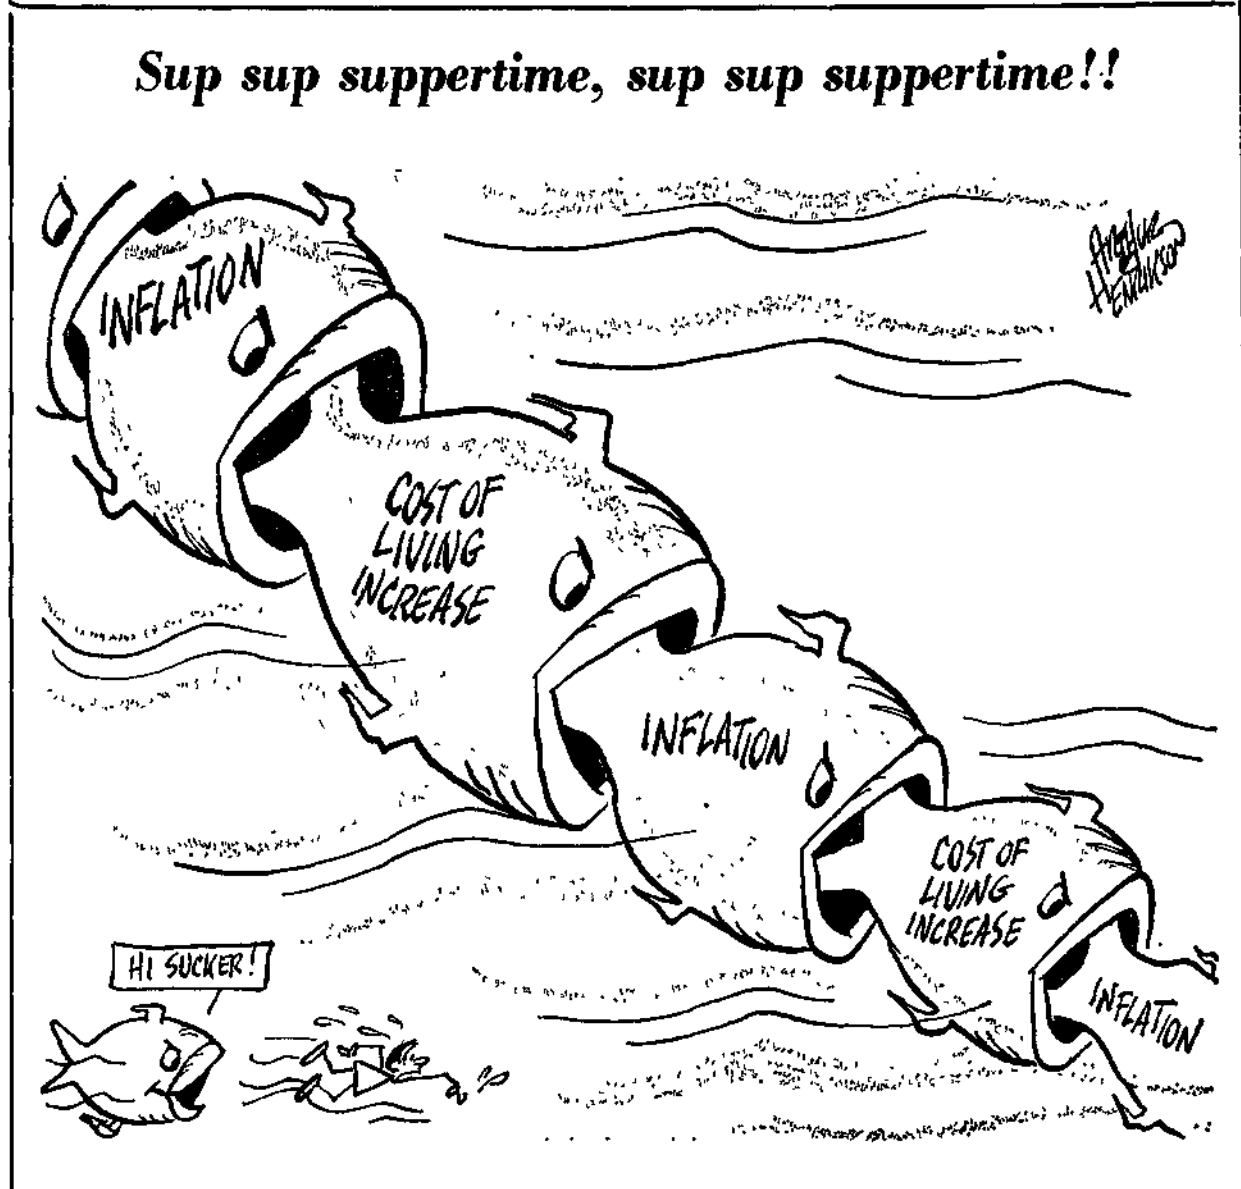

Doney has been a Mount Prospect policeman since 1960. He came to the force after four years of experience as a Chicago policeman. He was the first police detective on the Mount Prospect force and also served as a uniformed sergeant.

As chief, Doney is expected to carry forward many of the policies of former chief Bert Giddens, among them a continued emphasis on honesty, training and unity within the department.

We know Ralph Doney as a humane and decent man who is a good cop. We wish him well in his new position and commend Mount Prospect village government for choosing him.

Bob Lahey's column

Congress kills its reform

If there were any further proof needed of the perniciousness of secrecy in government, Democrats in the U.S. House of Representatives have provided it, in spades.

Acting in a secret vote — in violation of their own rules — and in defense of their personal power bases, the House Democrats have crippled, if not killed, a move toward reform of the antiquated committee system in the House.

Ask just about any U.S. representative what is the most crying need for upgrading the effectiveness of Congress and the chances are he will tell you it is reform of the committee system.

For the past several years, there has been a definite growth of sentiment for reform.

Nurtured by new, younger members of Congress, there has been a movement recently toward breaking up the more powerful committees by subdividing their functions; limiting membership of individuals to chairmanship or membership on only one of the major committees, giving more funds to minority members for research and staff work; and modifying the seniority system by which only mossbacks can become committee chairmen.

After several years of effort, it appeared that a resolution to accomplish a good many of these reforms was well on its way to passage this year.

But what happened in the meantime? According to the assessment of Common Cause, what happened was that some of those young, liberal members who started the whole thing suddenly found themselves with a little seniority, a little clout.

So when it came time for the Democratic caucus to decide what their position would be on the rules changes, they suddenly weren't so liberal any more.

It would be bad for their image, however, to admit that publicly. So the Democrats ducked behind a secret ballot to decide that they would throttle the reforms, which most Republicans were ready to accept.

First, Caucus chairman Olin Teague of Texas called for a standing vote (which is not recorded) on the proposal for the secret ballot. It carried, 98-81, according to Teague.

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, a sponsor of the reform measure, immediately demanded a recorded vote on the proposal for a secret ballot. Teague turned him down.

The Democratic Caucus purportedly operates under the same rules as the House of Representatives, and it is fundamental that a member on the losing side of a measure is entitled to a record vote.

Teague, though, has only been in Congress since 1946 and could not be expected to know this. He admitted later that he "errored."

At any rate, the secret ballot resulted in a vote of 111-95 to send the reform measure to another committee, where it is expected to die. With the cloak of a secret ballot, none of these 111 Democrats will have to admit to the homefolks that they helped stymie House reform.

While that is disturbing, it is even more disconcerting to contemplate the evidence of what a minority of 111 Democrats can do to the legislative process.

Republicans also have a Caucus to determine party policy. What they do not have is a rule which the Democrats have: that any member who violates the will of the Caucus in a floor vote may be stripped of his seniority.

Thus, as Rep. John Erlenborn, Wheaton Republican, points out, it takes at the most only 124 (of 247) Democrats to frustrate the will of the 435 members of the House. Add to that a secret ballot, and they may do so with alacrity.

Republican candidates, hard pressed for issues to turn the Watergate tide, can place the blame for lack of reform squarely on the Democrats.

It was a cynical maneuver, and Democratic Majority Leader Thomas (Tip) O'Neill of Massachusetts summed it up cynically: "The name of the game is power, and the boys don't want to give it up."

Mansfield plays it cool

"I do not want to be anticipatory," he repeats, prefacing any speculation with the words, "if and when that time comes..."

He has studied the Senate Manual's rules of impeachment thoroughly. He has read the published transcripts. He has asked all committee chairmen to work "as hard and as fast as they can" in order to "clear the decks" of all important legislation earlier than usual this year and thus be prepped "if and when..."

Beyond that, "I don't intend to do anything more," Mansfield insists. "We'll be prepared to face up to our duty."

But with Mansfield's approval, more is being done behind the scenes.

At the urging of Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Phillip Hart, D-Mich., Senate officials, with the help of Library of Congress researchers, are studying the procedures under which an impeachment trial would be held.

Mansfield opposed a formal inquiry into the Senate's rules and procedures by a committee but agreed to a low-key background study into how a trial would be run.

Mansfield wants to be prepared for "any eventuality" but he clearly does not want to second-guess what the House will do.

He has steadfastly urged Nixon to turn over all the tapes and documents sought by the House Judiciary Committee, criticizing the transcripts with the remark, "Code words or lack of words will not be the answer."

But unlike some senators, he has declined to give any opinion of the transcripts or of the specific allegations as they pertain to Nixon's guilt or innocence.

Despite a swirl of controversy, charges and obviously prejudicial remarks by some of Nixon's prospective jurors, Mansfield remains the eye of the storm.

In the end, he hopes, his coolness and persistent objectivity will prevail in the Senate as "the law and the Constitution take their course." (UPI)

Ski traffic considered

Elk Grove Village will soon be the site of the state's largest ski hill. It will be located along Bisner Road, north of Biesterfeld Road.

Construction has begun along with other work to create a large water retention basin and recreation area. The plan seems like a good idea because such areas are needed in Illinois which ranks low among other states in recreational facilities.

A major drawback to the project is the resulting traffic. Entrances to the ski hill are being considered. One of those under consideration would do a great injustice to residents of Elk Grove. It is proposed to turn Bisner Road, presently a quiet two lane side street, into four-lanes with high curbs.

Along with the Bisner Road change would go a similar treatment of Cosman Road which intersects Bisner Road at the northwest corner of Elk Grove Estates.

Residents of Elk Grove Estates are organizing to protest the Bisner Road entrance to the ski hill area. I understand Alexian Brothers Medical Center is also opposed to changing Bisner Road since traffic would interfere with its emergency entrance.

I feel state and local officials must see that this proposed entrance would be a mistake since alternative entrances directly from Biesterfeld Road or north from Higgins Road (Rte. 72) would not hurt existing residential areas and hinder all-important emergency functions of a hospital.

Also if Bisner Road becomes the entrance a large parking lot would be constructed directly across from homes facing Bisner Road. Besides the traffic, the lights burning 24 hours a day from the parking lot would create an obvious nuisance.

Residents of Elk Grove Estates, like everyone else, moved to the suburbs to escape traffic, all-night noises, bright lights, exhaust fumes, people congestion, etc. The long range proposal may be good for the state and the local area in general but that is no reason to disregard the local people.

Officials involved in this project must consider local property values and respect the right of local residents to enjoy peace of mind by helping preserve some of the natural beauty and serenity that was here when we bought our homes.

by DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON — In the midst of escalating cries for President Nixon's resignation and exclamations of "disgust" over the Watergate transcripts, Mike Mansfield is playing it cool.

As the House pursues its impeachment inquiry, and the Senate waits for a verdict with growing anticipation, the Senate Democratic leader is urging caution and calm even as he goes about quietly preparing for "any eventuality."

The stoic lawmaker from Montana has been exceedingly careful throughout the emotion-charged impeachment drama to do nothing that would appear as if the Senate was eager to place Richard Nixon on trial.

When Republicans, almost on the edge of panic, were issuing calls for Nixon to resign, or at least step down temporarily, Mansfield pleaded with his colleagues to "keep cool."

Let the system work its will, he told them. The question of impeachment is before the House where it belongs and Nixon is entitled to the presumption of innocence until "all the facts are in and a verdict is rendered."

His plea for fairness and patience did indeed cool the heated atmosphere perceptively, at least in the Senate. Mansfield intends to keep it that way.

Sitting in the disciplined and quiet surroundings of his Capitol hideaway, Mansfield goes to extraordinary lengths to avoid even the hint that he expects the House to vote impeachment.

A thoughtful trustee

We wish to publicly thank Mount Prospect Village Trustee Dick Hendricks for all his help and concern. He is very thoughtful and cares about the people in Mount Prospect.

He has helped us many times when we needed help and seems to find the time to come out and talk to the people and listen to whatever problems or gripes they may have living in Mount Prospect. He really cares.

May 7 board meeting was the first one I ever attended because of working nights, but I must say I really was impressed with Mayor Teichert and the village trustees. They are there listening to people's problems and helping in any way they can. If more people came out to these meetings, they would know what's happening in our village and would really be impressed.

Also, a thank you to the Mount Prospect Police Dept. I work nights and drive home very late at night. The police are always around and it is a good feeling and most assuring knowing that if you should be in trouble or need help the police are close by.

No balls and chains for these prisoners

In Allenwood, Pa., a con is treated like a gentlemen

by TOM TIEDE

ALLENWOOD, Pa. — At this stage it is of course not known whether President Nixon will be impeached by the House, convicted by the Senate and removed from office. And it is seldom even contemplated that he might further be charged by civil authorities, found guilty by the courts and sentenced to pay by incarceration.

But one thing is perfectly clear. In the unlikely event all of the above did take place, Richard Nixon would not be dragged off to an ordinary con — he would wind up in a "gentlemen's jail" such as the quiet, contemplative Federal Prison Camp here in Pennsylvania's central sticks.

THE ALLENWOOD camp, just past a golf and country club in a valley of rich soil and straight trees, is one of five minimum security lockups in a federally operated chain of 33 major institutions. And it is a far cry from the chain-gang and cattle-herd pens Edward G. Robinson snarled his way through in the 1940s cinema.

There are no walls here, no bars, not even locks on the inmate doors. Women in mini-skirts visit residents around ice cream tables on a patio; convicts loiter in their underwear in the midday sun; there is a sturdy chain fence surrounding the 4,200-acre camp, but its purpose, says Supt. Max Weager, is not to keep people in but out — area residents love to poach the camp's trout-stocked ponds.

All in all it is the kind of prison progressive penologists would like to see house most common criminals. As it is, the federal camp population constitutes only a small and very special percentage of felons.

The bulk of people committing federal crimes end up in maximum security penitentiaries such as Leavenworth or medium security facilities such as Lewisburg (10 miles south of here). A strict screening procedure allows only non-aggressive, mentally stable, criminally unsophisticated "short timers" in the camp settings.

THUS IT IS THAT all convicted Watergate personalities have served in the gentlemen's jails. Dirty trickster Donald Segretti spent time at the Lumpoc camp in California, former presidential aide Herb Porter is there now. Four of the original Watergate burglars — Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis — were jailed in the camp at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida until their recent release on bond.

And here at Allenwood, White House plumber Egil Krogh is spending six months' confinement working camp farmland and, say officers, "doing fine, fine."

In the past, the populations at federal camps were made up almost exclusively of this kind of distinguished residency (including occasional senators, congressmen and U.S. judges). Actually, the camps were first conceived to accommodate "white collar" criminals, people who did not require maximum security and extensive rehabilitative programming.

The idea was not to make their life more comfortable than other crooks, says a Bureau of Prisons spokesman, but to "cut down on the costs" of incarcerating non-dangerous offenders.

NOW THIS ORIGINAL thinking may be being victimized by new times and circumstances. Federal camps are today receiving fewer white collar felons and more narcotic, draft and "political-radical" violators.

The result is that the simple, inexpensive camps are in some ways beginning to resemble the more traditional prison set-up. Allenwood now has an extensive education program, a counseling service and narcotic programs — thus the cost-per-inmate, says Weager, "is probably just about what it is in any other prisons."

The comforts of the camp have also come up for an updated reevaluation. The humane rationale has it that prisoners who are treated decently will act decently, yet in practice it doesn't always work out so nicely. Lovely inmate children have sometimes smuggled contraband to their fathers here, moonshine stills are deployed periodically through the countryside, and when Weager tried to establish a "prisoners' council" he had to crush it when it turned "totally combative."

NO DOUBT such things happen because, despite frills, jail is still jail. And in some ways, Weager says the liberal camp is harder on residents than an Alcatraz or Attica.

"Some of the men see time here as harder time; the liberty, the lack of restraining measures, the extensive visitation rights create for some more anxiety." One inmate's wide puts it this way: "If he was behind bars he'd resign himself to it. This way, it's like he is almost free, almost out, but not quite. He's frustrated as all hell."

The frustration of being "almost free" may account in part for the extraordinarily high number of escape attempts at federal camps. Lumpoc averages a couple a week. Allenwood is much better at 15 to 19 a year, but even this rate is deplorable when measured against nearby Lewisburg which, says Weager, "hasn't had a successful break-out in decades."

Still, despite disappointments, Allenwood represents the best of an imperfect penal system. Men live in dormitories rather than cramped cells, supervision is minimal, residents move freely from place to place. Though there are some hoary prison regulations in force — no chewing gum — the men have considerable latitude in shaping their time; some, for example, spend extensive periods sitting and reading behind the privacy doors recently installed in some toilet facilities.

A FEW INMATES see the Allenwood system as ripe for abuse. One camp policy, for example, is to allow six days a week visitation privileges, with no time limit between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m., thus, predictably, a few of the cons have moved their wives or sweeties into the area and spend all day every day "walking and talking with momma." Besides crowding facilities, such hogging fouls up the camp work schedule.

Yet the majority seem to appreciate the considerations here. And sometimes excessively so. Weager remembers one old inmate who had spent most of his life in jail and who was especially taken with the Allenwood arrangement. When the old man finally was released he indicated a hesitancy and confusion. Three hours later he robbed an area bank — perhaps to get back to the comforts of home.

Arlington Heights' Ahr leads Bicentennial designs

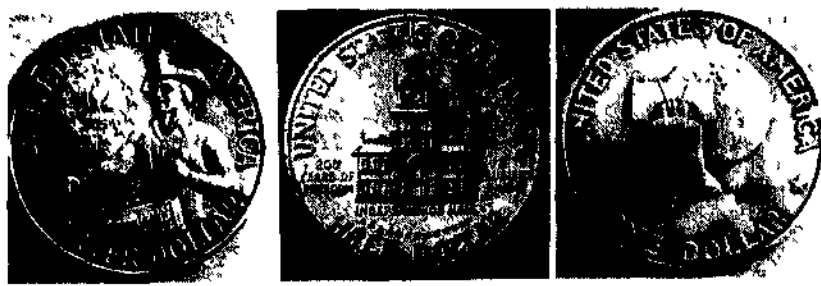

On March 6, the Secretary of the Treasury and director of the Mint made the final selections of three winning designs from the National Bicentennial Coin Design Competition for the reverses of the dollar, half dollar and quarter. The Treasury awarded $5,000 to each winning designer.

Jack L. Ahr of Arlington Heights designed the colonial drummer boy selected for the reverse of the quarter.

His own company, Jack Ahr Designs and Sales, opened two years ago, specializes in custom-product designs, such as sales and employee incentive awards. For 16 years, Ahr was employed as an artist, art director and director of creative services for companies serving the high-school, college and industrial markets, designing such items as class rings, medals and special awards.

He studied for two years at Bowling Green Ohio State University and continued his art studies at John Herron Institute of Art and the Academy of Art in Chicago.

SETH G. Huntington's design of Independence Hall was selected for the reverse of the half dollar. Huntington, of Minneapolis, Minn., is manager and art director of the Custom Art Department of Brown and Bigelow, the largest calendar and advertising specialty house in the world. He is a graduate of Minneapolis College of Art and Design and served on the faculty of the St. Paul Arts and Science Center.

His experience as an artist and designer has been in corporate design, educational materials, book illustrations and advertising display. He has received numerous citations and awards including two "Printing Industries of America" annual graphic arts awards.

DENNIS R. WILLIAMS, whose design of the Liberty Bell and Moon has been chosen for the back of the dollar, is 21 and a junior at the Columbus, Ohio, College of Art and Design, majoring in sculpture. His instructor assigned him the National Bicentennial Coin Design Competition as a design problem. He plans to teach sculpture at the college level after graduation.

All three Bicentennial coin designers visited the Philadelphia Mint to view the process of transferring their designs to

THE BUREAU of the Mint began accepting orders for 1974 Proof Eisenhower Dollars May 1.

The search for mental health

Nursing a separate discipline—science and art of care

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

The roles nurses play gradually have been changing and their public image will soon change as well, predicted Dr. Madeline Leininger.

"Nursing has come of age," said Dr. Leininger, dean of the School of Nursing at the University of Washington and a doctor of anthropology. "Nursing is now being identified as a separate discipline. We're looking at the science and the art of care. In the field of mental health, for instance, this has to do with the dimensions of how one provides support, how one provides care, how one looks at ways of relieving discomfort and stresses that people have in daily human living."

"The independent nurse-practitioner is starting to set up her practice so that she can deal with, for example, common recurrent kinds of mental health problems while working with children, adolescents, families and adults," said Dr. Leininger. "The collaborative nursing practice is interested, as a discipline, in working with other disciplines and in turn making contributions to other fields that only they can make."

DR. ABRAHAM HELLER, associate director of psychiatry at the Denver General Hospital, noted that independent nursing, while in existence since the 1950's, is new in some respects. "Across the general front of medicine," he said, "there is a reexamination of the manpower utilization as it effects the ability to deliver health care to meet the needs of all the people with one standard of care and without discrimination."

"The American Medical Assn. and American Nursing Assn. have formed a joint commission to study new roles nursing can play. As medicine looks at this, it's finding many areas of unmet needs. For example, in rural areas there is frequently a serious problem of lack of doctors and hospitals. We're now looking at developing nursing talents in independent practice to better meet the needs of rural areas. Other examples would be in the care of the aged, in more comprehensive alcoholic services and in pediatric services. In fact, it is predicted that nurse-practitioners in the future would take care of 75 per cent of the needs of children."

Dr. Leininger pointed out that only 30 per cent of all patients are in the hospital. The rest are in the community. "In our culture," she said, "people want quick health care services at low cost and high quality. They often have many kinds of emotional problems. A nurse has a very unique vantage point from which she can move out and reach these people. One program we've developed in the state of Washington is called primary nurse practitioners. The nurses are working out in the community, giving general mental health care as well as physical care to the whole community."

Nurses working in this capacity do not work under a supervising physician. Dr. Fred Kane, assistant director of psychiatry at Denver General Hospital, said, "They're autonomous practitioners. In some capacities such as this they can't be supervised effectively. Besides, in certain disciplines, there's not too much differentiation in training between nurses, psychologists and physicians, so there's no need for supervision. However, nurses get a training that none of the others get — through experience in the emergency room. As a result, they are pretty much autonomous specialists in crisis therapy."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Leininger, in the state of Washington independent nurse-practitioners do minor surgery, diagnose illnesses and even prescribe medications. "Now," she said, "we have to do a massive job in reeducating the public in where they can get certain kinds of help.

It's no longer necessary to 'call the doctor' to solve every type of health problem."

"Till now, the most pervasive problem in the field of nursing has been sexism," said Dr. Leininger. "The women's liberation movement has helped nursing deal with this to some extent. Nurses want to be more visible and to have an identity. They want to receive economically what they deserve for their services."

The nursing profession is 98 per cent female, said Heller. "The reason for this is nurses have been exploited and underpaid in the past," he said. "This tends to perpetuate the idea of nursing as a profession for females. This is slowly changing. The change will quicken as pay scales become commensurate with the contribution of services. We've bought nursing cheap in the past, but no longer."

"There are 1 million nurses in this country," he continued. "This number represents an investment in training in a resource for health care which isn't fully being taken advantage of because the present roles are not satisfying. There's a great deal of attrition and dropping out among nurses. We've got to stop wasting this resource. The development of independent nursing will help make better use of this resource to meet the needs of this country today."

Area net teams play numbers game

JON PACZKOWSKI
'73 Doubles Champ Trying Singles

Arlington, Conant and Maine West will be playing the numbers game during the next three days.

It's called: "Winning State Tournament Points Even If You Lose."

The annual high school state finals, which will be played for the second straight year at Arlington High School as well as six other Dist. 214 sites, has a new look. Being able to battle back in the consolation bracket after losing will allow teams to continue play instead of watching from the sidelines.

Tom Pitchford, Arlington's head coach as well as the tournament manager, summed it up when he said this:

"I told my boys that only one kid wins singles and only two take doubles. One hundred and twenty-seven go out losers. So other people who lose will have to be able to come back. That will help determine who will be second and third."

In other words, this new format will showcase those who can forget defeat the quickest, those who have championship character.

Hoping that their young men have what it takes will be Conant's Roger McCoy, Maine West's Roger King and Pitchford.

For Pitchford, the most will be at stake. His team has the chance to again take a trophy from the Cardinal center court and carry it the short distance to the Arlington gym in victory.

Arlington captured third place in 1973, rolling up 11 points. Hinsdale Central and Highland Park were four points ahead as co-champs.

Hinsdale is expected to win the title again. Right on the Red Devils' heels, however, will probably be Deerfield, New Trier East and — Pitchford is hoping — Arlington.

Possibly hurting the Cardinals' goal of being among the top three was a 5-0 loss to New Trier on Monday.

"It should spur us on a little bit," said Pitchford. "They realize it hurt them on their seeding. I hope they will be mentally ready to play on Friday and Saturday."

The main man for the Cardinals is senior Jon Paczkowski. Experienced under state pressure as part of the doubles championship duo (with Jim Merkel) last year, Paczkowski will be out to prove he's better than his showing on Monday. That day he lost in three sets to Geoff Tabin, who probably moved ahead of Pac-zkowski in the seeding.

Still, Paczkowski will probably be ranked among the top eight singles players.

Paul Wei, although only a freshman, is expected to go pretty far, according to Pitchford, because top competition brings out the best in him.

One half of the Cardinals' top doubles team has been in the big time before — Craig VanGorp. He won two matches before bowing out last year, losing to eventual runner-up Highland Park.

This year VanGorp is with John Yeazel. Like Paczkowski, they won district titles and are expected to be rated among the top eight doubles teams in the seeding meeting.

Arlington's other team — Roger Lockwood and Luke Weeg — also are capable of winning quite Hinsdale favorite as state tennis tourney opens today

by PAUL LOGAN
Tennis Editor

Hinsdale Central resumes its annual role as the team to beat as the Illinois High School Association's Boys Tennis Tournament begins this afternoon at seven Dist. 214 sites, beginning at 5 p.m.

Co-champs with Highland Park last year, Hinsdale will be trying for an outright title as well as the ninth team title in the school's fabled history. But it won't be easy.

Today marks the first time the tourney has held a preliminary round for singles and doubles prior to the Friday-Saturday showdown. This innovation, one of many since the meet was moved out of Champaign and into the Arlington Heights area, was brought about to increase participation in the finals.

The excess of players was caused by the new rule allowing the team winning a district to advance its entire team to the tourney. Those not seeded must play in the preliminary round today.

This emphasis on the team aspect is hoped to determine a true team champion. For that reason, Hinsdale Central — which almost always seems to qualify its entire team — will be tested by teams which in the past were cut up because they played in tougher districts.

Those who win tonight will participate in Friday's action, scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. and run all day. Saturday's semifinals and finals play will get underway at 8:30 a.m.

Hinsdale is the heavy favorite according to some coaches because it boasts that rare combination of talent and depth.

"They might be one of the better high school teams in the nation if there was some way of ranking them," said Tom Pitchford, Arlington's head coach and the meet manager.

Jay Kramer, Hinsdale's coach, didn't go that far, but he did say this of his team's ability:

"Right down the line, we have more depth this year than I believe we've ever had."

Just as Hinsdale had Marty Riessen in the late '50s to lead them to three straight state titles, Ed Staren is the key figure in this second winning streak. Staren, a superb junior, finished second in the state singles championships to Galesburg great Dave Parker. It was man — the senior Parker — against boy — the sophomore Staren — then.

This year Staren — now a young man — is out to win it all. He'll also be trying to be part of a third straight team championship.

Brother Ed, only a freshman, makes up half of the Red Devils' doubles team. Sophomore Alan Piolet, who played doubles in last year's state meet, joins him in his youthful but strong combination.

The Staren-Piolet combination lost to their teammates — seniors Ken McMahon and Fritz Bahantine — in the district in two tiebreakers — 7-6, 7-6!

Mark Litzinger, another veteran of state wars as his senior teammates, will play at the other singles spot. Hinsdale pride will be the motivator as these seniors give it their last shot.

Despite the wealth of talent, Kramer added this:

"The last two years it's sort of been Hinsdale against the state. I've been constantly telling our kids that the state meet is going to be tougher than at any time."

Besides Arlington, which could possibly be a longshot threat if everything went right, there are two teams which stand out above the rest as potential state contenders — Deerfield and New Trier East.

"We feel pretty great," said Deerfield head coach Charley Morrison after his team shocked defending co-champ Highland Park in the district meet.

Playing in probably the toughest district in the state at Lake Forest, Deerfield went head-to-head with Highland Park and nearly eliminated every Little Giant competitor. The Warriors won the district and left Highland Park with just one state meet participant — highly talented Jon Powell, one of the contenders for the singles title.

Harrison Bowes and Ken Bartz showed that they deserve to be up there with the best of the doubles teams by ousting Mike Barr and Matt Horwich. Barr was part of a Giant doubles team that finished second to Arlington last year.

"There was a tremendous letdown after the big win," said Morrison, explaining how Dane Neiler and Robbie White — his other outstanding doubles team — beat his "B-B" combination in the finals, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

"No teams have had to qualify the way we had to qualify," he continued.

Playing singles for Deerfield will be Jack McArdle and Willy Davis, the son of Hughes Davis, the head coach at New Trier East.

Deerfield's highest state finish was sixth or seventh, according to Morrison. When asked if this team was his greatest, he said, "It's got to be."

When you come out of a district that included Highland Park, Barrington and Lake Forest, you've got to be confident. To add to it, the Warriors captured the Central Suburban League title Monday. Highland Park had a two-point lead going into the showdown, but lost. So, momentum appears to be with Morrison's team.

New Trier East, winner of the Suburban League title last week, also has it going. The Indians also had a big win Monday, stopping Arlington 5-0.

Geoff Tabin of New Trier East — leads strong team into state meet.

The Indians' head coach has a different approach toward the state meet, a title he has enjoyed winning in the past.

"I go in there a little bit quieter," said Davis, who last won in 1967 when New Trier took both singles and doubles titles. "That's worked better for our boys. There's going to be a lot of teams below us... a looooot of teams."

His ace — Geoff Tabin — got sick last year and was upset in the second round. "That cost us points right there," he reminded. New Trier finished fifth with seven points. Davis had hoped for a trophy. This year he might get one.

Tabin defeated Arlington ace Jon Pac-zkowski in three sets Monday. Tabin's considered a big threat in singles. Bill Kerr is his other singles player.

Scott Turban and Tom Bueger are his best shot in doubles. They reached the top 16 last year and should be ranked among the top eight. Mark McCormick and Mark Schneider are the other team.

Cards No. 1—a decade ago

"It was the culmination of 12 years and a lot of hard work."

Ken Schaller, now department chairman for the social science division at Arlington High School, was reflecting on the highlight of his fine coaching career which ended 10 years ago this month. The zenith of his dozen years of guiding prep tennis players was also achieved a decade ago in May.

On Friday, late in the day on the courts in Champaign-Urbana, he experienced a rare coaching thrill — clinching the state high school team tennis title on the first day of play!

Although his only singles player had been eliminated in the first round downstate, his superb Cardinal doubles teams were still alive after the first grueling day. Through their play, the only team title ever came to the area.

The senior combination of Mirrel Kephart and Jeff Peek, seeded second, was expected to go the distance. Surprising some of the experts was the equally solid performance of juniors Bob Von Boeckmann and Greg Inman, who were seeded seventh.

The Peek-Kephart duo eliminated always tough Hinsdale and Von Boeckmann-Inman stopped New Trier. "They were close matches," Schaller recalled. "The kids did rise to it when the time came."

"They were pretty tough competitors. They were stable. They played at their best under pressure."

Just as rare as wrapping up the title on Friday was having one school battle it out for the doubles championship. The pressure was on for these four teammates were out to beat each other for the top prize. Meanwhile, Schaller — enjoying the team title pressure that had been removed on Friday — sat on the sidelines and "told them to go out and play and may the best team win."

The battle was brilliant. His juniors grabbed the first set, 6-3. However, the one extra year of experience as well as additional time spent under their knowledgeable coach paid off for the senior pair. Peek and Kephart came back to win 6-3, 6-4. But everyone from Arlington went home happy.

Besides the ability to perform under pressure, Schaller also pointed out that "probably the most important thing" about his state champs was that they were "very disciplined workers. They spent lots of additional time working."

"One mother told me that her boy started Christmas day his senior year and hit a ball every day until he was through with the state tournament."

"We did a lot of volleying indoors. We started in February. We volleyed by hitting over chairs and just hitting tennis balls."

This was before indoor courts — way before.

Where are his competitors now? Schaller wasn't quite sure about his fabulous four, but their parents — all of whom still live in the Herald area — helped out.

Peek is now assistant vice president for Canal Randolph Corp., a land development company in New York City. After he left Arlington, he played tennis his first two years at Princeton. He graduated and went on to Harvard.

The half of the winning combination is presently in Midland, Mich., in the public relations department for Dow Chemical. He had attended the University of Iowa and went on to get his masters degree in Michigan.

Inman's the farthest away and Von Boeckmann's the closest. Inman is going to school at Cambridge in England. He'll graduate in June and hopes to teach in that country. He had attended Harvard, also, where he played tennis his first two years.

Von Boeckmann lives in Streamwood and works in Arlington Heights for Weber Marking Systems, Inc. He had played tennis while attending Northern Illinois University.

They excelled on the courts ... and they haven't stopped.

Jay Kramer—from tiny to tall in tennis world

When little Jay Kramer scampered onto the Evanston High School tennis courts as a freshman in the spring of '51, none of the players stood in awe.

Oh, they noticed him, but not because he was a fine player at that time. He drew attention momentarily because he stood about as tall as two tennis racquets (4-foot-7) and weighed less than most of his classmates (75 pounds)!

This weekend the grown-up version of Tom Thumb will probably be held in awe and will definitely be noticed. Not for being little, but for being the builder of an awesome tennis team.

If the pre-tournament predictions hold up, this 37-year-old Hinsdale Central head coach will be walking a foot taller than his 5-7 frame. If his team plays in the Arlington hosted state tennis tournament as it has done throughout the season, he'll have produced back-to-back-to-back champions.

Presently in his 15th season as the Red Devils' head coach, Jay's seen more success than a host of tennis coaches combined — four state titles and six runners-up!

Still, complacency has no place in this youthful man. After talking to him, one has the feeling that he continues to have the same enthusiasm as he did as a pint-sized frosh.

"I was really tiny," he recalled. And he wasn't towering as a senior — 5-2, and "110 or 115 pounds."

As usually is the case with little guys, he was what journalists refer to as a "tremendous competitor."

During his prep career at Evanston, he cut down many a big guy while helping his team win a fantastic 50 straight dual meets against conference and non-conference foes alike. But his team failed to win the state title, finishing runner-up to powerful Oak Park.

The same thing happened in college. Playing for Northwestern, Kramer helped his team by reaching the finals as a fifth man his junior year and a fourth man his senior year. Yet, Michigan edged the Wildcats for the title.

While in graduate school, it appeared his near-miss luck would continue. After Northwestern's head coach died suddenly, he was considered for the head job. However, Clare Riessen was picked instead.

"At the time, I was pretty disappointed," said Kramer. "I thought Northwestern was a tremendous place to be."

However, Jay was meant to be somewhere else. Namely, Hinsdale. He applied and was hired for Riessen's old job in 1959.

At last, it seemed, he would be connected with a state champion for Hinsdale had won consecutive titles since 1956. Also, Marty Riessen — Clare's son — was still on the team. This talented senior was a kingpin on three title teams.

But, as had always been the case, his team just missed. The Red Devils finished second in 1960.

Jay had to wait until 1966 to taste titli-

mate success. Then it came almost yearly. He took teams all the way in '63, '72 and a co-title with Highland Park in '73.

Now he's shooting for three in a row. If his team's showing so far is any indication, he'll be on top again.

"The way we've beaten other teams..." said Kramer, still amazed. "Beating '73 co-champ Highland Park 7-2... I never dreamed we'd have beaten them so badly. Beating New Trier East 8-1... They're a good tennis team. We beat Deerfield 5-0."

"We've played everybody that's anybody with the exception of Arlington which was rained out. We've proven on a dual meet basis that we can do the job. But at the state tournament..."

His voice trailed off for he knows his team will have to prove its greatness all over again under trying circumstances. Besides the New Triers, Deerfields and Arlingtons, Hinsdale players will be contending with the cream individual players of the state.

However, of the 248 other coaches who entered the district tourney phase of the state finals, just about every one would love to take his chances with this talented team.

Some might claim that Hinsdale "recruits" its tennis stars — lures them to move to Hinsdale as the tremendously successful swim team does. Not so, according to Kramer.

"Over the years since I've been here, only one kid has really helped us by moving in," said Kramer. "Other than that, our kids are all home grown."

The key to his team's success, according to Kramer, is knowing what he expects of them because he's "worked with them since they were young kids. It's sort of a big family relationship. We're a pretty close-knit group."

His many families over the years have produced a sparkling 180-20 dual meet record as well as a dazzling 100-4 (two losses came to Arlington and LaGrange) in the West Suburban League.

Asked if this was his greatest team, Jay said, "It has to be one of the finest teams we've ever had. I said I would tell after the season how good a team we have. The only true evaluation is whether or not it wins a state championship."

Using that same evaluation system to rate coaches, Jay Kramer is one of the giants.

FOREST VIEW'S fine freshman Dave O'Donnell serves one up during indoor action at the Mid-Suburban League meet last weekend. O'Donnell lost a tough three-setter to Prospect's Tom Wagner in the finals.

Prospect, Arlington in deadlock

Rolling Meadows gains 3-0 victory

A little streak of wildness all but settled Palatine's contest at Rolling Meadows in the very first inning Tuesday, with the Mustangs regaining third place in the North Division race at the conclusion, 3-0.

The Pirates had pulled ahead of Meadows by half a game just one day earlier when they shut out Arlington 1-0.

This time it was Mike Saugling notching the goose eggs as he upped his loop mound mark to 3-1 while Meadows was posting their eighth conference victory in 13 tries. He allowed just three hits and fanned five in weaving the shutout.

Saugling's teammates gave him all the offensive support he needed right under the gun. Palatine starter Rob Hughes was tapped for a leadoff single by Glen

Mike Saugling

Zawacki and two groundouts later he was at third base.

Then successive walks to Steve Breitbell, Dan Jordan and Scott Green forced Zawacki home. Dave Thorstensen capped the rally moments later with a two-run single to left, giving Saugling his 3-0 cushion.

Hughes settled down after that and shut out the hosts on two hits the rest of the way but still absorbed his third setback in five circuit decisions. Palatine's record is now 8-6.

CARDS, KNIGHTS TIE

A sacrifice fly that evolved into a double play, also forged a late deadlock between Arlington and visiting Prospect Tuesday and sent the game into more overtime innings than either side probably bargained for.

The flyout, off the bat of Rick Purcell, knotted the game at 1-1 in the bottom of the sixth. Half a frame later the rains came in earnest, forcing the game to be replayed entirely at a later date.

The showers spoiled a nifty mound battle between Knight Rich Streng and Cardinal Don Kamps. Kamps had been tapped for a run in the very first inning and then blanked Prospect on five hits and just one walk over the next six stanzas.

Streng ran into his only costly jam in the sixth when George Vukovich and Dar Townsend greeted him with back-to-back singles, Vukovich advancing to third. Jim Letzel pinch ran for Townsend and pilfered second but he was later picked off that base on the sacrifice fly by Purcell that brought Vukovich in.

The first inning Prospect tally came about after leadoff hitter Jim Anderson singled, moved to second on a ground out and was passed ball to third. A single by Mike Radoli then brought him on in.

The Knights had another big opportunity in the fourth when Craig Nicholas singled and Anderson doubled him to third with two outs but a ground out squashed that threat.

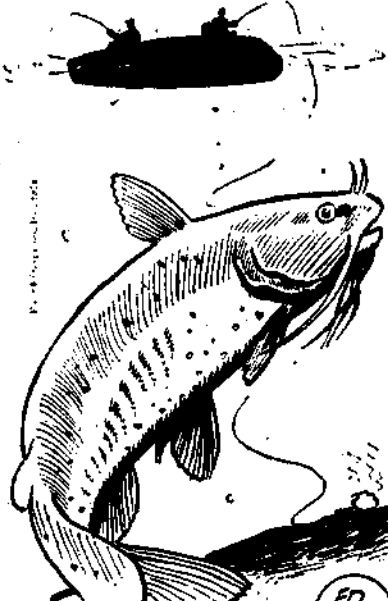

Arlington, meanwhile, loaded the sacks in the fourth with nobody out but could not manufacture a run. Streng finished with five strikeouts and Kamps fanned one.

Enrollment now being taken for Doug Buffone grid camp

Enrollments are now being accepted for the third annual Doug Buffone Football Camp. Open to boys 8 to 18, the pre-season instructional and training camp will be conducted July 7 to 13 at North Central College in Naperville.

Purpose of the camp is to help boys get physically and mentally prepared for the coming football season, according to Buffone, veteran Bears' linebacker. It will be patterned after National Football League training camps in terms of conditioning, drills, strategy, fundamentals and the techniques of all offensive and defensive positions, he said.

"Interest and participation in our camp have increased steadily since we organized it in 1972," said Buffone. "So far this year we have applications from boys in Burlington, Iowa, and Racine, Wis. as well as the entire Chicago area, so apparently the word has spread that we have one of the premier football camps in the Midwest."

The staff consists of prominent Chicago area high school football coaches plus several members of the Bears, including Wally Chambers, Carl Garrett, Gary Huff, Rich Coady, Bob Asher, Bob Newton and Earl Thomas. Gregg Schumacher, former University of Illinois and Los Angeles Rams star, is the camp director.

Camp tuition is $125. More information can be obtained by writing to Doug Buffone Football Camp, 339 W. River Rd., Elgin, Ill. 60120 or by calling 697-3700.

Two tourneys to try again today

Rainy conditions Wednesday forced the cancellation of the opening round of the Carol Stream (Glenbard North) regional tournament.

Maine West also postponed its district championship.

Tourney host Neal Hudson, Glenbard North Athletic Director, announced that action is slated to begin today beginning at 4 p.m. with two games being played simultaneously. Should the weather cooperate, the championship battle will take place on Friday beginning at 4 p.m.

If wet conditions wash out today's action, two games will begin at 4 p.m. Friday, with the championship set for 10 a.m. Saturday.

At Maine West, the Warriors and Maine North will play at 4:00 p.m. today for the title.

a few points.

"They (his team) can go as far as individual pride and desire will take them. I think we should be fighting for a trophy."

Conant's Buddy Edmondson will also be fighting as he represents Dist. 211 for the second time in three years. Edmondson, the Maine West District winner, failed to win a point as a sophomore. Now the more mature senior will be ready mentally and physically to do some winning.

"We've never won a point in the state," said Roger McCoy, his head coach. "Realistically, we realize he's not going to win it. We feel like he can win two or three matches and, hopefully, get into the top 16."

Edmondson is the only player from his school district to ever reach the state finals.

Bringing a team to the big meet for the sixth time in seven years is Roger King. His Maine West doubles team — Steve Niles and Jim Wittbold — finished second in its own district.

HELPING FREMD to its highest finish ever in the Harris, at the net, and Steve Adashek. The Viking assisted their team to a share of second with Prospect. Arlington won the team title.

Wheeling, Prospect, Conant show power but only two win

Wheeling, Prospect and Conant scored 20 or more runs in single games Monday afternoon in Mid-Suburban girls softball, but only Wheeling and Prospect picked up victories.

Wheeling topped Palatine 21-8 and Prospect tripped up Conant 22-20.

In other action it was Arlington over Elk Grove 18-10, Fremd over Buffalo Grove 16-8, and Forest View over Hersey 12-11.

Kroc deserves a break today; his baseball Padres are in the cellar

by DAVID SMOTHERS

Ray A. Kroc, formerly of Arlington Heights, made his first big splash as a major league baseball owner by insulting his team. It may be he was as surprised at himself as anyone.

But it was not really surprising from a man who had spent much of his 71 years suffering, agonizing and, by his testimony, dying with the Chicago Cubs.

Cub fans know what it is to both love and suffer. Kroc would be the Cubs' owner now if Philip K. Wrigley had not turned down Kroc's last ditch effort to buy them just 24 hours before he made his whirlwind deal for the San Diego Padres last January.

Kroc must have felt as if he were back in Wrigley Field when, on opening day at Padre Stadium April 9, he noted that his team was losing its fourth straight game, was trailing 9-2 in the eighth, and was already guilty of three errors.

He got on the public address system and told the crowd of 39,000 "I've never seen such stupid ball playing in my life."

That isn't really Kroc's style. He generally aims to please.

That is one reason he is worth roughly $500 million and could afford to shell out $12 million of it for the Padres for little better reason than that he suddenly felt like it.

The Chicago-based hamburger empire known as McDonald's is, of course, the big reason Kroc was able to do it. Kroc didn't invent McDonald's. That was the work of two brothers named McDonald who used to run the most successful hamburger stand in San Bernardino, Calif.

But Kroc-Chicago hustler, high school dropout, fanatic Cub fan, honky tonk piano player, Florida real estate plunger, hot shot paper cup salesman — did create the McDonald's Corporation which now covers the United States not to mention Canada, Japan, Australia and Europe with more than 2,800 'burger dispensaries, with the end of it all still far from sight.

McDonald's, on March 1, reported record revenues and sales for 1973 of $51.9 million, or $1.31 per share. It is a $3 billion business and Kroc owns 20 percent of it. That leaves him pretty well fixed.

He thinks he was able to build McDonald's because, for one thing, "You get the kind of respect that you show and that you earn." He hopes to apply the same principle to the Padres and ruminate about them, the Cubs and McDonald's in an interview, sitting behind the desk he occupies as chairman of the board of McDonald's Corporation.

Kroc is a compact and abrupt as Padre fans discovered sort of man, looking about 15 years younger than he is, dressed this day in a proper corporate uniform of grey chalk-stripe suit and light blue shirt, stoking his nonstop conversation with short drags on king-size filtertip cigarettes. There are McDonald's monograms on his cuff links, on the elevator doors, everywhere.

There is no sign of the Padres around the McDonald's sanctum. The McDonald's people emphasize the team is strictly the boss's baby and no part of the hamburger empire. So says Kroc also. After all, he frankly espouses McDonald's as a religion. The Padres hardly rate with anyone in that league yet.

That is not to say Kroc does not believe McDonald's and the Padres make a great pair to draw to. The key is wholesomeness.

"Baseball belongs to the people and McDonald's belongs to the people and there's a meshing, so that's great," he said. "It's wholesome. And if we win it will be a lot more wholesome than if we lose."

"My first love outside of my personal life is McDonald's and always will be. The Padres will always be like a stepchild to my one and only child, McDonald's."

McDonald's was put together 'with sweat, blood and a few tears and the happy faculty of attracting excellent talent that grew with it."

"There's an inner something in McDonald's," Kroc said. "McDonald's is not a restaurant. It's not a hamburger business. It's a religion. The people in this are believers. They believe we serve the most wholesome food in the cleanest, most wholesome atmosphere that can be put together."

Kroc was a 51-year-old peddler of malted milk mixers in 1954 when he made his move to become a tycoon.

He had dropped out of high school, lied about his age, and at 15 joined the same World War I Red Cross ambulance corps as fellow Chicagoan Walt Disney.

Then he turned the lessons he learned at the knee of his music teacher mother into a fling as a ragtime piano player around Chicago. When the Florida land bubble swelled in the 20s, Kroc was there, trying to make a buck. When it burst, Kroc was on his way back to Chicago, broke.

He got a job selling Lily-Tulip Cups and stuck to it for 17 years as Midwest sales manager. Along came the "Multimixer," a new gadget which could mix six milkshakes at the same time. Kroc became exclusive salesman. The rest, according to the annals of the McDonald's public relations department, "is history."

The story, told and retold in fast food biz circles, is that one day in 1954 Kroc got an order from a place in San Bernardino for eight of his mixers. He wondered what kind of outfit would want to shake 48 shakes at the same time. He went west to check it out and found the brothers McDonald, Mac and Dick.

Mac and Dick were selling cheap hamburgers and making money hand over fist through much the same strict production control techniques McDonald's still employ.

Kroc talked his way in, gaining the franchise to the brothers' name and trade secrets. He bought his way in, by selling his malted milk franchise for $100,000 in 1960 he also needed some money to finance a divorce and swinging a $1.5 million loan from an insurance company.

Along the way, McDonald's Corp., was born and opened its first store in the Chicago suburb of Des Plaines in 1955. Kroc sold two McDonald's franchises elsewhere that year. By 1960, there were 228 McDonald's, by 1965, 738; by 1970 — there is no point in continuing, to the hamburger eaters of America it was, indeed, history.

But Kroc still didn't have what he wanted. He wanted the Chicago Cubs. How he wanted the Cubs.

On the day before he bought the Padres, Kroc acted on a report that Wrigley had sold a hotel in Phoenix Hope blossomed. "It was the only thing I ever heard of that Mr. Wrigley sold and I thought maybe that the Cubs might fall into that category and he might consider selling," Kroc said. "But he didn't."

The next morning Kroc left Chicago to meet his wife in Los Angeles. He picked up a paper to read on the way. "The first thing I did when I got onto the plane was I turned to the sports section and what do I see. Marjorie Everett was turned down by the National League to buy the Padres," he said.

"The wheels started turning. So the second thing I said to my wife after I said 'hello' and kissed her was, 'Honey, what would you think if I bought the Padres?' My wife looked at me as much as to say, 'What is that, is that some kind of mission?' I said the Padres is the National League San Diego baseball team." And she said, "Well, if that's what you want, you go right ahead."

"We got to the hotel, I grab the phone, and call my lawyer, Don Lubin, in Chicago and said, 'Get ahold of Buzzie Bavasi and tell him I want to buy the Padres.' That's how it was — a spur of the moment."

According to Bavasi, the deal was rapped up in three hours.

Wheeling wins in tourney play

Wheeling backed up Gary Wennerstrom's shutout pitching performance with a 10-hit outburst to trim Grayslake 4-0 yesterday and advance to the finals of the Waukegan Regional Baseball Tournament.

Coach Ron DeBolt's Wildcats will now play with the winner of today's scheduled Zion-Libertyville game for the tourney title on Friday at 4:15 p.m.

Wennerstrom was idle for two weeks because of the rain delays and with teammate Willie Kozel handled district pitching chores. But it didn't seem to bother him. He limited the Rams to just three hits and a like number walks in leading the 'Cats to their second straight shutout triumph.

After a scratch infield single in the second, he was not touched for a clean hit until the sixth and then yielded a harmless two-out triple before fanning a pinch hitter to end the game. He finished with nine strikeouts.

Wheeling bats, meanwhile, were busy from the start. In the second, they produced the game's first run when Steve Rymer slugged a triple to left center and scored on Howie Brauer's single.

George Kaage, who finished with three hits, led off the third inning with a legged homer over the center fielder's head. In the fourth, he also helped the cause with a run-producing single after Ken Margalski had driven home Wheeling's third run with a single.

Wheeling had hits in all but the sixth and played errorless ball while hiking its overall record to 12-3.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

New format to salute mineral heritage

The U.S. Postal Service will issue its first block of four stamps in a diamond-shaped format June 13 at Lincoln, Neb.

The 10-cent stamps commemorate America's Mineral Heritage and will be released at the National Gem and Mineral Show.

Designer Leonard F. Buckley achieved the near-diamond shape by rotating the square format of the individual stamps and the block of four 45 degrees. In use, such rotation will be encouraged by the positioning of the stamp denomination — the numbers appear horizontally only when the stamps are rotated.

The stamps depict amethyst, rhodochrosite, tourmaline and petrified wood cut and polished as gems. They will be printed in eight inks. Three passes will be made through the offset press with yellow and blue being applied the first time. Brown and gray will be added during the second pass with green being applied on the third pass through the press. The Glori press will be used to add purple, brown and red. There will be 48 stamps to a pane with one plate number.

Requests for first-day cancellations should be sent to Mineral Heritage Stamps, Postmaster, Lincoln, Neb. 68501, enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Requests for single 10-cent stamps will be honored providing the name of the gem desired is indicated in the upper right corner of the cover.

Collectors wanting the block of four stamps affixed must prepare the envelopes with extra care. The blocks will be mounted in the diamond format and will measure 3 1/2 inches from point to point of the diamond, including perforations. The diamond block will cover more than half of the front surface of a standard envelope so covers must be addressed at the extreme lower left.

A NEW POSTIQUE, postal store and philatelic center, was opened May 11 at the Indianapolis, Ind., post office.

A specially postmarked and cacheted envelope commemorating the event are available to collectors.

Send your requests to Postique, Main Post Office, Indianapolis, Ind. 36206. The envelopes are 35 cents each or three for $1.

COMPEX '74 (Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicagoland) opens Friday and runs through Sunday, May 26, at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago.

The 52-table bourse represents dealers from all parts of the U.S. and Canada. Also participating is the Swedish Postal Administration and the United Nations Postal Administration. Several groups will hold meetings during COMPEX, including the spring meeting of the Germany Philatelic Society and the Space Topic Study Unit.

A special privately prepared souvenir card and separate cachets for each exhibition day will be available to collectors.

COMPEX '74 opens each morning at 10 a.m. at the LaSalle Hotel, 10 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

Q. Please settle the new right-turn law requirements. What are they?

A. Drivers in Illinois may turn right at a red stoplight after FIRST coming to a complete stop and making sure that it is safe to turn, unless, there is a sign posted stating, "No Turn on Red."

Law for today...

Q. When I purchase paperback books, I am charged a state sales tax. Is this legal?

A. Yes. A state sales tax is charged on books of any kind. This does not apply to magazines or newspapers.

Q. Will I receive only a warning ticket for driving faster than 55 m.p.h. on Illinois highways?

A. No. All law enforcement agencies were obligated to give the standard speeding tickets for a person driving over 55 m.p.h. in an area marked with such a speed limit. That now is a moving violation and will be recorded against your driving record.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Mortal assures contract first

Today's hand represents a lesson in conceit. You arrive at four spades in a match-point game, after a Stayman response to your notrump opening bid.

West starts out with three rounds of diamonds. You discard a club on dummy's jack and are ready to operate.

If you are a really conceited player you see that all you have to do to make an overtrick is to finesse successfully in trumps and clubs. Furthermore, you will surely guess at least one of two finesses so you lead a trump to dummy's ace and return the jack. The finesse loses and a trump is led back. Now it is up to you to find the queen of clubs. Maybe, you do. Maybe you don't. In any event the overtrick has disappeared.

A more ordinary mortal says to himself, "If trumps break three-two I can be sure of my contract without doing any guessing at all. I still can try for five odd if the queen of trumps drops as a doubleton. I can still guess about the queen of clubs if trumps are four-one. Also it is two-one that trumps will break."

Then he plays ace and king of trumps; ace, king and queen of hearts and a third trump. Someone takes the trick and is end played.

158 employees back at United

United Air Lines welcomed back 158 flight attendants this week — they were among the 650 furloughed across the United system on Jan. 7. A total of 245 of the furloughed attendants were based at O'Hare International Airport.

The first 44 were recalled April 23. Another 50 attendants will be retrained in June, boosting the ranks of the O'Hare based group by 252 persons prior to the peak summer travel season.

A special "welcome back" reception was held at the United training facility in Elk Grove Twp. on Wednesday.

Sears net income up

Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s net income for the first quarter of 1974 was 9.7 per cent higher than last the same period in 1973. The announcement was made by Arthur M. Wood, chairman and chief executive officer at the firm's annual meeting held Monday in Chicago.

Net income for the quarter was $131,126,000 or 63 cents a share, compared to $119,527,000 or 76 cents a share in the first quarter of 1973. Net sales for the period ended April 30 were $8.8 per cent gain to a record $2,893,922,000. Sales in the same quarter of last year were $2,660,448,000.

Wood said he expects sales to rise 7 to 9 per cent over the 1973 results in the second half of the year, and "barring unforeseen interruptions to the world-wide flow of raw materials, 1975 should be a stronger year than 1974."

NI-Gas earnings drop

Northern Illinois Gas Co. reported earnings per share of $2.68 for the 12 months ended April 30, on net income of $39.9 million. This compares with earnings per share of $3 and net income of $41.8 million for the same period one year ago.

Supply curtailments, warm weather and customer conservation efforts were the primary reasons for the decrease in earnings. Despite the decline, the company stressed that it is important to maintain the common dividend at its current annual rate of $1.92 per share. This rate of 46 cents a quarter has been in effect since May, 1973.

New Bankers Assn. head

Illinois Bankers Assn. members elected William O. Kurtz, president of Chicago's Metropolitan Bank and Trust Co., as president. Elections were held during this week's convention in Peoria. Kurtz succeeds James P. Ghiglieri, president of Citizens National Bank of Toluca. The association may consider proposals which would support a limited branch banking concept in Illinois later in the year, it was announced at the convention.

Floor-covering pact

Imbrex Division, of Jerry Smith & Sons announced that an agreement has been reached with Nairn Floors International, Ltd., of Scotland, for the distribution of Nairn's line of resilient floor covering. The self-backed sheet floor covering will be marketed under the trade name of Aero-Flor. Imbrex, based in Irvine, Calif., maintains a warehouse in Arlington Heights.

Week honors nation's small businessmen

Small Business Week is being observed through May 25.

According to the Small Business Administration, small firms supply jobs to 34 million Americans while Fortune Magazine's 500 biggest corporations employ 13.5 million workers. The estimated 5.7 million small businesses in the United States account for 37 per cent of the gross national product (GNP).

Wilson Johnson, president of the National Federation of Independent Business, said government regulations cause problems for the independent enterprise second only to inflation.

"All business firms were once small," he said, "and if the American economy is to continue to grow and produce more jobs, small businesses must have the proper climate to induce growth and increase competition in the marketplace."

Crop storage plant to expand

J. H. Brinker, president of A. O. Smith Harvestore Products Inc., announced that its crop storage unloader plant at Elkhorn, Wis., will be expanded from 80,000 to 125,000 square feet.

The expansion will more than double plant's manufacturing capacity over the next few years, Brinker said. The Elkhorn plant produces unloading equipment used in Harvestore livestock feed storage structures.

Henry P. Staudt, plant manager at Elkhorn, said the expansion would add between 100 and 150 persons to the plant's work force over the next several years.

A. O. Smith Harvestore is based in Arlington Heights. It is a subsidiary of the A. O. Smith Corp.

Panel discussion prompts ideas

New math of marketing: 6-packs becoming 4-packs?

by LEA TONKIN

Next time you go out and pick up a four-pack of... did we say four-pack?

Well, don't say we didn't tell you so. Brace yourself. The "six-pack" lingo we know so well, related to beer, cola, iced tea, whatever, may become an archaic term.

It's all up to the marketing experts and, if what came out of Tuesday's President's Panel discussion on the role of marketing in a shortage economy is any guideline, we can expect to be buying four-packs.

BUD FRANKEL, president of Abelson-Frankel Inc., a marketing services agency, said packaging changes may be in the works as manufacturers try to keep retail prices down. The "four-pack" and a smaller can of deodorant spray were used as examples.

Also, according to participants in the session sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry, shortages and inflation will force manufacturers to boost not only price levels, but marketing efforts as well. The "hard sell" may come back.

"What is emerging is an ever increasing pessimistic consumer, and one whose attitude is changing," Frankel said. "Items that up to now have been construed as necessities, are suddenly becoming luxuries."

INNOVATION IN marketing is a must, Frankel said. "If we don't take the lead, our competition will and we will be left in the dust of a very elective consumer, one who is guarding a very scarce commodity... money."

Charles McErlan, executive vice president of United Air Lines, said fuel shortages and rising costs necessitate a simple strategy: "Get the most flying out of the fuel available, maintain a quality product and let the public know what's happening."

Communications with the public through advertising enabled the airline to maintain customer confidence when flight schedules were shaved to compensate for fuel supply gyrations, he said. As the airline industry phases out the last of the discount fares and seeks revised rates for certain flights, public contact will be important, he said.

DONALD BLANCHARD, president of Sunbeam Appliance Co., said consumers will notice the disappearance of some "specials" this summer. These promotions will be limited to high profit margin items, as manufacturing costs rise, he predicts.

"The real challenge to marketing is to maintain profitability. Material costs continue to soar — interest rates too. There is no alternative to sharply rising prices when you deal with millions of pounds of aluminum, copper and steel, zinc and plastics," he said. "Fortunately, I guess, competitors are in the same boat."

Leonard Lavin, president of Alberto-Culver Co., said inflation is eating into consumer pocketbooks while the cost of producing consumer goods continues to climb. Highest priority is given to aggressive sales, marketing and promotional projects in consumer markets during slack economic periods, he said.

Management seminar Friday

Decisions in management and systems, a one-day seminar, will be presented Friday by the Assn. for Systems Management and the association's O'Hare chapter. According to John Parsons, a Mount Prospect systems consultant, the seminar is geared to the needs of management personnel, systems analysts and others who influence business decision. Registration fees are $60 for members and $75 for guests. For additional information contact Michael Opala at 261-2000, ext. 381.

Impeachment hearings to be 'tasteful'

NEW YORK — The three major television networks are attempting to keep live coverage of the House hearings on the question of the impeachment of President Nixon as tasteful as possible.

ABC, CBS and NBC, which will rotate live coverage of the public sessions of the House Judiciary Committee investigation, already have been criticized for their decision to broadcast the inquiry.

Some critics say the hearings will become a circus if TV cameras are turned on. Others say it will demoralize the nation and wash dirty laundry before the world. Still others say it unfortunately will become the ultimate soap opera.

"TELEVISION CANNOT control whether or not the hearings become a circus," said William Sheehan, senior vice president for ABC News. "The people inside the meeting will decide the outcome."

Live coverage of the public sessions

Television in review

was expected to begin Tuesday, but the committee has not completed its executive sessions.

This is the second time in the history of the United States that a President has been involved in such legal proceedings. President Andrew Johnson was impeached after the Civil War, the era of pen and pad journalism. Television now is presented with this task and is attempting to respond in a proper fashion.

The principal effort on the part of the networks will be to keep technicians and equipment operating inside the House meeting room as unobtrusive as possible. They have assigned ABC to handle pool coverage for the first two weeks of the public sessions. CBS will follow and then NBC.

'Wait Until Dark' on Channel 9

"Cat Ballou" (1965). Pre-activist Jane Fonda teams up with Lee Marvin in this entertaining Western. Fonda plays a school teacher who teams up with a cattle rustler and his drunken uncle, posing as a preacher, to stage a train robbery. 3:30 p.m. Channel 2.

"Wait Until Dark" (1967). This is one play that has been adapted successfully to the movie version. Audrey Hepburn is excellent as a photographer's blind wife, trapped in her apartment by an evil trio headed by (you'll hate him) Alan Arkin.

You can't scrub away a 'dirty' suntan

I have a little girl who is 7 and her underarms and neck turn black when they get sunburned. It's very embarrassing to me when people ask me if I never clean her neck.

I know it's cruel of me to use Lava soap on her, but I did and then she cries a lot afterward.

People have told me that it's because she was once real thin and then as she got older she gained a lot of weight. I think she weighs about 110, but she is big for her age. She looks about 10 or 11 years old.

I have tried everything on her from soaking her in the tub with soap. It is the skin pigment that she has. The pigment in the skin is many layers of cells beneath the surface of the skin. It turns dark on exposure to sun.

That dark color is not dirt. You can't do a thing about it with soap. It is the skin pigment that she has. The pigment in the skin is many layers of cells beneath the surface of the skin. It turns dark on exposure to sun.

The only way you can do anything about the color is to cover the area and prevent it from being exposed to the sun. That is hard to do in a little girl. If she has no other problem, I would think you should ignore it.

If she is really much too large for her age, have the pediatrician look at her and be sure she doesn't have a gland problem that is causing her to grow too much and which might affect her pigment or skin coloring. Meanwhile, don't hurt her with trying to wash off the color.

Will you please tell me the correct amount in milligrams of vitamin C for me to take each day? I am 68 and female.

You could get a lot of different answers on that. People do have different requirements for vitamin C. Perhaps the best guide is the new recommended daily dietary allowances that were revised in 1973 by the Food and Nutrition Board, National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council.

They recommended that women in your age group should have 45 milligrams of ascorbic acid a day. That, of course, would be in a normal diet containing adequate amounts of fresh fruits and vegetables. The recommended daily dietary allowances are the values which are sufficient to maintain good health in most healthy individuals. If you had an illness or even perhaps if you smoked a lot of cigarettes, then the amount you needed each day might be increased.

Some vitamin C enthusiasts feel that everyone should take much larger doses than this. Some of these larger doses can cause irritation of the digestive tract in some people and in very large doses cause additional problems. It is unlikely, unless you have some medical problem that would cause difficulties, that you would have any trouble, however, with as much as 1,000 milligrams a day. I'm not recommending that you take that much, but that's still within the safe range.

If you'd just take one all-purpose vitamin tablet a day it will contain in it adequate amounts of vitamin C to supplement your normal diet intake. I do not mind recommending an all-purpose vitamin tablet taken once a day for individuals who are concerned about their vitamin intake. It is one way to be sure that older people who sometimes neglect proper dietary intake really do get adequate amounts of vitamins. These daily type preparations that are available usually do not contain excess amounts of vitamins that could cause you any problem either.

George R. Busse, president, and father George L. Busse . . . in northwest suburban real estate since 1923.

George L. Busse Real Estate

12 E. Busse Ave., Mount Prospect • 259-0200

The George L. Busse & Co. slogan of "Integrity in Real Estate" has a deep rooted significance in the northwest suburbs. Since "Grandfather" George Busse opened his first office on the corner of Emerson St. and Northwest Hwy. in Mount Prospect in 1923, the company has been involved in the major economic and real estate growth of the area.

From that beginning grew a solid heritage of real estate accomplishment that has become a symbol of integrity, experience and trust in and around the northwest Chicago suburban area.

In 1950, the firm was incorporated under the name of George L. Busse & Co., Real Estate. The namesake, George L. Busse, is still active in the company and takes great pride and enjoyment in reminiscing about the good old days in the northwest suburbs.

The current president, George R. Busse, has extended the same sales and service philosophies of his father and grandfather. "We have chosen to concentrate on developing a relatively small but active sales force of professional, dedicated people who can offer more personalized sales efficiency . . . people who are socially and ethically involved in the community and who can deliver a totally satisfactory job of real estate service. We have installed a complete Insurance Department, headed by Terry Frakes, and we are quite active in commercial and industrial real estate as well as residential," says George R. Busse.

In 1973, George L. Busse & Co. celebrated its 50th year of continual real estate business in the northwest suburbs. The offices have grown in the same location since 1926, having undergone several face liftings and expansions while watching the village of Mount Prospect and the neighboring communities grow from essentially farm lands to their present status.

George L. Busse & Co. has taken part in many major real estate transactions that have shaped the economic growth of the area. George L. Busse Co. transacted the sale of the property that is now Randhurst Shopping Center and was also involved in the sale of the Woodfield Mall property and many of the local community shopping centers and business locations. The present company includes nine full time professional real estate salespeople plus a full time insurance installation.

Says George R. Busse, "We're proud of our 50-year reputation in area real estate. We like to think that we have combined this old-fashioned experience with today's modern real estate practices to offer our clients a totally ethical brand of service that assures satisfaction."

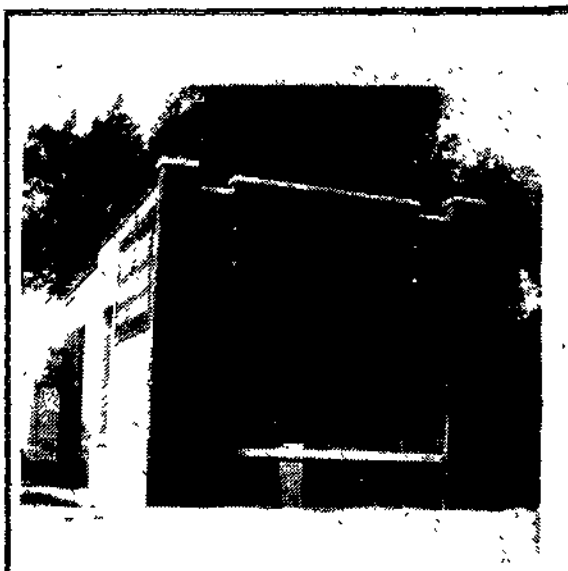

"We may not be the largest real estate company in the area but I believe we offer the very finest service and deep rooted real estate experience that our 50 years in business has developed."

The original Busse Co. office from 1923-26 at Emerson St. and Northwest Hwy.

Ask about management, real estate official advises

Next time you go hunting for an apartment in addition to considering the location, the building and the rent, find out if the building is managed by a professional firm or by the owner.

"From the resident's standpoint, living in a professionally-managed building should mean fewer problems and greater living satisfaction," suggests William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of the company's property management division.

Sally's remarks are made in the light of rising costs which are prompting some builders to save the management fee by running their buildings with their own personnel.

"But unless the builder has 1,000 units or more to manage, he really can't compete with the quality management advantages a professional firm offers," says Sally, who is also chairman of the Property Management Council of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Among the advantages cited by Sally which should be important to apartment residents are these:

The professional firm is constantly dealing with a wide variety of management problems in buildings across the Chicago area, and hence is more aware of what apartment residents want and expect. Contrast this to the owner-run building where the manager knows only what's going on in his building and has no outside resources to draw on.

"Professional management firms are experienced in tenant relations and are oriented toward giving resident satisfaction to keep turnover down," Sally notes.

Because of its size and range of operations, the professional firm attracts the most qualified property managers and can pay higher salaries and offer advancement incentives. This should reflect itself in a better-operated building and more satisfied residents.

"The owner-run management operation not only has trouble competing for personnel, but when it loses a manager, it may not be able to replace him or her quickly," Sally says. "So the residents have no management during this period to deal with."

While the owner or builder has other problems on his mind besides management, such as financing and constructing new buildings and holding costs down, the professional management firm spends all of its time on managing buildings. Sally says a specialist generally does a better job than someone who dabbles in everything.

Professional managers can afford to be objective in telling a building owner what needs to be done in improving the property. This is characteristic of nearly all outside consultants. Their judgment tends to be more objective and impartial than the person who is the owner or on the owner's staff, and who must defend his job.

Because of its scope of operations, the professional management firm can usually buy supplies and services at a more favorable price than a single building can. This helps keep the building's operating costs down, which should interest residents who want to avoid larger rent increases or decreasing service.

Finally, the professional management firm, because of its 100 per cent involvement in management, is better able to keep abreast of the laws and regulations affecting building management than the owner can; in fact, the professional manager must keep his knowledge current to protect his reputation. Unless the owner is careful about these legal requirements, he can get into trouble which could reflect itself in lowered services for his building residents.

The Baird & Warner executive acknowledges there are advantages of the owner-managed building. The owner should theoretically have a greater concern about the property than an outside firm. He should be better able to control management costs. And he should be able to get things done faster, because the management people are his.

"But these advantages, while they look good on paper, seldom work out in practice unless the owner or builder has enough units to merit forming a management operation as big as the professional firms," Sally said. "Only by doing that, and staffing it with full-time professionals, can he really compete. Otherwise, he'll 'drop the ball' and the building will suffer."

April sales leaders are named by Kole

Kole Real Estate, Ltd. announces the seven top sales associates for the month of April.

They are Clarence Sorensen from the Arlington Heights Office, Nikki Claffey from Barrington, Terry Allind of the Des Plaines office, Ruth Lutzw from Mount Prospect, Steve Hetman of Palatine, Paul Sorce from the Rolling Meadows office and Jim Holder from Wheeling.

Kole sales volume was close to four million last month.

Why our rents are 20% lower.

If you could rent a brand new apartment today at 1972 prices, would you do it? You bet! With prices what they are today, a saving of more than $600 per year in rent is worth looking into.

How can we offer you such a saving?

First, our financing was arranged more than two years ago when interest rates were low. (Would you believe 6 1/2%?)

Second, our construction contracts were let 15 months ago when prices were 20% less than today.

Third, we have eliminated superfluous amenities such as saunas, conversation pits and putting greens, so that you are not paying for something that you never use.

We do, however, offer everything you expect in a quality apartment community. Included in the rents below are wall-to-wall carpeting, heating, central air-conditioning, parking and membership in our private swim club. Solid, sturdy brick construction (concrete floors so you can hear your neighbor), and 22 beautiful landscaped acres to roam in.

Jelen named top Starck salesman

Bud Jelen, a sales associate in the Hoffman Estates office of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, emerged as the top salesman for the month of April. Winners in the other Starck offices included Irene Markgraf, Schaumburg; Edna Stewart, Arlington Heights; Stan Fill, Mt. Prospect and Carol Schaub, Palatine. The Starck Salesman of the Month Award is based on a point system for listings obtained, sales and referrals that are sold by the over 700 member firms of RELO, Inter-City Relocation Service.

RELO is the international referral organization of which Starck is a member. Jelen, his wife Marie, and their daughter reside in Hoffman Estates. He is a graduate of Loras College in Dubuque and is a board member of School District 54. His other activities include the Schaumburg Rotary Club, the V.F.W. of Hoffman/Schaumburg and the Knights of Columbus of St. Theresa's in Palatine. Jelen has been associated with Starck for two years, and April is the second time this year that he has led the Hoffman Estates office.

Land America responds to condominium needs

Condominium home ownership, which got its start in crowded urban areas a few years ago, is now much in demand in the suburbs.

Real estate experts, closely charting population movement and housing demand in the Chicago market, predicted the suburban move toward condominiums prior to its happening.

Land America Corp. selected 47 tree-studded acres in Hinsdale, across from the famous Graue Mill on Salt Creek, for its $60 million condominium project upon realizing this housing need.

Walter Kosch, president of Land America, shunned the vertical approach seen in cities and instead ordered designers to create nearly 600 condominium homes with a low profile which would blend into the countryside.

The area is one of the oldest suburban communities in DuPage County. It borders on Oak Brook and is just a few minutes from the Oak Brook Sports Core, shopping center and golf course.

Kosch points out that condominium home ownership makes sense in the 1970s in the suburbs, as much sense as they did in the crowded cities in the late 1960s.

Graue Mill Country Condominiums are in the higher price brackets. Prices range from $75,000 to as much as $150,000.

Buyers can work directly with Land America's own staff of architects and interior designers to create their own customized condominium homes. In all, buyers can select from 18 individual plans.

Homes can include wood-burning fireplaces. Kitchens can be equipped with charcoal grills. In some designs, living and dining room walls will rise above roof-line levels.

Interiors will range from 1,900 square feet of living space to as much as 4,000 square feet, Kosch said.

Residents will have their own clubhouse, several swimming pools, sun-decks, saunas, a private health club and other amenities.

Lifetime membership earned by salesman

Dale Hadaway, vice president of T. A. Bolger Realtors' Elk Grove office, has announced that sales associate John Lindsay has sold over 1,000,000 dollars worth of real estate in the first quarter of 1974.

John Lindsay

Lindsay establishes a new company record and heads him toward the Two Million Dollar Sales Club.

This is the third consecutive year that John has topped the one million dollar goal, and he is now eligible for a lifetime membership in the Million Dollar Club.

In addition to his sales activities, John participates with the Boy Scouts of America and the Elk Grove Jaycees. John, his wife, Debbie, and their two daughters have lived in Elk Grove Village for the past three years.

Preparing for move early helps experts and family

Tell the average family they have to move and every molehill in their possession immediately becomes a mountain.

"Yet, moving," according to William P. Bradley, vice president of Chicago-based moving company, "can be a cinch — particularly if a reputable moving firm is selected to pack and transport a family's possessions. For one thing it gives everyone a good reason to unload all the unnecessary stuff they've been collecting through the years."

"Planning ahead, careful selection of a mover and allowing enough time to prepare for the move are musts," Bradley added. If you plan to change homes during the peak moving months (May through October), here are some questions and answers to help you:

Q. What should we do to get ready for the movers?

A. Learn as much about moving as you possibly can. Decide ahead of time what belongings you want to keep and what you want to discard. Make lists of things to be done. Make allowances for unforeseen complications because some will arise.

Q. What arrangements can I make for my plants?

A. Many times, movers will not be responsible for transporting plants, especially if you are leaving town. There are firms who specialize in this. Ask your mover for help in locating a firm. If you are moving in town, plan to transport them yourself a day or so ahead of your actual move.

Q. What should I do about our cat and dog?

A. On the day of the move, see that your pets are kept out of the way. The best thing to do is to arrange to have them stay with a friend or at a kennel. If you are moving out of town, plan to take them with you or ship them by air. Your mover can help you make the necessary arrangements. ICC regulations prohibit the mover from taking your pets.

Q. My children are afraid they won't like the new town we're moving to. What can I do to make it easier for them?

A. If you can, take them for a visit and let them see the school they will be attending and their new neighborhood. If you can't do that, visit your library and show them pictures of the town and let them read up on it.

Q. How does a moving company charge customers?

A. For out of town moves, charges are based on weight, special services provided and mileage. Local moves are charged by the hour, the number of men hired and special services provided.

Q. When do I pay for the move?

A. Credit can be extended if prior arrangements have been made in accordance with government regulations. If such arrangements have not been made the move must be paid for as soon as the shipment arrives at its destination and before the truck is unloaded.

Q. How do I pay for it?

A. Payments must be made in cash or by certified check, money order, traveler's or cashier's check.

Q. What protection is offered by a mover to cover loss and damage?

A. If the customer releases his shipment to the carrier, at the carrier's liability, the protection is 60¢ per pound per article for moves out of state. For moves within Illinois, the carrier's liability is 30¢ per pound per article.

Q. For additional protection, can I declare a greater value for my possessions?

A. Yes, for a nominal cost you can. You can also declare a higher value than the carrier's liability by paying a premium for each $100 valuation. In fact, your mover would recommend that you do this.

Q. What can I expect once the movers have unloaded our furniture? What can I do to make it easier for us?

A. Have a floor plan ready and as the movers unload each piece of furniture, tell them exactly where to place it. The cartons should be labeled so that you can direct the movers to place them in the appropriate rooms.

Q. I'll be moving in two months. Should I start organizing now? What's the best way to do that?

A. Start getting ready immediately. Now is the time to get rid of outdated magazines, clothing and unneeded furniture. Review your medicine chests, straighten out your closets and cupboards and start using up the extra canned goods in your pantry. Plan a garage sale to get rid of some things. Decide what you will donate to charity and what you will give away.

Q. I am going to pack some of our things. How should I do it so they won't break?

A. Your most valuable and fragile possessions should be left to the movers to pack. Ask them for advice, too. For less fragile items, pack with lots of paper for protection. Place crumpled wads of paper between the items so there won't be any space and use sturdy containers that one person can pick up when full.

Q. The mover is going to pack all the things we have in our closets. Will it help if I empty the closets for them?

A. Absolutely not. Let them do it themselves. It's their job and they know how to do it efficiently and quickly.

Q. What are the best size boxes to use for packing?

A. Ask your mover for advice. They should be sturdy, easy for one person to carry when full — and not heavier than 50 pounds.

Q. Is there anyone in charge of the moving crew? What is his job?

A. The driver foreman is in charge. He will take inventory of your shipment, will direct the loading and unloading of your belongings. He generally does not carry furniture to the truck himself and is not "loading" when he doesn't do so.

Q. We are moving out of town. The mover told us that we could expect our shipment to arrive over a three-day spread. What should I do to help my family if the van comes on the third day?

A. Be prepared! Pack a suitcase for each family member. Include articles for hygiene, easy care clothing, school work and other essentials. Better to make sure that Dad's briefcase does not get packed with the china than to worry about it during your move. Also it's good to know that your mover will give you 24 hours advance notice if they won't be arriving on schedule.

Re-define housing needs, says banker at conference

Government, banks, builders and thrift institutions must re-examine the basic approach to the nation's housing needs, stated Willis W. Alexander, executive vice president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

Alexander, speaking here to more than 600 bankers attending the ABA national conference on real estate finance, stated that bankers are willing to "join with all groups who service housing to find a more reasonable definition of what is meant by the nation's housing needs."

In light of current social and economic conditions, housing needs have changed significantly since 1967, Alexander stated. At that time, a President-appointed committee report revealed that 26 million housing units would be needed by 1978.

"The goal of 26 million new housing units by 1978 became one of the most quoted figures in national housing and financial publication," Alexander said.

A report released this spring, prepared by the Harvard and MIT Joint Center for Urban Studies, estimates that 23.3 million new units will be built during the 1970-1980 period. That's not significantly different from the 1967 Kaiser Committee report, Alexander noted.

What is significantly different in the joint study report is that an estimated 13.1 million households are considered to be "housing poor." That is, having people in conditions that are physically inadequate or too expensive or too small for the number of people.

"Taking into account the broadened definition of inadequate housing used by the Harvard-MIT study, it seems clear we have not made significant progress in meeting our national housing goal since 1967," Alexander stated.

The current skyrocketing costs of housing today have put the prospect of owning a house beyond the reach of a good many Americans, he observed. "More people are turning to townhouses, condominiums, co-ops, mobile homes and apartments to meet their shelter needs," Alexander stated.

"We need to re-examine exactly what it is we're talking about when we say we are going to need 23.3 million new housing units by the end of this decade," he emphasized. It is possible that we are still talking about housing to meet yesterday's needs, he said.

"We've seen an unbelievably diverse list of bills proposed and sometimes passed on the promise that they would help housing," the ABA executive stated. "All of this adds up to little more than a band aid approach to the problem."

The system of specialized financial institutions, limited to shelter-related lending does not serve the best interests of the citizen it was designed to benefit, he said.

"Such a system must still compete with the unregulated money market for funds," Alexander observed. "During periods of rising interest rates, these specialized thrift institutions will always be at a disadvantage in competing for scarce funds."

As an alternative, Alexander suggested that incentives to encourage all financial institutions to lend money for housing would better serve the industry.

"Any system designed to generate housing money must take into account the forces of a free market. A system of incentives would do precisely that," Alexander stated.

We must re-evaluate the nation's housing needs within the context of present-day housing requirements and we must establish a comprehensive approach to financing that housing, he said.

Realtor vice president applauds step to increase mortgage supply

"The Nixon Administration's announcement that it intends to deal with the current shortage of mortgage money is a step in the right direction and deserves the applause of all of us in the housing industry," said Art S. Leitch, first vice president of the National Association of Realtors.

The Administration proposals will have the short term beneficial effect of increasing the supply of money available for mortgages, Leitch added.

"Unfortunately, such actions do not address themselves to the fundamental problem of bringing interest rates down to the point where the average prospective homebuyer can afford the cost of a home," Leitch said.

"Pumping some $10 billion of mortgage money into the loan mechanism, as the Administration has said it will do, will certainly be a welcome move in those areas of the country in which the money supply has virtually dried up," he said. "But we would hope that the Administration would address itself to the key problem, which is the continued reliance on monetary policy as the sole weapon to control inflation."

"Rather than sporadic tinkering with the basic mortgage money mechanism, what is sorely needed is a return to sound, responsible fiscal policy on the part of a resolute Administration and Congress. Only in that way will inflation effectively be attacked and interest rates brought down to a realistic level, so that the average family's dream of home ownership can be realized," Leitch concluded.

Modernization, maintenance subjects of Chicago exhibition

The economic and functional importance of the $30 billion modernization-maintenance market will be featured at the first-time Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition at McCormick Place in Chicago, June 11 through 13.

The unique show, designed to meet the specific needs of those who maintain the renovate industrial, commercial, institutional, governmental and large apartment structures, will underscore the importance to industry in a three-way program of educational conference sessions, exhibits and special tours of some of Chicago's prime examples of modernization and maintenance.

In a series of conferences by national authorities, the topics to be discussed are: "Life Safety;" "Operating and Maintenance Savings with Modernized Mechanical/Electrical Systems;" "Energy Management in Your Buildings;"

"Physical Maintenance," and a special session on security.

Authorities will also detail how modernization and maintenance has increased in importance in the face of the energy, money and supply crunches and soaring cost of industrial zoned building sites.

Models of building renovation will be observed first-hand at special tours of famous Chicago buildings June 10, one day prior to official opening of the show. The tour features close examination of the $9.3 million modernization program recently completed at the world-famous Board of Trade Building that included installation of new duct shafts and central air conditioning units plus complete modernization of all washroom facilities.

Bell honors a 'top salesman'

Odahowski, of 302 Dover Lane, is an account salesman at the company's Arlington Heights marketing office.

Renovation innovations also will receive special attention at tours of the Merchandise Mart, Kemper Building, Chicago School System renovation program, University of Chicago and the Mercy, Michael Reese and University of Chicago medical centers.

The educational and commercial exhibits displayed at McCormick Place feature the latest products and services in plumbing, temperature control, electrical lighting installations, flooring, custodial care, security and safety as applied to industrial modernization and maintenance.

Registration and special tour information available from Industrial and Scientific Conference Management, 222 W. Adams St., Chicago, 60606.

Com Ed buys Barrington site

The sale of a 152,000-square-foot land site in the Barrington Square Center for Industry to Commonwealth Edison Co. has been announced by Nardi and Co., Chicago-based industrial realtors and developers.

An Edison spokesman said the company plans to build a transformer distribution center on the site. More power is needed to serve the needs of the growing northwest suburbs, he noted.

The Barrington Square Center for Industry, located at the southeast corner of the Northwest Tollway and Barrington Road is, with the Commonwealth Edison sale, 90 per cent sold. The center is one of eight industrial sites being developed in the Chicagoland metropolitan area by Nardi and Co. The broker in this transaction was Nardi and Co.'s Michael E. Bagan.

Hidden Creek townhomes located on historic site

ONE OF THE PLANS at Kennedy Brothers' The Groves of Hidden Creek is a three-bedroom, two-bath Cape Cod townhome with a cathedral ceiling in the living and dining room. Hidden Creek is the fourth planned unit development in suburban Chicago planned by Kennedy Brothers and is located northeast of Palatine.

Kennedy Brothers are having the grand opening of The Groves of Hidden Creek, their fourth planned unit development in the Chicago area, located on an historic site two and one-half miles northeast of Palatine.

Before many settlers arrived in Chicago, the Indians held sacred the land around The Groves of Hidden Creek. They believed the water of Hidden Creek, had great healing power and celebrated sacred rites beside the creek each spring.

White settlers appeared and by 1855 the property was being farmed by a man named Wood. That same year he lost his farm when the land was auctioned at the Cook County Courthouse, some 26 miles away by horseback. Wood arrived at the auction minutes after his land had been sold for $1.25 per acre.

Today, on that 120-acre site, four furnished model townhomes have been built. When the $60 million community is completed, it will have approximately 1,400 residences comprised of townhomes, garden courts and several types of condominiums. There also will be recreational and commercial facilities.

The development is a joint venture between Kennedy Brothers and Edelberg-Mayer Associates, commercial developers in Chicago who will handle the leasing and management of the commercial center.

There will be four phases of construction at Hidden Creek. The first unit of Phase I will include 310 townhomes in ranch, two-story and Cape Cod designs. The homes will be grouped in clusters of two, four and six townhomes. The dual clusters will have no common walls — only garages side-by-side between the two townhomes.

Phase I also will include a recreation area. It will have a clubhouse with a party lounge, fireplace, kitchen, teen room, billiard and game room, meeting rooms and locker rooms. Also in the phase will be a swimming pool and children's tot lots.

Another part of the recreation area will be Shadow Lake, one of two man-made lakes that can be used for boating in summer and ice skating in winter.

Architects for Hidden Creek are the Interplan Practice, Ltd. of Lemont. The contemporary design of the townhomes features vertical masonry siding with accents of brick, cedar and window boxes. Special interior architectural features include two-story living rooms, lofts and vaulted ceilings.

Standard features of all townhome models include wall-to-wall carpeting; contemporary kitchens equipped with gas range and oven, dishwasher and disposer; marbleized window sills; marbleized vanity tops in the bathrooms, and insulated glass windows with screens. Each home also has an attached garage, sliding doors leading to the patio area with privacy fencing and exterior landscaping.

The four furnished townhome models were decorated by the interior design firm, Richard Honquist & Associates, A.I.D., Addison. They are open weekdays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. and on Sundays until 5 p.m.

Hidden Creek is located on Baldwin Road at Dundee Road, a half mile west of Route 53 near Palatine. It is close to

I-90 and the Northwest Tollway, and a few minutes from the North Western Railroad Station. O'Hare International airport is just 20 minutes away.

Kennedy Brothers, headquartered in Deerfield, began building single-family homes in north and northwest suburban locations in 1932. Their first multi-family development, The Trails at Woodfield, opened in January, 1972, and won a national award from Better Homes and Gardens. The company's other current planned unit developments include Bright Oaks in Cary and The Vistas of Park Forest south. Single-family home communities include Windham Manor in Northbrook and Willow Walk in Palatine.

Baird & Warner publishes booklet on condominium management

What boards of directors should know about the management of condominium and cooperatives is explained in a new booklet published by Baird & Warner, Inc.

"Managing a condominium or cooperative, in which the residents are the owners, is far more difficult than managing a rental property, where the residents have no say," notes William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the company's property management division.

Effective management is vital, he continues, if the property is to maintain its value and the owners remain satisfied.

The booklet points out that the owners, through their elected board of directors, have three options for management: Retain professional management, run it themselves or hire a full-time manager.

What management tasks have to be performed, how a professional management company operates and how management costs are figured are presented in the remainder of the booklet.

Copies are available at no charge at any Baird & Warner office or by writing the Property Management Division, Baird & Warner, Inc., 10 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

No great outlay of money needed to conserve energy

by DOROTHEA BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Energy conservation is a year 'round effort but, just as most families found cooperation did not require chilly homes last winter, it need not mean a hot summer.

Since 20 per cent of the total energy used in the United States is used for heating and cooling 70 million living units, energy conservation at home is important. Even small savings by individual families can add up to tremendous amounts on a nationwide scale.

The savings that help the conservation effort will be felt, too, in the family budget since energy prices are at record levels.

The key to savings is careful planning — and a lot of little things. No large outlay of money is required, and anything spent will be more than repaid in terms of fuel savings and comfort.

For the homeowner, a first consideration should be the plantings around his house. Ideally, there should be deciduous trees on the south and west to shade windows. This will cut down on summer heat which pours in while allowing winter sun to enter.

If you do not have suitable trees, check with your nurseryman before planting. Some types grow to provide shade more rapidly than others.

It has been calculated there is a difference of 40-50 degrees in ground level temperature between grass and flagstones or concrete. Think carefully before you build a sunny patio outside those sliding glass doors. Shrubs and lawn will give more of a cooling effect.

Awnings on windows and shading patios can do much to reduce heat levels from summer sun.

Another practical measure, whether you live in a house or apartment, involves the use of light-colored shades or drapes.

Dark colors absorb heat. The National Bureau of Standards says light colors will reduce heat gain through windows by 50 per cent. They should be drawn when sun is high.

Engineers pinpoint windows as the biggest energy drain in the home. One says, "One square foot of glass can lose as much heat as ten square feet of wall. This same single pane of glass in summer will store and reradiate some of the sun's heat."

Storm windows, or double glazing, by trapping air between panes of glass, provide insulation, cutting heat loss from the house in winter and reducing heat gain in summer.

The Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality estimates that an investment in storm windows could save between $48 and $126 annually in cold areas and, for air-conditioned homes, result in additional savings by cutting heat gain in summer. The Oak Ridge National Laboratory says storm windows left on during the air conditioning season can reduce energy output by more than nine per cent with resultant money savings.

When possible, install air conditioners, if you must use them, on the shady side of the house.

Keep windows closed. Leave storm windows up on those windows not needed for ventilation.

If you're not using an attic fan, open windows early in the morning to admit cool air and freshen the house.

Avoid adding extra heat by turning off lights, television sets when not in use. Do laundry, ironing, baking and other hot tasks in the cool of the morning.

Delay in selling real estate often caused by wrong price

Deciding the sales price of your home by yourself is like selling diamonds without a professional appraisal of the true value of the gems, according to a real estate official.

"In either case," says Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, Baird & Warner, Inc., "you may have an extremely unhappy experience unless you seek professional help."

If you're planning to sell your house, Walters points out, it's important to know that the price you paid, plus improvements, plus your best guess of inflationary factors do not necessarily determine the current market value of your house.

"There are a number of factors which may affect the sales price, including the general economic climate, the current real estate climate in your community, neighborhood changes, the age of your home, general wear and tear, and others," said Walters.

All things considered, he added, the amateur has to be brilliant or darned lucky to offer his home for sale at the right price, which is one that's fair to seller and buyer and leads to rapid turnover.

If he's not, he runs the risk of overpricing and this could lead to these consequences:

- If you guess on the low side, you may gain a quick sale but a sacrifice of thousands of dollars based on current market conditions.

- If you guess high, you will not attract serious buyers. People shopping for homes learn what going prices are and they'll know that you are asking too much. Your "for sale" sign could become a neighborhood landmark.

- If you persist in an inflated price that you calculated from emotional attachment to your house or improvements that may have little interest or worth to buyers, it can get an undesired reputation as a dog. People wondering why it's been up for sale so long will suspect that there is something fundamentally wrong with the home and you may eventually have to settle for less than it's actually worth because you asked too much to begin with.

- If your house remains unsold for too long a period, you'll also be burdened with continuing carrying costs for such items as taxes, insurance, interest or investment and repairs and maintenance.

- If you have to sell your home in a hurry because you're leaving the city or because you've bought another home, a delay in selling could result in your not having the down payment for your new home. Or, if you can swing the down payment, you may find yourself paying on two mortgages at the same time.

"No two homes are exactly alike," notes Walters. "Even if the house next door to yours was built identically, you may have made more extensive or fewer improvements than your neighbor; you may have maintained your home so that it's in better or worse condition than the house next door; your landscaping may be more or less inviting and your house in general may be more or less attractive than your neighbor's. There is no quick or easy way for a non-professional to make a pricing decision."

Baird & Warner sales personnel base their price recommendations upon these factors:

- A consideration of the general economy in the area, the current local real estate situation, neighborhood changes, the age of your property, wear and tear and the amount of money that has been spent on capital improvements.

- Each of Baird & Warner's 30 Chicago and suburban offices maintains — in one form or another — a morgue file that provides a history of current sales.

"Our salesmen often check these sales records prior to calling on the prospective seller to list his house," Walters says. "And these are actually sales prices, not asking or rumored sales prices."

- The value of the home to be sold will be compared with others. Strong and weak points will be listed, and a comparison will be made with other similar homes that have been sold, minus the inflation that human nature adds to the real sales price.

- Location plays an important part in the pricing of a home, and the professional is well-versed in the variations of property values in different sections of the city and in different suburbs.

Walters comments, "You and a relative may have very similar homes, but in different suburbs. Because land values are dictated by location, it's possible that there will be a wide variance in the worth of the two homes."

How long will it take to sell your home if it is properly priced? Walters reveals these statistics from a Baird & Warner sales analysis:

- Homes put on the market overpriced by 10 per cent still are on the market after 6 days. You'll eventually wind up selling at a fair market price anyway, and you'll have been delayed for unnecessary months.

- If you overprice by 4 to 6 per cent, it will take an average of 46 days to sell — after you have dropped to a realistic price.

- Homes listed at their actual selling price up to 2 per cent above the selling price are sold in 33 days.

"This," Walters concludes, "is one of the key reasons why a seller should list his home with an experienced professional who is eager to help the seller get the home into the market at a fair and reasonable list price."

It's that little 'extra,' that last bit of effort," says Klock, "that separates the mediocre sales person from the true successful and professional salesman."

Lincoln Federal announces plans in Hoffman Estates

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association will open a branch in Hoffman Estates around Dec. 1 on a five-acre site at 1400 N. Gannon Drive between Higgins and Golf Roads. It will be Hoffman Estates' first savings and loan association.

The total program calls for an expandable two-story-and-basement financial building and a six-story commercial structure, scheduled in two phases, Lincoln Federal President Frank J. Kinst announced.

Plans by Godfrey L. Duke, AIA, anticipate two bronze glass buildings connected by a covered mall by 1979.

Earlier tenancy commitments for the 75-foot six-story segment could push forward the completion date of the total project.

Expected to be in operation in late November or early December, the financial building will have two floors and basement of 10,000 square feet each. The lower level will contain employee facilities and five community rooms as well as Lincolniana and currency exhibits.

Surrounding the initial building will be a pre-cast concrete colonnade of white quartz aggregate supporting a wide roof overhang. The 4,500 square foot mall will provide a cultural center where concerts and art exhibits can be held.

Atop the building will be a mechanical roof screen with the Lincoln script logo facing all four directions. A 24-hour maximum service automated postal substation with walk-up windows is expected to open simultaneously with the Lincoln offices.

Landscaping of the grounds will include pools and a 26-foot fountain with controlled spray that can be reduced on windy days.

Among the trees and shrubs planned for the five-acre tract will be ash, pin oaks, hawthorns, Russian olive, flowering plums and honeysuckle. Some trees will be 30-35 feet tall at time of planting.

A green belt will separate the Lincoln development from residential properties to the west. It will incorporate a four-foot berm and a seven-foot stockade fence.

South of Lincoln on Gannon Drive is the Hoffman Estates municipal building. North, on the opposite side of Higgins, is Hoffman Estates High School.

Phase One will provide parking for 126 cars. Later, 363 cars will be accommodated, 53 of them underground.

Eight drive-in lanes, sheltered by illuminated glass dome canopies, are also planned.

Founded in 1916, Lincoln Federal occupies two-story-and-basement quarters at 6655 W. Cermak Road, Berwyn. It was built in 1958. In front is Avard Fairbanks' statue of Lincoln the Friendly Neighbor, site of Berwyn's annual Lincoln's Birthday ceremonies.

Lincoln Federal, which has increased its assets by 190% during the past decade, now claims assets of $145 million.

Passes million mark in residential sales

T. A. Bolger announced last week that Vice President Dale Hadaway has exceeded the million dollar sales goal for the 5th consecutive year.

Dale Hadaway

Hadaway is already a lifetime member of the Million Dollar Sales Club, and last year was credited with over two million dollars in residential real estate sales.

He is a licensed real estate broker, a G.R.I. holder and was recently installed as a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

In June, he will be attending classes in Denver to earn his designation as a C.R.B. (Certified Residential Broker).

In addition to managing Bolger Realty's Elk Grove office, Hadaway is involved with the Rotary Club, Jaycees and the Elks Club.

Turnberry Country Club overlooking one of the three Turnberry Lakes.

Turnberry

Where the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room.

There are 1100 acres of woods, hills and valleys to be hiked, biked, explored and enjoyed. Three beautiful lakes of nearly eighty acres to be fished and sailed. And the private Turnberry Country Club includes a 6901 yard championship golf course, a majestic French Normandy Clubhouse high on a hilltop with superb views of greens, fairways and a scenic lake. An Olympic-size pool set dramatically into the hillside and tournament-quality tennis courts.

Living in Turnberry you can enjoy all of these leisure time activities fully... you see it's only a 10-minute drive to the suburban Crystal Lake North Western Station. Expressways to O'Hare and all of Chicagoland are just 15 minutes away.

Each custom-designed home must have architectural approval. No two homes may be alike. Protective covenants assure that the basic residential nature and way of living in the community will never change.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room.

Sites average 3/4 of an acre and, more important, have a minimum of 150 feet of frontage at the building line. All are improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities.

Homesite prices start at $18,000 and may be purchased under contract with a small down payment... providing the option of building now or in the future. Drive out today or, if you can't, phone or write for a free brochure.

Draw heated air in attic outdoors with ventilating fan

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — When outdoor temperatures soar to 80-plus as they will be doing in most parts of the country before long, the attic space of your home may reach 130 to 150 degrees.

Whether or not you have air conditioning, it's a wise idea to do something about that heat, and one of the best things you can do is install an attic ventilating fan.

Efficient cooling, with or without air conditioning, calls for forcing the mass of superheated air out of the attic. Drawing outdoor air and "flushing" it through the attic space can reduce the downward heat flow through ceilings by more than half, according to the U.S. National Bureau of Standards.

For homes with air conditioning systems, this will reduce the energy drain since the attic ventilation cuts the load on conditioners so they no longer have to run constantly.

Lowering of attic temperatures by 30 to 50 degrees will contribute greatly to the comfort of homes with no cooling system. Used properly and in conjunction with other ventilating units, an attic fan can help keep air circulating throughout the house and bring in cool air at night.

The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI) to provide guidelines for proper attic ventilation has established standards for certified ratings of "powered attic space ventilators" and for their selection and installation. To qualify for HVI certification a fan must be tested independently at Texas A & M University under a uniform laboratory procedure.

The standard, which applies to self-contained fan units mounted on roof or wall to ventilate attic space only, calls for ten air changes an hour or a minimum of 0.7 cubic feet per minute per square foot of attic floor area, plus 15 per cent more capacity for dark roofs.

HVI says the simple formula based on attic floor area has proved practical for houses of various sizes and shapes in various climates and there seldom is need to calculate air changes and do the often complex mathematics of figuring attic volume. Air intake vents of one square foot of free opening per 300 cfm of fan capacity are specified, so as to assure suitable movement of air.

Powered attic space ventilators are equipped with thermostats, set according to manufacturer's instructions within a reasonable proximity to outside air temperatures and control buildup and retention of heat in the structure of the house. Although the main job of attic ventilators is to control summer heat, HVI says, they also can be used to remove water vapor which escapes from living space to the attic in winter and can cause structural damage if not controlled.

Powered attic space ventilators are designed for easy installation between framing of walls or roofs in new and existing homes.

In air conditioned homes, HVI says, controlled attic ventilation starts offsetting its cost right away in saving electricity used for running the cooling unit. Sometimes further savings occur when ventilation permits selecting a lesser capacity air conditioner at time of installation or extends equipment life.

Whatever the design of the home and however equipped to cope with summer heat, a new level of hot weather comfort can be expected with a fan that draws superheated air from the attic.

ARLINGTON REALTY

ARLINGTON REALTY

AN OLD ROOM doesn't have to be furnished in a traditional manner, says designer Elroy Edson. Black walls with vinyl wall covering insets modernize this family room. Easy care carpet in bright orange complements the black and white hounds-tooth check covers on the casual chrome chairs.

A word to the wise

Furniture shopper considers fabric

Fabric selection is just as important as design and color when buying new furniture. The advice for spring furniture shoppers comes from Elroy Edson, vice president of interior design for Selig Manufacturing Co.

Edson is concerned that customers get their money's worth in these days of rising prices.

"When you're out looking in a furniture department, don't just choose a style or color or shape that fits into your room. Furniture can take a big bite out of the budget, and it's smart not to be swept along by a salesman's enthusiasm," according to Edson.

"While it's never wise to be completely inflexible, don't sign on the dotted line until you are personally sure that you are buying the right item."

WISE INVESTMENTS in furniture are not always easy for average consumers. Thus, this designer offers several guidelines for proper upholstery fabric selection.

Edson suggests that the color a customer chooses should be determined by the room in which the furniture will be used. Pale colors are usually preferable for bedrooms and dining rooms, while zestier tones are more sensible for playrooms, children's bedrooms and living rooms which receive daily wear.

This is true for fabrics made of natural fibers which are more perishable than the manmade variety. It pays to investigate synthetic fibers and vinyls, suggests Edson. Many look exactly like cotton, linen or wool. So much so that you have to read the fiber content labels very carefully. Since these manmade materials are easy to clean, they broaden the color range that can be used in playrooms and living rooms which are actively lived in. Even a white sofa, if it's covered in a synthetic fabric can give years of use in a home with energetic youngsters, says Edson.

THE PERIOD of the rooms should also be considered when choosing fabrics and colors. Very formal French or Italian furniture looks best in pale colors and with dressy fabrics such as satin and silk, according to Edson. Mediterranean and English (called traditional) styles are enhanced by robust jewel colors and heavier weights of fabrics such as velvets and brocades.

As for modern, almost any color is suitable and almost any of the informal fabric weaves may be used. Since natural or "no" colors are so important today, Edson suggests that rooms which sport this look should contain a contrast of textures to make them more interesting. Nubby tweeds, for example, contrast with crisp patent leather to add interest.

When you are actually looking at upholstery fabrics in the store, be sure to check the backing, advises Edson. Many fabrics today have acrylic backings which hold the woven yarns together. When the upholstery is made, the filling clings to this backing so the fabric doesn't creep or get out of shape from wear.

FABRICS WHICH are loosely woven so that one can see through them when held up to the light may be suitable for draperies but not for upholstery, no matter how beautiful they are. Edson feels that upholstery fabrics should be densely woven or acrylic-backed to give proper service.

And while you're holding that upholstery fabric, check the label to see whether the fabric has been treated with Scotchgard or Zepel, he advises. If not, be sure to ask for this stain-resistant treatment. Many manufacturers automatically give their fabrics this finish, says Edson, but it's worth the few extra dollars, if a fabric hasn't been treated.

Many furniture manufacturers also rate their fabrics as to cleanability, which gives the customer some guide as to durability. Manufacturer's directions for cleaning which are usually tucked into the furniture before it is shipped should be saved. If the information is not readily available, the buyer may write the manufacturer or arrange with the store to obtain cleaning instructions.

ALTHOUGH CLEANABILITY and durability are important in a home with growing children, Edson cautions against over-stressing practicality. His point is not to rule out a perishable fabric if it is destined for a room that gets but intermittent use.

"Don't wait for your children to grow up and leave before you purchase what you really want," he says. "By exposing them to good design and color, they will be able to progress towards greater appreciation of nice things as they grow older."

Lastly, Edson advises consumers to keep abreast of new trends in the fabric world. For example, several years ago designers seldom recommended mixing more than one patterned fabric in a room. Today, however, the pattern-on-pattern look is fresh and appealing.

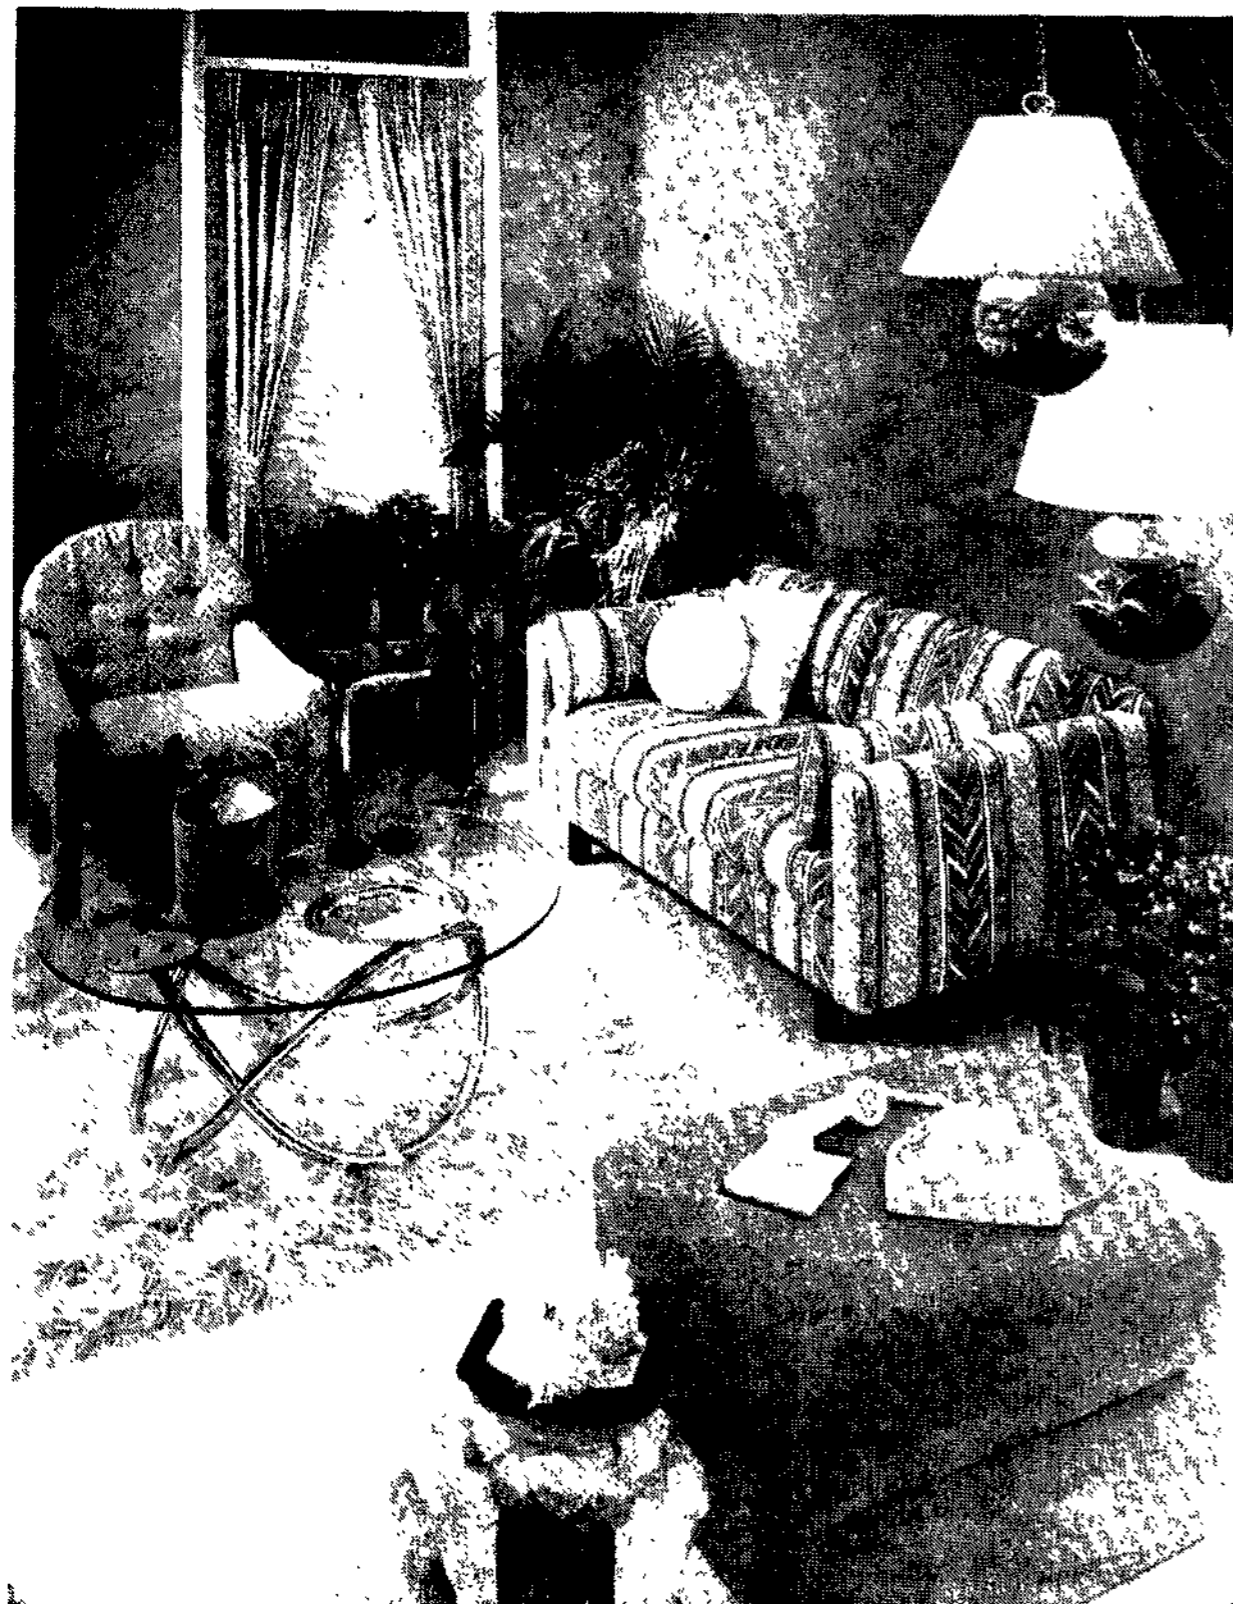

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

TODAY'S DESIGNERS no longer hesitate to mix patterns. In this living room, Elroy Edson of Selig Manufacturing Co., created a Palm Beach look in bright pistachio colors of pink and green. One wall is pink, the other green. Print on the loveseat combines the two. Most chair and draperies are a mini-print in green on white for a pattern-on-pattern effect. The accent cushions are also pink.

A dream realized

She wanted to write songs

by HELEN HENNESSEY

Gerry Richelson is a lot of bright yet practical things done up in one attractive package. She is a mother of grown children, vice president and creative director of Venet Advertising in New York, the author of many poems published in leading magazines, a humorist, a song writer and certainly the epitome of what today's woman can do to assure a successful career for herself.

"I never wanted to do anything, really," she said with a smile. "But given the fact that I had to do something, I wanted to be a song writer more than anything else."

You may think you have never heard of this talented woman lyrics writer. But if you own a television you must have. Her most popular song isn't any new rock hit. But who, at least in the East, hasn't heard Pathmark's energy song, "Save an N, Save an R, Save a G?" That's hers. She wrote the lyrics and the music was written by Malcolm Dodds. He did the CBS special on the making of commercials.

HE'S MUSICAL director of the Pontiac Choir Boys radio and TV spots and was filmed in a long sequence on how commercials are made. He has also done arrangements for such performers as Patti Page, Eddie Fisher and Nat "King" Cole. The energy song, as it's called, has been recorded on Paramount Records with the Newark Boys Chorus.

"I started to work with Malcolm," Gerry said, "when he came to the agency to write music for commercials."

"I always had an aptitude for writing verse. For many years while I was raising a family, I wrote humorous verse for Norcross and Hallmark."

"Humor is in very short supply these days. So when I got into advertising and we needed lyrics for something, I was the one asked to do them."

Gerry has had poems published in Woman's Day, The Saturday Evening Post and other magazines.

"WOMAN'S DAY doesn't publish poems," she said. "But they loved the one I submitted. You won't believe this but they said, 'We'll publish it if you promise to never send us another.' They did, too."

Gerry wrote the messages for the supermarket Hot Line. And the team worked daily at that time until 1 and 2 a.m.

Arthur Fiedler was so impressed with the Newark Boys Chorus and the energy song that he wants the boys to do a gospel album with him.

What led her into this business? "When my husband died," Gerry explained, "there I was with the kids, I had no chance to plan my career."

"When you're 18, you don't have to have much on the ball. When you are in your 50s, you do. But you can get a job."

"When you are my age you have a good deal of integrity," she added. "I know it's commercial writing that I do, but I still write in the best way I can."

"IF YOU ARE experienced enough," she continued, "you get enough confidence to know you can do what you're doing better than a lot of others."

She also wrote the lyrics for Prince Day (macaroni) and "Hey There, White Rock Girl." She has written children's books and special material for entertainers.

"In my spare time," she said, "I write promotional material for the Individual Trust Department of the Chase Manhattan Bank." Spare time?

After saying adieu to this dynamic lady, guess who had no energy left? (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

FTC bans 'safe' claim on pesticides

The 1960s furor over pesticides has died down, partly because the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), born in the heat of this controversy, banned such infamous offenders as DDT, and partly because the whole issue has been overwhelmed by other concerns.

But the Federal Trade Commission this month quietly took a step that could well be more dramatic in its effects than any actions ever taken by the EPA in regard to pesticides.

The action was this: The FTC prohibited Union Carbide Corp. and Hercules Inc. from claiming their agricultural insecticides are safe.

SPECIFICALLY, THE FTC charged that Union Carbide falsely and deceptively claimed that its products Sevin and Sevinol are safe to man and the environment, that they will not drift, and that they should be applied generously and can be handled without fear of harmful effects.

Hercules was charged with falsely claiming its product Toxaphene has caused no problems of environmental pollution, will not harm one's children or neighbors, and is safe, non-toxic and hazard-free with respect to man and his environment.

Both companies were ordered to state clearly and conspicuously in all future advertising concerning safety: "Stop! All pesticides can be harmful to health and the environment if misused. Read the label carefully and use only as directed."

At the same time, the FTC issued a complaint against the FMC Co. charging that advertising claims for five of its products (Furidan, Ethion, Thiodan, Sinnox and Polyran) constitute unfair and deceptive practices in violation of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

IT IS THE FIRST time the FTC has ever entered the pesticide picture, with the exception of a few very restricted cases in the 1960s. It is the first time pesticide manufacturers have been called into account for their advertising claims.

And, according to the FTC, the action is seen as having "far-reaching impact" upon the entire pesticide industry. Paul Chassy of the FTC's advertising substantiation office in Washington explained that the standards being imposed on Union Carbide and Hercules are being written into Trade Regulation Rules, which will apply to all pesticide manufacturers.

The rules for the industry are expected to be published this summer, Chassy said. They will carry the force of law.

According to Chassy, the standards accepted in the orders against these two companies "constitute the type of standard at minimum that the Commission will expect the rest of the industry to live up to."

THE STANDARDS of advertising will conform to the principles stated in the EPA's regulations, the FTC said. Chassy added that the FTC had cooperated with the EPA in determining what advertising claims were allegedly false, based upon the scientific information the companies had submitted to the EPA.

All pesticide products must be registered with the EPA, which is supposed to review all the data submitted and decide whether the product will be permitted into use and under what precautionary circumstances.

This review process, and particularly the data submitted by the companies, came under severe criticism during the 1960s when the responsibility belonged to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. That agency was charged with laxness in requiring adequate data and adequate review to insure that products were safe for the uses intended.

NOW, IN ADDITION, to the data which companies must supply to the EPA to get products registered, they must also substantiate all advertising claims through scientific data.

However, Chassy said that "as a rule of thumb," if a claim is approved by the EPA in registering a product, the FTC would probably consider it substantiated. If it were not approved by the EPA as part of the registration data, it would not be acceptable for advertising.

Inflation hits flower bed

Geraniums used to be attractive, cheap little pot plants. I always have associated them with Molly Goldberg, hanging out her Brooklyn apartment window yelling "yoo hoo" to a neighbor.

A gardener could fill all the holes in the flower garden by buying a dozen or two pretty little geraniums.

Like milk in the half gallon, I remember when geraniums were 39 cents; then they went up to 49 cents a pot, then 59.

Over the past couple of years, there seemed to be a geranium war — one could buy geraniums at a reasonable price in one shop, and at another you thought you were buying gold. The discount garden centers sprang up and nobody knew what they were getting any more, or even if what they bought would grow.

YES, I PICKED up a geranium (notice I can't afford to buy them by the dozen anymore) at a reputable flower place. When I checked out and the girl said, "That'll be $5, please," I nearly lost my teeth.

"You're mistaken," I returned, "I only bought that one geranium."

"That's the price," she said. I couldn't believe it. Granted, it was a nice geranium, a big Ruth Marie geranium, a gorgeous geranium, in fact, but $5 for what is still — basically — a Molly Goldberg yoo-hoo.

Flowers, like everything else, have increased in price, but if this is any indication of what the consumer can expect, it's going to be worth a gardener's while to hold a few plants (if you can afford them in the first place) over the winter and make your own cuttings in the spring. Times were when people thought you poverty-stricken if you did that kind of thing, but times have changed.

NOW, ACCORDING to the May 9 issue of Florist Review, rooted geranium cuttings sell wholesale for $140 a 1000 tops, or anywhere from 16 cents apiece for a 2 1/4 inch pot to 65 cents apiece for a 4-inch pot. The most expensive ad price I saw in the magazine was a Mount Prospect florist selling Big Mamas for $3 apiece in a 7-inch pot.

All I know is somebody, somewhere is making a mint between the grower and the consumer.

Looking on the frugal side of things, I came across a new packaging idea for seeds that will really save money, because the seeds can be held from year to year without losing viability. There is no way that these seeds can dry out because they are "canned" — with a flip top lid, no less. If the gardener doesn't use them this year, they will still be good next year, which is not so with the regular packaged seeds.

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

THE SIZE of the can I bought is that of a small concentrated orange juice can, and it rattles intriguingly. The nasturtium seeds contained therein are unfumigated, untreated, organically-grown and preconditioned to moisture content. They are put out by the Norganic Foods outfit, Los Angeles 90633. (one half ounce for 8 cents). I happened to buy them in a health food store.

It's going to be funny to ask for a can instead of a package of seeds — if this can idea goes over — which is doubtful because it doesn't make for good vibrations with the seed industry and it doesn't promote planned obsolescence.

For those who don't care about geranium prices and aren't interested in canned seeds, can I interest you in some do-it-yourself fertilizer recipes for lawn, garden and house plants? Sorry, but that's on tap next week.

Coast Guard firefighters use baking soda

Dear Dorothy: Since you comment every once in a while about using baking soda to squelch grease fires, thought you might be interested in further information. The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadron have classes for the education of boaters on rules of the road, legal requirements and so on. One of the subjects taught is the use and legal requirements of fire extinguishers. Used most on boats is the two and three-fourths-pound dry-chemical fire extinguisher. This instrument is filled with baking soda — Glenn R. Hagan

Dear Dorothy: I was intrigued by the treatment to get mildew out of car carpeting—using fungicide in a hypodermic needle. If this isn't successful, a good car upholstery shop can detach the carpeting, pull out the padding and either clean it or add a new piece. With such a small piece, it won't be very expensive. —Joe Snowden

Dear Dorothy: My white enamel kitchen cabinets are quite yellowed. Do you have any method to restore them? —Karen MacDonald

Pre-natal classes at Alexian

Registration is now being held for Alexian Brothers Medical Center's pre-natal courses scheduled to begin the week of June 3. Classes are offered both Monday and Wednesday evenings for six consecutive weeks. Presented as a service to the community, the classes are open to expectant parents whether or not they plan to have their babies at Alexian Brothers.

The course is one method of fulfilling the preparation requirements for fathers who wish to be present in the delivery room for the birth of their babies. Permission for the delivery room privilege must be obtained in advance from the obstetrician.

The classes are based on the Red Cross program of pre-natal instruction and are divided into six segments covering conception through the first several months of life. Information included in the course concerns prenatal care for the mother, food for the pregnant and nursing mother, clothing needs of the newborn and techniques for bathing the baby. A film of the birth process is also shown.

Members of the maternity department nursing staff conduct the classes which meet in the cafeteria on the ground floor of Alexian Brothers at 7:30 p.m. on the six consecutive Monday and Wednesday evenings. Interested couples may register by calling 437-5500, ext. 594.

A Paddock review

English farce ends season with laughs

Both Des Plaines Theatre Guild and Guild Players of Hoffman Estates chose to end their theatrical season on a humorous note with the English farce, "See How They Run."

Based on a comedy of errors, one humorous though unlikely situation mushrooms into even greater hilarity with the introduction of each new eccentric character. "See How They Run" is a fast-paced offering with people jumping in and out of windows, hiding in a closet and exchanging identities. The most important thing to be gained from the three-acts revival, is uproarious, light-hearted, laughter.

The action takes place at the vicarage of Merton-cum-Middlewick in England. The vicar's liberal young wife who once had visions of becoming a great actress, stuns the matrons of the town by parading in pants and generally doing what she feels like, instead of what is expected of her. Particularly critical of her action is the town's busybody, Miss Skillon.

While her husband is out of town, Penelope decides to go to the theater with an old friend in the service. He exchanges his Army uniform for her husband's suit and collar to draw less attention.

Only the deception backfires. Adding to the confusion is an escaped Russian spy who knocks out Penelope's real husband, Rev. Toop, and causes a merry goose chase among vicars, visiting preachers, a zany good-natured maid and the distraught Miss Skillon, who takes to the cooking sherry quite well.

Theatre Guild:

by GENIE CAMPBELL
Expert timing and good characterization are two prime elements to a successful production of "See How They Run." DPTG is managing quite nicely in playing up both.

The theatergoer's only responsibility with a farce such as this one is to sit back and listen carefully in order to catch all the wry comments which so often are delivered with deadpan expressions. Corny? Of course, but also very funny.

The play is particularly enjoyable for the eccentric characters introduced. The one that first comes to mind is Arlette Dawson as Ida the maid, a young Cockney lass whose consternation over the mass confusion occurring around her is well enacted. Her simple mindedness and innocence are virtues on stage.

KAYE PEET is also delightful to watch in the less complimentary yet still hilarious role of the prissy Miss Skillon. Miss Peet, who first comes charging into the house like a mad buffalo and later is found loling on the couch high on cooking sherry adds extra flavor to all the crazy happenings. Her only fault is the tendency to let her English accent slip, though her inebriated scene makes up for everything.

Another supporting actor in the limelight is Jim Curren as the Rev. Arthur Humphrey, an absent-minded visiting preacher whose arrival couldn't be more timely.

Carrying the main action are Lucy Brodzik as Penelope Toop; John Schile Jr. as her husband, the Rev. Toop; and Patrick Baker as the visiting corporal. John Bruke is the austere Bishop of Lax and the intruder is played by Merv Solomon.

"See How They Run" will again be staged by DPTG tonight and tomorrow on June 1 and 8 at the Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines.

Guild Players:

by PAT ADAM

While Guild Players' production of "See How They Run" is entertaining, it could be more so if the actors would slow down and let the audience get the full benefit of its funny lines. Too often the wit is lost when the audience is still laughing at one line as a player delivers another.

Timing is of the essence in a comedy, and not every Guild Player seemed to appreciate that opening night.

Appearing in the supporting role of Rev. Humphrey, the visiting preacher in this comedy of errors, Roger Du Bois displayed the best timing. He delivered every line to achieve maximum effect, and his characterization of the rather mousy clergyman bewildered by all that's transpiring was flawless.

RUNNING A CLOSE second to Du Bois in playing his role to the hilt was Bob Moriarty as the Bishop of Lax, whose untimely arrival sets in motion the unbelievable mixup of clerics. Moriarty conveyed just the right sense of frustration and confusion as he tried to figure out who was the real Rev. Lionel Toop, the vicar who is married to the bishop's niece.

The role of Ida, the maid, is ideal for an actress with aptitude for comedy, and Peggy Valenzano met the challenge successfully though her performance lacked the polish of DuBois and Moriarty.

HARDING STEPHENS also turned in a good performance as Penelope's ex-

USO friend, Corp. Clive Winton. Stephens can speak as eloquently with facial expressions as with lines at times. He was particularly funny as he pleaded with Penelope to find his Army uniform that mysteriously disappeared from the trunk where she had it hid.

As Penelope, Sandy Reimann was disappointing. Her gesturing seemed forced rather than natural as would seem to befit the free soul she's supposed to be.

Bill Schumacher didn't seem quite at ease as the vicar both amused and annoyed by his wife's disregard for village conventions.

Irene Kaufman's portrayal of Miss Skillon, the snooty member of Rev. Toop's parish, was mixed. As the prim Miss Skillon, Irene seemed petulant and childish. Inebriated, she was hilarious.

THE ROLE OF the spy was played ably by Ken Boutelle Jr., and Marv Kaufmann did a good job in the lesser role of Sergeant Towers.

Despite its weaknesses, however, "See How They Run" is good for laughs and a light evening's entertainment. It can be seen again tonight and tomorrow night at the Vogel's Barn, Golf and Higgins Roads, Hoffman Estates. Curtain time is 8:30.

BOB meets tonight

Photographer W. Bruce Meyer of Palatine will be a special guest when Best Off Broadway Players meet at 8 tonight at the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kirchoff, Arlington Heights.

Meyer will display the photographs he took during BOB's productions of "Sound of Music," "Man of La Mancha" and "Funny Girl."

Following election of board members, talent bank chairman Marie Petersen of Arlington Heights will present "Women in Today's World," a collection of songs, dances and monologues saluting the woman of today who is enlightened, if not completely liberated.

Cast members include Mrs. Petersen, Camille Baranchik of Mount Prospect, B. J. Swingle of Buffalo Grove, Greg Nicklas of Chicago and Allen Johnson of Hoffman Estates. Pat Cotsakis of Palatine is the accompanist.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now, if Bonds pay 6% interest when the 1st maturity of 3 years (1977) first year Bonds are repaid, it's just what you need. When needed, they can be cashed in your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Abortion battle continues

Says 'life threatened'

In your April 22 Herald, there appeared a letter by Mr. Jim Peterson concerning abortion logic: according to The Herald's headline, the abortion logic was "blasted." I adamantly disagree. On closer scrutiny I feel the only logic which was blasted was the pro-abortion position which Mr. Peterson expounded. This was a skillfully written piece, deceptively claiming to "lay its biases on the table" from the beginning. To be sure, this letter was filled with biases, but they were hardly laid on the table. On the contrary, the deeper biases were subtly disguised in a powerful barrage of half-facts.

He claims to examine Point One, i.e. "that abortion is murder and that the heart is beating after so many months, brain waves at so many months, etc." Mr. Peterson himself states these biological facts and later even admits having attended Right to Life meetings where these facts were documented. However, he then writes off all these facts by saying "I do not believe" the three month fetus is a viable human being. No additional facts are brought to bear to counter this biological data; he simply refused to believe in the humanity of the fetus. Before departing from what Mr. Peterson terms Point One, I must emphasize that this is hardly a mere point in the argument; it is the whole point of the argument, i.e. the crucial issue — the humanity of the early fetus.

This gentleman also feels that pro-lifers labor under some mistaken belief that pro-abortionists need only to be informed in order to realize the error of their ways. I assure him that this pro-lifer harbors no such misunderstanding. On the contrary, the great tragedy and danger lay in the fact that the pro-abortionists are indeed informed, intelligent persons, deliberately and with much knowledge and understanding, choosing to obliterate the growing, developing life of the unborn fetus. If anything, the true advocates of abortion pose a far greater threat because they are not ignorant or misinformed. The greatest privilege of being human is the right to choose, to make decisions, and the well informed pro-abortionist makes his choice for death.

Now let us speak to the issue which really "frosts" Mr. Peterson: Why must

pro-lifers "insert their collective noses into other people's business when they wish to obtain a legal abortion?" The answer is straightforward: Because human life is the most important aspect of our existence, social, ethical or political; and if one wishes to be egoistic and self-seeking, the logic can be deduced one step further: an unprotected threat to any life is a threat to all life.

Mr. Peterson also speaks to the question of the lack of proper relationship between euthanasia and this issue. He infers a relationship ought not to be drawn here. He is correct that there is no directly deducible relationship between the two issues; however, I submit that the talk of overpopulation, nutritional needs, i.e. the well-known "quality of life" issues, also bear no directly deducible relationship to the ethical considerations concerning abortion.

In chastising others for not caring sufficiently about the quality of life, the argument degenerates to a self-seeking issue: Will there be enough of the good things to go around? I submit: 1) that to speak of the right to a certain quality in one's life rests on the hypothesis that there must be a more basic pre-supposed right, namely the right to life itself; and 2) that the real quality in life rests not on the amount of the world's resources that ought to be parceled out to any given person, but on the resources within that human person. To be human is to be free, and the first freedom man has always sought is the freedom to pursue life regardless of physical status or limitations of size, color, etc. Our country was founded in pursuit of this freedom, and it is in pursuit of this freedom that I now write this letter... that the freedom to live may be granted to all.

Peace Corps article criticized

This is not a defense. Rather, it is a presentation of ideas which hopefully will enlighten readers who may have been misled or misinformed by your article by Bob Lahey appearing on March 6. That article was apparently based on the personal experiences of a Peace Corps trainee who saw less than 35 days of Peace Corps service, and yet Mr. Lahey thought it fit, or fashionable perhaps, to utilize those meager experiences in order to cunningly degrade the Peace Corps idea, unwittingly insult the people of Sierra Leone, and in fact go on to condemn U. S. government agencies with his closing statement.

I have been a Peace Corps Volunteer in Sierra Leone for two and a half years. In the interest of factual reporting I will correct the blatant errors in the March 6 article and present some statistics indicating the extent and perhaps the value of Peace Corps in Sierra Leone.

First, to correct the errors reported on March 6.

— Mr. Lahey represents Mr. Muran, the person on whom the article is based, as a volunteer. This is incorrect. Mr. Muran was never sworn in as a Peace Corps volunteer; he was a trainee. This is a technical point, granted, but an important one. It is only after the successful completion of training and consultation of Peace Corps staff members in charge of a particular program that a trainee is sworn in as a volunteer.

— The trainee states that "They gave us three weeks of training and then sent us out to teach people who have been growing rice for thousands of years how to grow rice." This is incorrect. The Peace Corps Agricultural Program in Sierra Leone deals with inland valley swamp rice cultivation, a type of rice cultivation which was experimentally introduced into this country in 1945 and, with an increase in mechanical cultivation, began to catch on successfully in the 1950's.

The volunteer is sent out to try to help increase rice production in a country which can maintain self-sufficiency levels, and perhaps attain export levels, of rice production and yet has to import rice until these new methods become widespread. Further, it is appropriate to note here that all Peace Corps programs are initiated and continued only at the request of the host-country.

— The trainee claims to have stayed in the small village of Robagnoe for about 10 days. This is incorrect, yet even 10 days is but a minute taste of the cultural richness of village life.

— There are several errors in paragraph 19. First, Temne is not the native language of Sierra Leone; it is one of 14 different tribal languages spoken here. This may seem a minor point to some Americans, but it certainly is not minor to Sierra Leoneans. Further, the paragraph states that there were two hours of training devoted to the construction of a demonstration swamp. This should have read, "two hours per day."

— Paragraphs 26, 27, 28 show a cultural insensitivity that is highly insulting to Sierra Leoneans and downright embarrassing to me. Those paragraphs condescendingly criticize a lifestyle about which Mr. Muran and Mr. Lahey know very little. I am waiting for an apology from whomever is responsible for those paragraphs which contain phrases that I prefer not to restate.

— Mr. Lahey relates that life expectancy here is 40 years. This is incorrect. Life expectancy here is closer to 55. Further, it is stated that the dream of young men in Sierra Leone, as in other countries, is a chance to go to the United States. This is a vain and presumptuous generalization.

Admittedly, some of the above corrections may seem trifling, yet if a reporter wants to put across an opinion it is only fair to the reader that the journalist supports his reasoning with valid statements. However, it may sometimes happen that a reporter's subject matter is something about which the general public knows very little; in this case the reporter may take advantage of the uninformed and unsuspecting reader and attempt to present what is sometimes known as a "snowjob." There is of course a better and more commonly used term for that type of journalism.

Having "taken the bull by the horns" and correcting the erroneous statements in the March 6 article, I will now present some statistics from various programs within Peace Corps, Sierra Leone.

— Agricultural program: In 1972 and 1973 the volunteers in this program worked directly with 70 farmers on 320 acres of inland valley swamp, yielding 15,100 bushels of rice. This was 12,000 bushels more than those farmers had harvested in previous seasons! In addition, they advised 260 other farmers on swamp work covering nearly 700 acres and yielding 21,000 bushels!

An experimental harvest of October, 1973, indicates a projected yield averaging 65 bushels of rice per acre. This is a 434 per cent increase over the average traditional yield of 15 bushels per acre!

— Water supply program: a) Over 30 pipe-borne water supply systems have been completed and serve approximately 65,000 people with a convenient and adequate supply of safe water; b) Over 250 hand pumps have been installed throughout Sierra Leone serving approximately 50,000 people.

— Education program: a) In 1972 Peace Corps Volunteers in this program taught 1,600 primary students; 12,000 secondary students; 2,200 primary education teachers; and 160 secondary education teachers; and b) In 1972 Peace Corps Volunteers were teaching in 30 secondary schools, and 200 primary schools. Further, 200 primary in-service workshops were conducted.

— Construction program: a) In 1972 and 1973 approximately 55 schools, hospitals and other public buildings were either constructed or expanded by Peace Corps builders; and b) Approximately forty Sierra Leoneans have been given on-the-job training in building construction.

These are actual accomplishments. They are not "dreams of wanting to help." Now, Mr. Lahey, you may write a more realistic article about Peace Corps, and now, readers, you have the necessary information on which to base your opinions regarding the Peace Corps experience.

She cheers for animal crusaders

People like Billita Hanner should be praised and congratulated for finally bringing attention to the public regarding cruelty to animals when putting them to sleep. Why should an animal suffer because of the selfish attitude of some humans? People who buy cute puppies or kittens and then when they get older don't want them and give them to a shelter. Do they ever consider what is done to these poor helpless creatures that because they aren't babies anymore and aren't considered cute? Do they think

Trash rules irk reader

"Violators of village environmental ordinances will be sent notices by the Arlington Heights Environmental Commission." That's the essence of a front page item appearing in The Herald of Monday, May 6.

Pardon me but, they have just added your garbage can to the growing list of things that are under surveillance. Among others are: your exhaust pipe, tires, horsepower, how fast you drive, thermostat, chimney, BTU rating of your air conditioner, the spots on your lungs, the pressure on your eyeballs, how much alcohol you consume, how frequently you have sexual intercourse, and with whom, whether you own a gun, how many guns you buy, how much ammunition you buy, how much alcohol you consume, etcetera, etcetera, etcetera.

Pardon me but, did you know that most Americans assume that the Roman Empire fell in a day? Of course it didn't — it fell in bits and pieces, and over a long period. And each time the humanitarians, the fellow travelers, and the legion of dupes and do-gooders sawed off a little piece of the empire they said: "This hurts us worse than it does you but it's for a good cause — your own welfare." And then the vox populi intoned the incantation: "Yes, yes, for our own good." And in the end, after the people had handed over everything, the crafty tyrants said: "Now we are your masters, and your freedom counts for naught." And the people said: "Was that our freedom?"

Pardon me but, how long has it been since you've heard anyone say, "Well, it's a free country." Americans don't say this anymore. And out the same window has gone another cliché that you used to hear a lot: "creeping socialism." You see folks, socialism isn't creeping anymore, it's broken into a full-fledged gallop.

Pardon me but, how come you never ask yourself why a group of self-professed humanitarians are so hell-bent on providing for the welfare of every man, woman and child? Isn't it possible that even as they weep, bleed and emote all over the place in maudlin concern for all mankind, they are busily grinding their own ax?

Pardon me but, could it be that this drama you see unfolding could end up being nothing but a pain in the neck?

Lauds adoptions

I'm writing in regards to Joe Rosenberger's letter and to all the pro-abortion people.

I thank God every day for my three adopted children, that their parents did not have them aborted even though their births were unplanned. You see I don't believe that their births were not planned. My belief reminds me of when my wife and I went to court for our first child. A judge had a sign over the door of his chambers. The sign said "Adoptions are Planned in Heaven."

Schaumburg snake handling draws a critic

An Open Letter to the Schaumburg Police Department:

In order to assure a more efficient police department, it must be pointed out that a boa constrictor passed over several lawns including my own on Winthrop Lane recently without any notification to the residents by the Schaumburg Police Department. Police departments are to attempt to help protect the citizenry — yet in this case, we were given the chance to protect ourselves.

When I did call the police to verify the snake's existence, I was told 24 hours after it had escaped that "I shouldn't worry, it was going to be cold that night." The evening before, approximately 15 small children in this neighborhood were playing all over the snake's path of advancement unaware of the snake's proximity.

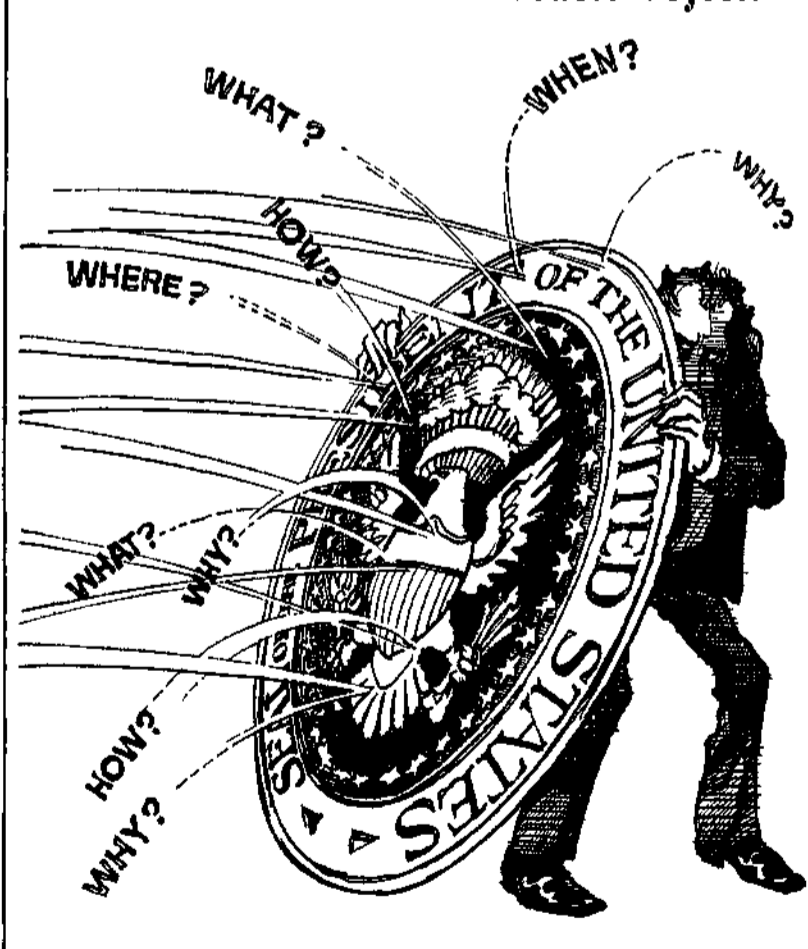

The boa constrictor has an agonizingly painful bite for it hangs on as its teeth grow downward and inward, but evidently this was not considered a serious problem, since Police Chief Martin Conroy had been told by "authorities" that the snake was not poisonous, and that it would only draw blood if it bit someone.

But one area the Schaumburg Police Department does excel in is the communications field. When I called to confirm it was dead (it had been run over by a car) and asked why the immediate vicinity was not informed, I was told that I didn't watch the right TV station! It makes one most uneasy to know this is the caliber of police work done in the village of Schaumburg. Hopefully such an unnecessarily dangerous situation will not occur again in Schaumburg, but if it does, I sure hope I have my TV tuned to the right station.

Township official blasts league

In their recent Fence Post letter (The Herald, Wednesday, May 8) officers of the League of Women Voters tried to justify their attacks on revenue sharing expenditures by township governments. No doubt the statement made last February by their state president and Cook County chairman that they will continue to oppose townships and their programs "even though they may be in day care services, delinquency prevention or services to the poor and elderly" has stung them badly. Now they have to try to convince the people they really like the programs townships are performing — they just don't like townships. A goal even their propaganda machine may find difficult to achieve.

They also go to great lengths to try to convince they are a study group. No doubt here they are trying to offset the effects of their president's recent statement that "We welcome charges that we are a political action group — indeed we are." And the statement by their national president that "The league has never been a research or study organization alone, although some people have that impression. It's always stressed political action with study."

In the past the league has maintained a relatively non-controversial status through the technique of seeming to be objective and non-partisan. That they are neither is becoming clear to many. Unproven (and unprovable) statements, irrelevancies, half-truths and double-talk have been used to attack township government. The day is past when such actions will be allowed to go unchallenged.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings

2 medium-sized Salt and pepper zucchini squash ¼ teaspoon sweet basil
1 yellow summer squash ½ stick (¼ cup) butter
1 tomato, cut into wedges
1 medium onion,
sliced into rings

Wash zucchini and summer squash. Slice into ¼ inch thick circles. Using a shallow 1 quart baking dish, arrange squash in a circular fashion beginning with zucchini and alternating with yellow squash. Top with tomato wedges in the center. Arrange onion rings over all. Sprinkle with seasonings, and dot with butter. Cover and bake in 325 degree oven 35 to 45 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Lemony Angel Torte

Yield: 16 servings

1 tablespoon unflavored ¾ cup lemon juice
gelatine 6 egg whites
¼ cup cold water ¾ cup sugar
6 egg yolks, slightly beaten 1 large angel food cake
¾ cup sugar 1 cup whipping cream,
1 ½ teaspoons grated whipped lemon peel Strawberry halves

Soften gelatine in cold water. Combine egg yolks, ¾ cup sugar, grated lemon peel and lemon juice in top of double boiler. Stir and cook over hot, not boiling, water until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat and add softened gelatine. Stir until dissolved. Set aside to cool. Beat egg whites until frothy then gradually add ¾ cup sugar while continuing to beat until stiff peaks form. Fold into cooled custard. Tear cake into pieces and arrange a layer in bottom of large oiled springform pan. Pour some custard over cake, then alternate layers until all is used, ending with custard. Cover and chill until firm. To serve, loosen sides of torte with knife and unmold on serving platter. Spread whipped cream on top and sides of torte and garnish with strawberry halves.

Directions For Cooking Turkey On A Kettle-type Covered Grill

TO THAW. Follow the directions on the turkey bag.

TO PREPARE GRILL. Open all dampers on grill and cover. Leave open during cooking. Make a drip pan using a double thickness of heavy duty foil. Put on bottom rack. Place 25 to 30 briquettes on each side of drip pan. Burn 15 to 20 minutes or until white in color. Place top rack inside of kettle over coals with handles opposite those on grill.

TO PREPARE TURKEY. Free legs and tail from tucked position of thawed bird. Remove neck and giblets from main cavities. Rinse turkey and drain. Fasten wings behind back by twisting the wing tips. Do not stuff. Stuffing can be baked in a foil poke or disposable foil pan on the grill beside the turkey during the last hour of cooking. Draw skin over neck. Return legs and tail to tucked position. Brush skin of turkey with oil or melted fat. Insert roast meat thermometer into the center of the thickest portion of the thigh next to the body cavity, not touching bone.

TO COOK UNSTUFFED TURKEY. Place thawed unstuffed turkey on top rack. Cover with top of grill. To maintain constant heat, add 4 to 5 briquettes to both sides each additional hour of cooking. No basting is necessary when you use a self basting turkey. Otherwise use butter or margarine.

Check for doneness after 2 ½ hours of cooking for 12 to 14 pound turkey. Before removing the turkey from the grill, check to be sure the thermometer has not been displaced. The internal temperature of the roasted turkey should be 180 to 185 degrees.

Protect thumb and forefinger with paper or cloth. Pinch the thickest portion of the thigh. The meat should feel soft.

Mrs. Raymond Lynch

by LOIS SEILER

An active member of Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary, Barbara Lynch of Mount Prospect volunteers her services regularly to the hospital's snack shop and is chairman of the Auxiliary's fall benefit fashion show. But this busy homemaker still finds time to experiment in the kitchen. When Barb Lynch tastes a dish she likes, she tries to duplicate it at home.

So it was with Sweet-Sour Meat Balls, one of her favorite appetizers. Barb makes a ground beef mixture then forms it into tiny balls to cook in a sauce consisting of sauerkraut, tomato sauce and brown sugar.

Even people who don't like sauerkraut enjoy this appetizer, according to Barb. It adds texture to the sauce and a sweet-sour flavor to the meat balls.

This appetizer can be served nicely prior to one of Barb's favorite dinners, fresh beef brisket, which she serves to family and guests. She likes this cut of meat because there is no waste, no bone and no fat.

Although beef brisket is commonly associated with corned beef, Barb has enjoyed it prepared in this manner all her life. A hand-me-down recipe from her mother, it is popular with her husband Ray and children, Holly, 16, Ken, 10, and Chris, 8.

THE MEAT IS NOT seared first, but is simmered in a savory tomato sauce which facilitates its absorption of flavors. After the meat is partially cooked, Barb slices it on the diagonal and places it back in the sauce to cook until done. The beef becomes so tender it falls apart, according to Barb, and the juices are delicious over mashed potatoes or rice.

This can be prepared early in the day, so there is no last-minute fuss. Barb even makes mashed potatoes in advance. She cooks about seven medium potatoes, mashes them with butter and milk in the conventional way and then adds an egg and a cup of grated sharp Cheddar cheese. Turned into a casserole, they are kept warm and fluffy in the oven until serving time.

As an accompaniment this cook suggests Fresh Spinach Salad. She tasted it at a restaurant in Cleveland then developed her own recipe at home.

Barb combines spinach with shredded red cabbage and thin rings of red onion. Tossed with a well-seasoned sweet-sour dressing, the salad is garnished with bacon bits and croutons.

To complete this meal, Barb likes Rosettes sprinkled with powdered sugar, but often leaves dessert up to Holly, an accomplished baker who makes everything from scratch.

SWEET AND SOUR MEAT BALLS

- 1 pound ground round steak
- 1 egg
- 1 onion, minced
- 4 slices bread, soaked in water
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 large can (29 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 pound can sauerkraut plus juice
- 1 pound dark brown sugar
- Mix together the meat, egg and onion.

Tuna pastries, far from ordinary

The British may call them "tunnies," but as one American put it, "It's plain tuna fish to me." However, Tuna Pastries are not plain and are far from the familiar tuna fish sandwich. These pastries make good appetizer servings which may be eaten with the fingers or may be served in quantity as an entree.

TUNA PASTRIES

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 can (6 1/2 or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1 cup cooked peas and carrots
- 1 can (8 ounces each) refrigerated flaky buttermilk biscuits
- 1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon water
- Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt; gradually stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in tuna, peas and carrots. Separate each flaky biscuit into 2 parts and roll or stretch into 3-inch circle. Place 1 tablespoon tuna mixture in center of each biscuit round. Fold half of biscuit over filling to make half-circle. Seal edges with fingers or by pressing down with rim of glass. Place on lightly greased baking sheet and brush with egg yolk. Bake in a 475-degree oven 8 minutes until golden brown. Makes 40 appetizer servings. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

FRESH BEEF BRISKET simmered in a savory tomato sauce is a specialty of Mrs. Ray Lynch. The brisket becomes very tender and the sauce makes a delicious gravy to serve over mashed potatoes or rice, said Mrs. Lynch.

Homemade upside-down cake

Homemade upside-down cakes are treats that linger in many memories. So, why not make such a delightful dessert more than a memory? A Honey-glazed Apple Ring turns out as a sheer delight for the baker and for the eater. This is the type of cake that lures all ages to the refrigerator for a late night snack, with milk, and also is good for breakfast.

The average cost of pork chops reflected a substantial decrease of 13 cents, according to a price survey Monday.

A six-cent decrease was also noted for bacon. Two-cent increases were recorded for whole broiler-fryers and frozen ocean filets.

Eggs showed an average decrease of four cents a dozen, however, American processed cheese rose three cents. Other dairy prices remained close to stable.

With the exception of celery, down two cents, fruits and vegetables showed only minor variances.

Spaghetti decreased three cents, but corn flakes and salad oil increased one and two cents, respectively.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from four area supermarkets on Monday of each week.

Increased food prices affect new families, too

by JEANNE LESEM

Newlyweds showered with rice might find the grain more welcome as a gift.

Rice is among many staple foods whose prices have increased enormously in the past year. Current costs can make a new family's grocery shopping trips a nightmare, especially if the budget is small and the wife has a fulltime job.

It's axiomatic that small packages or cans or jars of food cost more than large ones. The price of packaging varies so little. It's also axiomatic that convenience foods cost more than the same ones made from scratch.

But for busy cooks, the added cost sometimes may be offset by greater convenience, says Ruth Hodgson Klein, a Cornell University cooperative extension specialist.

It's just a matter of choosing the least expensive of two or more prepared products, she said in an interview.

Mrs. Klein, a working wife, bases her theory on information she and Jean I. Hahn gathered for a slide presentation prepared for Cornell's consumer education program.

They compared the cost per serving of a five-ounce can of ready-to-eat pudding with a five and one-half ounce serving made from an instant mix. The ready-to-eat kind sold for about 17 cents, or nearly three times as much as the instant variety made with added nonfat dry milk.

If time is going to be important, hear this: raw rice is the cheapest form of the grain, instant rice is next cheapest, followed by rice mixes and frozen, prepared rice in a pouch.

MRS. KLEIN also said pouch-packed vegetables, in general, are double the price of their frozen, uncooked counterparts.

Big savings are possible on breakfast cereal, provided you buy large packages of unsweetened ones. Individually packaged dry cereals can be as much as twice the price of a large package, and sugar-coated cornflakes are far costlier than the plain kind. But some cake mixes may be no more expensive than making your own from scratch. Many mixes sell in such volume that their prices are relatively low.

Bake-and-serve refrigerated biscuits are only slightly more expensive than biscuits made from a mix, and the mix costs about as much as the ingredients for scratch ones.

Frozen concentrate is the cheapest form of orange juice, Mrs. Klein said. It's followed closely by the chilled, dairy case type. Freshly squeezed juice is by far the most expensive.

Canned fruit cocktail often is cheaper than fresh, because it takes a pound of either fresh peaches or pears to make enough to fill a can. These two varieties are the main fruits in the canned product.

Instant coffee is cheaper per serving than ground roast coffee. The smaller the jar, the more you pay per serving.

When the price per pound of a bony meat cut like spareribs is as high as ground chuck, or higher, chuck is the better buy. You'd need one and a half pounds of the ribs to make two servings, but only half a pound of ground meat.

Mrs. Klein said careful shopping may save only pennies on individual food items, but in a year they can add up to 10, 50 or even 300 per cent.

Spring luncheon teams crab, asparagus

A fresh idea for a spring luncheon combines chunks of crab meat and tender asparagus. The asparagus may be canned but real asparagus lovers will want to use this delicacy fresh while it is in season. Mix finely diced crab with celery, green onion, lemon, tarragon and sharp Cheddar cheese. Partially cook fresh asparagus and wrap all ingredients in triangles of refrigerator crescent biscuits. Make these Crab Asparagus Roll-ups before guests arrive, wrap and refrigerate and bake just before serving with a Mock Hollandaise sauce.

- CRAB ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS
- (7 1/2 ounce) can Alaska King crab, or
 - (6 to 8 ounce) package frozen Alaska King crab
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 1/2 cup diced celery
 - 2 green onions, chopped
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/8 teaspoon tarragon
 - 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/2 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
 - 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 - 24 stalks fresh or frozen asparagus
 - 1 1/2 packages refrigerated crescent biscuits

Drain canned crab and slice. Or, defrost, drain and slice frozen crab. Combine crab, lemon juice, celery, green onion, seasonings, cheese and mayonnaise. Cook asparagus until barely tender. Place a spoonful of crab mixture and 2 stalks asparagus on each individual triangle of dough. Roll from shortest side of triangle into crescent shape and place with point down on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees 10-12 minutes, or until golden. Serve with Mock Hollandaise Sauce. Makes 12 crescents.

MOCK HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1 egg yolk

2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt

Combine above ingredients. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until heated through and slightly thickened. Serve over Crab Asparagus Roll-ups. Makes 1 cup.

French snacks break the monotony

by RONALD E. COHEN

"Mama, I'm home from school! What's to eat?"

If you're like most other mothers, it's probably a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Or milk and cookies. Or a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, and milk and cookies.

Perhaps the children are getting tired of PB and J? Quite right, they are.

I have had an abiding hatred of peanut butter and jelly since fourth grade. I can recall with horror how difficult it was to be playing shortstop at the schoolyard and being unable to exhort my pitcher to championship heights because the peanut butter was lodged unyieldingly on the roof of my mouth.

South Seas chicken fits small budgets

If your family budget won't support a flight to the far Pacific Isles, create the illusion of faraway places in your dining room by serving Chicken Polynesian.

Broiler-fryers are in abundant supply right now, say U. S. Department of Agriculture food marketing specialists. Chicken Polynesian is a flavorful way to take advantage of this high protein food.

CHICKEN POLYNESIAN

6 chicken half-breasts

1 cup buttermilk,

cultured

2 teaspoons salt

1 clove garlic,

cut in pieces

1/4 cup flour

3 tablespoons fat or oil

1/4 cup water

1/4 cup onion, chopped

1/4 teaspoon ginger

1 clove, whole

1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder

2 tablespoons almonds,

chopped or slivered,

toasted

Marinate chicken in buttermilk, combined with salt and garlic for one hour. Then drain chicken and save liquid. Roll chicken pieces in flour and brown in fat or oil for about ten minutes.

Add water, cover, and cook slowly until chicken is tender — about one hour. Remove chicken from pan and keep warm.

Cook onion in pan drippings until tender. Skim off excess fat and remove garlic from buttermilk. Mix spices with buttermilk and add to onion. Heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove clove.

Serve chicken topped with sauce and garnished with almonds. Serve with rice, minted peas, and a pineapple salad — and top off your meal with fruit for dessert. Makes 6 servings.

Onions a la peanuts

One mouth-watering taste treat suggested by the U.S. Department of Agriculture: a bowl of creamed onions a la peanuts. Mix some finely chopped salted peanuts into the cream sauce as you prepare the onions. Just before serving, sprinkle more chopped salted peanuts on top.

With springtime yard activity, hurried schedules of school activities, and of year school functions, and the start of summer sports, it's hard to get the whole family to sit down for a leisurely meal. One good way to beat the spring scurry is to fix the meal ahead of time so that it can be served almost at a moment's notice.

But feeding children after school is a problem, no question. Many mothers work and must leave a snack in the refrigerator. Many mothers have obligations and cannot be home every afternoon to greet the children and make sure they get a nourishing snack to tide them over to dinner.

How about doing what the French Mamas do? A French snack, something to break the monotony and give the youngsters a chance to try some safe, easy cooking on their own.

When a French schoolchild comes home for lunch, quite possibly he will have the warm, filling repast of soup and either a Croque Monsieur or Croque Madame.

Both the croques are easy to make, particularly Monsieur. Madame is a trifle more difficult, but if you aren't going to be home, you can make the topping before you go. It will keep in the refrigerator nicely, and all the kids have to do is pop it in the oven. Nothing like snacking contentedly. Your children will love you.

CROQUE MONSIEUR

For each sandwich, two slices of white bread, with the crusts trimmed.

Butter both slices of bread on the outside. Place inside a piece of moderately thick boiled or baked ham and a slice of Swiss or mozzarella cheese. Melt a one-inch piece of butter or margarine in a flat griddle or frying pan and place the sandwich in the butter over moderate heat. Place a small frying pan or other heavy object atop the sandwich and cook for one minute. Flip the sandwich and again place heavy object atop for another minute.

Voila! Croque Monsieur, delicious with a cold glass of milk.

Croque Madame

For each sandwich, a long slice of French bread or half a hero roll.

Dry the bread out in the oven, 350 degrees, for about two minutes. Remove the bread and place a moderately thick piece of boiled or baked ham on it.

Spread a cheese topping over the ham. Mom can do this and leave it in the refrigerator.

The ingredients for the cheese topping are one cup of grated Swiss, one egg, one tablespoon flour. One-third cup of beer. Don't worry Mom, it's precious little beer. It cannot be tasted in the sandwich, and French kids have been eating this for decades with no visible effects. But if it makes you nervous, milk is acceptable.

Mix the topping thoroughly, sprinkling in a touch of fresh ground pepper and a pinch of Tabasco sauce.

After spreading on the ham, brown it for 15-20 minutes in a 450-degree oven.

It can be eaten as an open sandwich or cut and eaten with a knife and fork.

Despite the simplicity of the recipes and the ease for children to prepare, it wouldn't hurt to go through the steps with the youngsters in a live dress rehearsal some evening. It doesn't make a bad dinner, either.

You may never buy another jar of peanut butter, and your kids will be bragging to the neighborhood that they eat Croque Madame for an after-school snack.

The curiosity it engenders may make your kitchen more popular than the playground.

Chicken with flavor of sunny Spain

Chicken is one of this country's most popular foods, especially for broiling or grilling. But because we use our chicken recipes so often we tend to tire of them.

A few new ones are always welcome. This barbecued chicken idea comes from sunny Spain and its vigorous flavor is reminiscent of Spanish country cooking. The chicken is marinated and grilled in a spicy mixture of crushed peppercorns and olives. It ends up a dish most compatible with American taste.

Dinner consists of the Spanish Pepper Chicken, some crunchy bread, a cold drink, and perhaps some corn on the cob. It's a meal that stretches the imagination across the sea while, more importantly, it stretches the food budget in a most delicious way.

Certainly chicken does not have to be grilled or broiled to be good. And the creamy chicken and olive casserole recipe proves the point.

SPANISH PEPPER CHICKEN

- 1 tablespoon peppercorns
- 1 1/2 cups pimiento-stuffed olives
- 1 clove garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 cup olive or salad oil
- 3 1/2 pounds broiler-fryer chicken pieces

Whirl peppercorns in electric blender until cracked. Add olives, garlic, lemon peel and oil; blend until thick and fairly smooth. Spread olive mixture all over chicken; chill for 2 hours. Broil chicken on both sides 6 inches from source of heat 35 to 40 minutes, or until done. Makes 6 servings

Note: Peppercorns may be crushed with the side of a heavy knife and mixed with ground or very finely chopped olives and garlic, the lemon peel and oil. Mix to form a paste.

CHICKEN AND OLIVES IN CREAM

- 3 1/2 pounds broiler-fryer chicken parts
- 1/3 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 medium onions,

- sliced
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 3/4 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- 1/2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2/3 cup water
- 2 cups heavy cream

Brown chicken in butter on all sides in large skillet; place chicken in large shallow baking dish and sprinkle with 1/4 teaspoon of the salt. Sauté onions and mushrooms in drippings until tender; stir in olives and parsley. Spoon mixture over chicken. Blend remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, pepper, cornstarch and water with cream in skillet. Stir constantly over medium heat until mixture simmers 1 minute. Pour sauce over chicken in baking dish. Bake in 350 degree oven 45 minutes, or until chicken is tender. (If sauce appears separated, stir with spoon until blended.) Serve dish with hot rice. Makes 6 servings.

Protein-rich candy

Scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture USDA have developed a nutritionally balanced, protein-rich candy.

They added nutrient fortification mixtures and dry protein to the usual combination of sugar syrup, fat and flavorings.

The protein sources included nonfat dry milk, soy protein isolates and casein mixtures. Yet to come: fortified candy using cottonseed, peanut and fish protein concentrates.

P.S. The candy has passed taste tests at a school carnival. (UPI)

Spanish Pepper Chicken

Household hints

"Braise" means to cook meat or poultry slowly in steam from meat juices or added liquid trapped and held in a covered pan. Meat may be browned in a small amount of fat before braising, according to USDA home economists.

Rock Cornish game hens can be cooked like broiler or fryer chickens. Small ducks are also suitable for broiling or frying, but larger ones should be roasted or cooked on a rotisserie.

If you need one cup of buttermilk or sour milk for baking and don't have it — you can substitute a cup of fluid whole milk plus one tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice.

You may use 7/8 of a cup of vegetable or animal shortening plus 1/2 teaspoon salt instead of a cup of butter or margarine.

Remember to maintain best eating quality, most nuts need protection from oxygen in the air and high temperatures. If you don't protect them, the fat in the nuts may become rancid.

Don't try to freeze raw tomatoes because they change flavor, color and become limp and watery. Often fried foods, when frozen, tend to have a warmed over taste when reheated.

Appetizers set party mood

A generous platter of nicely seasoned appetizers can set the stage for a successful party. Be it a large or small gathering, Crusty Fried Mushrooms are a unique way to start a party.

They can be ready for frying hours before the party. Simply rinse mushrooms in fresh water, pat dry and turn in beaten egg and then crumb mixture. Chill until frying time. Incidentally, any leftover fried fresh mushrooms can be held in the freezer for several weeks until another happy time.

Stuffed mushrooms are always welcome on the hors d'oeuvres tray. Large mushrooms are delicious stuffed with a blend of Cheddar cheese, onion and bacon before heating and serving.

CRUSTY FRIED MUSHROOMS

1 package (1 pound)
fresh mushrooms
1/3 cup flour

1/4 cup dry bread crumbs

1 1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

1 egg, lightly beaten

Rinse, pat dry and trim stems of mushrooms; set aside. In pie pan combine flour, bread crumbs, salt and black pepper; set aside. Dip reserved mushrooms into beaten egg. With a slotted spoon remove mushrooms to flour mixture; toss well to coat. Shake off excess crumbs.

To fry in shallow fat: In medium skillet heat 1/4 cup salad oil until hot. Add mushrooms, about 8 at a time; fry for 3 minutes or until golden, turning occasionally. Remove mushrooms to paper towels to drain; keep warm. Repeat until all mushrooms are used.

To fry in deep fat: Heat oil in deep fat fryer to 375 degrees. Add mushrooms about 12 at a time; fry for about 3 minutes or until golden. Remove mushrooms to paper towels to drain; keep warm. Repeat until all mushrooms are used.

To freeze: Cool fried mushrooms thoroughly. Wrap for freezing. Freeze for up to 3 weeks. To reheat, place frozen fried mushrooms in a jelly roll pan. Bake in a preheated hot oven (500) for 8 minutes or until hot.

Yield: about 3 dozen fried mushrooms

1 package (1 lb.)

fresh mushrooms

1/4 pound sliced bacon

1/4 cup minced onion

2 tablespoons flour

1 cup milk

1 cup shredded sharp

Cheddar cheese

1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms. Chop stems; set mushroom caps and stems aside. In a medium skillet saute bacon until crisp; drain on paper towels; crumble and set aside. Remove all but 1/4 cup of the bacon drippings from skillet; reserve remaining drippings. Add onion and the reserved mushroom stems to skillet; saute for 3 minutes. Blend in flour; cook and stir for 1 minute. Blend in milk; cook and stir until thickened.

Blend in cheese and black pepper; cook over low heat just until cheese is melted. Stir in reserved crumbled bacon. Brush outside of mushroom caps lightly with reserved bacon drippings; place in a jelly roll pan. Fill each mushroom cap with about 1 measuring tablespoonful of cheese mixture. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 10 minutes or until hot. Serve immediately. Yield: about 2 dozen hors d'oeuvres.

Ginger Nut Drops

Tasty, nutritious snacks from quick mix gingerbread

Having nutritious and appealing snacks available for your family is definitely not as easy as selecting a box or bag from the grocery shelf. A costly 69 cent snack item can disappear in 15 minutes with little gleaned from it but calories.

The best snack foods include fresh fruits and vegetables, cheeses, meats and dairy products, with homemade cookies and breads favorites on the list. Keeping the cookie jar filled isn't difficult with some good quick mix recipes on hand. These ginger nut drops are easily made from a mix and offer nutritious snacking for your youngsters. In addition to nuts and coconut, they're made with milk and cottage cheese. And they're easy enough for your children to make for themselves.

GINGER NUT DROPS

1 package (14 1/2 ounces) gingerbread mix

1/4 cup brown sugar, packed

1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon

1/2 cup creamed cottage cheese

1/3 cup milk

3 tablespoons melted butter

1 cup chopped nuts

1/2 cup coconut

Combine gingerbread mix, brown sugar and cinnamon. Combine cottage cheese, milk and melted butter and stir into gingerbread mixture. Mix well. Stir in nuts and coconut. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased baking sheets. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from pans immediately and cool on wire rack. Yield: about 4 dozen cookies.

Ladies shop, cook

When it comes to these traditional home chores of shopping and cooking, Women's Lib doesn't seem to have changed things much, according to the findings of a new survey.

In interviews with 1,000 young married women aged 18 to 30, the Newspaper Bureau of Advertising said it found that more than seven out of 10, or 71 per cent, believe that food shopping and cooking play the same, or perhaps even bigger, part in their lives as it did in their mothers' lives at the same age.

A lot of husbands help in these duties, the survey found. For example more than half the husbands, 56 per cent, help with the cooking and preparation of food. Only one-third of the same group, however, go shopping with their wives.

The bureau in reporting its survey noted that there are 40 million Americans in the 18-30 age group, making up 29 per cent of the population. They also represent the largest single segment of the population, the bureau said.

(UPI)

Full of nutrition

USDA scientists have made a dream come true: Candy that is good for you. The new candy, still as delicious and full of quick energy as the common variety, has the added features of being nutritionally balanced and protein-rich. Scientists developed the candy by adding nutrient fortification mixtures and dry protein to recipes of sugar sirup, fat, and flavorings. Nonfat dry milk was the usual protein source, but soy protein isolates and casein mixtures were also used. They report that cottonseed, peanut, and fish protein concentrates also offer possibilities. Synthetic vitamin and mineral supplements can be added although the researchers selected yeast, believing a natural source would be more appealing. Some vitamins, notably A and C, have to be added directly. Taste-tested at a school carnival, the new candy passed with flying colors.

Economical oven chicken, perfect for busy homemakers

Quick, easy, economical, no fuss. Those are magic words to busy people who also have an eye on the family budget. Try Oven Chicken Supreme.

Wash and wipe dry a 2½ to 3-pound frying chicken, cut into serving pieces. In a mixing bowl put 1 cup sour cream, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Blend.

In a paper sack put 1 cup cracker crumbs and ½ cup blanched almonds which have been toasted and grated. Dip chicken pieces in sour cream mixture then drop into paper sack. Shake to coat with crumbs and almonds.

Put remaining sour cream mix into the bottom of a 13x12x2 baking dish and arrange coated chicken pieces, skin side up. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for about 1 hour, or until chicken is fork tender and crusty brown. Serves 4.

AND, HOW LONG has it been since you tried that old favorite Breaded Pork cutlets, chops or steak? Here is a delectable dish, when properly prepared.

Whichever cut you're preparing, wash and wipe dry the pork, then season on both sides with salt and pepper. Dredge in flour to coat evenly, but lightly.

Now dip pork into beaten egg, then into bread crumbs. Again, coat evenly, avoiding a heavy covering. In an iron skillet, melt bacon fat or shortening to a depth of about 1/8 inch.

Brown over medium heat. If breading tends to burn, reduce heat. When pork is nicely browned, cover and put into a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes. Adjust seasonings and serve.

With fresh tomatoes plentiful at this time of the year, serve them broiled with either the chicken or pork. Select good sized firm tomatoes. Wash, then remove the core with a sharp knife making a cylindrical cavity. Pare about ½ inch of the skin around the cavity.

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

Prepare a mixture of 2 parts grated Parmesan cheese, 1 part fine bread crumbs, 1 part minced onion, salt, and pepper. Moisten mixture with melted butter or margarine.

Fill cavity of each tomato and place tomatoes on broiler rack, not touching. Broil about 20 minutes, or until tomato is tender to a fork, but not mushy.

Corned beef lasagna teams ease and economy

Cheesy Corned Beef Lasagna is a perfect choice for a supper buffet or family dinner. The flavor of corned beef is sparked by hearty cheese, cream-style corn, and is accented with mushrooms, olives and bits of green pepper.

This Americanized version of an ever-popular Italian favorite can be prepared ahead of time and refrigerated. Crusty buttered Italian bread and a salad of freshly tossed greens with Romano cheese dressing are great go-alongs.

The lasagna goes beautifully from oven to table when prepared in a lasagna baking-serving dish which has its own serving base.

CHEESY CORNED BEEF LASAGNA

- 1 8-oz. package lasagna noodles
- 9 ounces corned beef slices, coarsely cut-up
- 1 17-oz. can cream-style corn
- 7 oz. package frozen whole kernel corn, cooked and drained
- 1 10½ oz. can condensed cream of chicken soup
- 1 small can sliced mushrooms, drained

Consumer hints

Try raw vegetables for those snacks, suggests U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists. Have a good supply of celery sticks, carrot sticks, radishes, or green pepper slices ready in the refrigerator when "hunger strikes."

Mature dry legumes — dry peas and members of the bean family including navy, pinto and soybeans — are outstanding among the vegetables for the protein they contain.

Remember, most dark-green and deep-yellow vegetables excel as dependable and inexpensive sources of vitamin A.

For a spring cookout, try barbecued whole turkey. The big bird roasting on the backyard rotisserie is an attractive conversation piece that turns into a real taste treat for your whole family.

Do you know there's 10½ times as much cholesterol in a three-ounce serving of shrimp as in a teaspoon of butter? The three ounce serving of cooked liver has 372 mg. (milligrams) of cholesterol while an eight ounce glass of milk has 34 mg. An eight ounce glass of skim milk has only five mg. cholesterol.

Smelt currently a good buy for budget-minded shoppers

Smelt is the best fishery buy in the Midwest this month, according to National Marine Fisheries Service. They also white fish fillets along with frozen fish sticks and breaded shrimp.

A record pack in 1973 accounts for large amounts of tuna available at very reasonable prices in midwest markets.

Parisian Shredded Fish from "The Cook's Fish Guide" by Jacqueline Knight report good supplies of ocean perch and is one way to utilize economical smelts. Selling for less than 50 cents a pound in area stores, smelts account for one of the least expensive protein sources.

To serve six remove heads and tails from 24 small smelts and split them from the back. Butter six individual oven dishes and put four fish in each dish. To each dish add one tablespoon fish stock and a few drops of lemon juice. Bake at 350 degrees, basting frequently, for 25 minutes, or until liquid is nearly evaporated. Cover with Mornay sauce and glaze quickly under the broiler.

Mornay sauce begins with cream or bechamel sauce. First prepare two cups of basic cream sauce and flavor with onion or shallots. Put three lightly beaten egg yolks in a saucepan and pour the hot sauce into them, stirring constantly. Cook the sauce, still stirring, until it just reaches the boiling point. Stir in three tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, a pinch of grated nutmeg and two teaspoons minced parsley.

by Fran Heckart

SMELTS MAY ALSO be sauteed. To serve two; clean, rinse thoroughly and wipe dry 12 smelts. Season with lemon juice and let stand covered for 15 minutes. Roll the smelts in cream; and dip into flour or corn meal. Melt ¼ cup butter in large skillet and saute the smelts gently until they are done.

Smelts may also be dipped in crumbs or beaten egg and crumbs and fried in deep fat at 370 degrees. Serve with Tartar Sauce.

Ever popular fresh berries

Fresh strawberries always are a treat. For eating at anytime, even breakfast, use strawberries with a shortcake ring made with convenient flaky biscuits. When buying strawberries plan to use them as soon as possible.

STRAWBERRY BISCUIT RING SHORTCAKE

- 2 pints strawberries, sliced
 - Sugar
 - 1 container (9.5 ounces) refrigerated buttermilk flaky biscuits
 - ¼ teaspoon lemon extract
 - 1 cup cream or half-and-half
- Sweeten strawberries to taste with sugar. Chill until needed. Form a ring using all the biscuits on an ungreased baking sheet. Biscuits should barely touch each other at the edges; press together with fingers to prevent separation during baking. Bake in 400 degree oven about 10 minutes or until golden brown. Remove biscuit ring to serving dish. Fill center of biscuit ring with prepared strawberries. Stir lemon extract into cream. Serve in pitcher to pour over shortcakes. Makes 6 servings.

STRAWBERRY LEMON SWIRLS

- 2 pints strawberries, sliced
 - ¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - ¼ cup sugar
 - 1 container (9.5 ounces) refrigerated biscuits with artificial butter flavor
 - Milk
 - 2 cups sweetened whipped cream or whipped topping
- To prepare strawberries: Combine strawberries, ¼ teaspoon of lemon peel and juice in bowl. Sweeten strawberries to taste with sugar. Chill until serving time.

Quality of protein

Quality of protein as well as quantity is important. Animal sources of protein, such as milk and cheese, meat, eggs provide a higher quality of protein than vegetables. However, the quality of vegetable protein is improved when served with animal protein at the same meal, as when cereal and milk are combined. A daily mixture of animal vegetable sources of protein is desirable. Protein is the essential nutrient for building and maintaining body tissues.

Milk and dairy foods are your best source of calcium, needed throughout life for bone growth and maintenance, nerve function, muscle reaction, blood clotting, and for regulating the use of other essential minerals in your body. Recommended daily dietary allowances range from two or more glasses of milk for adults to four or more for teenagers and expectant mothers.

For economy and nutrition use cheese in your meal planning. Cheddar-type cheeses cost less than meat, and there is no waste. Cottage cheese stands out as an inexpensive animal protein. Cheeses can be used as sauces, in souffles and casseroles, with macaroni, and as tasty rarebits and sandwiches.

Designed to curb flooding of area

University Court drainage work nearing completion

by JOE FRANZ

Work is almost complete on drainage improvements that are expected to relieve some of the flooding problems in the University Court area of Buffalo Grove.

Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg said Wednesday several projects have been completed, while one still remains unfinished. All of the work is being done in Wheeling which abuts the rear of homes on University Court in the Cambridge subdivision.

The flooding problems in the area have been the subject of a law suit since 1966. Although a course of action was decided on in 1969, the court is overseeing operations to make sure the parties involved live up to the agreement.

THE AGREEMENT calls for construction of four retention basins in two Wheeling developments, Tahoe Village and Lakeside Villas. The basins are designed to handle storm water runoff from the University Court area, as well as the respective projects.

All of the basins have now been completed. Prior to completion of the third basin at Tahoe, however, Seaberg and several other Buffalo Grove officials expressed reservations that the level of the basin was too high and the capacity was too small. They said at the time of a severe storm the basin would force water upstream into the University Court area.

According to Seaberg, this would happen because the high water elevation of the basin was about the same level as University Court. He said there would be little or no flow in the storm sewers and water would be forced to run to the lowest point, University Court.

TO REMEDY THE problem, it was agreed that a storm sewer be installed to connect the third basin at Tahoe with a retention basin at nearby Lakeside Villas. The connection will allow water to run from University Court, through the Tahoe basin and into the basin at Lakeside Villas and will eliminate most of the backup problems, Seaberg said.

The connection was recently completed and all that remains is installation of a pump at the Lakeside Villas basin.

The pump will remove the water from the basin which will allow it to run downstream. Seaberg said the pump will not only lower the high water elevation of the basin at Tahoe, but also increase its capacity.

The Zale Construction Co., developers of Lakeside Villas, have agreed to install the pump. Officials there could not be reached to find out when it will be installed.

SEABERG SAID another improvement that has recently been finished is the installation of a storm sewer connecting University Court with the third basin at Tahoe Village. The new sewer will replace a hazardous drainage ditch that lies parallel to Scott Street in Wheeling.

The ditch is nearly flat in some places which prevented water from running downstream. Seaberg said the owner of the property where the ditch lies has been directed to fill it. Seaberg said the recent and planned improvements will solve many of the flooding problems University Court residents have been plagued with in the past, but emphasized that there probably might be some problems in the event of severe rainfalls.

Park district, builder at odds over Kilmer Park

The Buffalo Grove Park District and Gregg Builders remain at odds over Kilmer Park and the firm says it will continue to withhold a $10,000 donation until it is satisfied with development of the site.

The two sides, homeowners and several members of the village board met Tuesday night, but were unable again to resolve the dispute. The meeting was called after the village board Monday night refused for a second time to give Gregg Builders final approval for the second phase of the Oak Creek development, adjacent to Kilmer Park.

The board said it will not give final approval until the matter is resolved and the last installment of a $25,000 donation is given to the park district.

The specific point at issue is the tree planting scheme at the park site. The developer claims the park district agreed to plant more trees at the site than currently exists. The park district, however, maintains it has lived up to its end of the agreement and should be given the final installment of the donation.

KENNETH RODECK, of Gregg Builders said Wednesday his firm has made two proposals in an effort to resolve the dispute. The first asks the park district to plant $3,500 worth of additional trees at the site. Rodeck said if that is done, the park district will be given the $10,000.

The second proposal, he said, calls for his firm to do $10,000 worth of work on the park in lieu of the final donation. Gregg Builders has made the two proposals in order to insure that the donation goes to the development of the Kilmer site and not some other park in the village, Rodeck said.

Park officials did not make a decision on the proposals at Tuesday's meeting because several board members were absent. They have said they will consider them at tonight's meeting.

Park board members indicated recently they want the money and are unwilling to consent to additional improvements at the park in order to get it.

THE PARK DISTRICT has spent about $62,000 at the Kilmer site and officials say the donation is needed for improvements at other parks. They maintain it is the park district's function, not the developer's to determine where the money is spent.

A group of homeowners near Kilmer Park have rallied to Gregg Builders defense on the matter. They have voiced extreme dissatisfaction with the condition of the park.

The residents claim the village board should approve Gregg Builders project and allow them, the developer and park district to resolve the donation dispute.

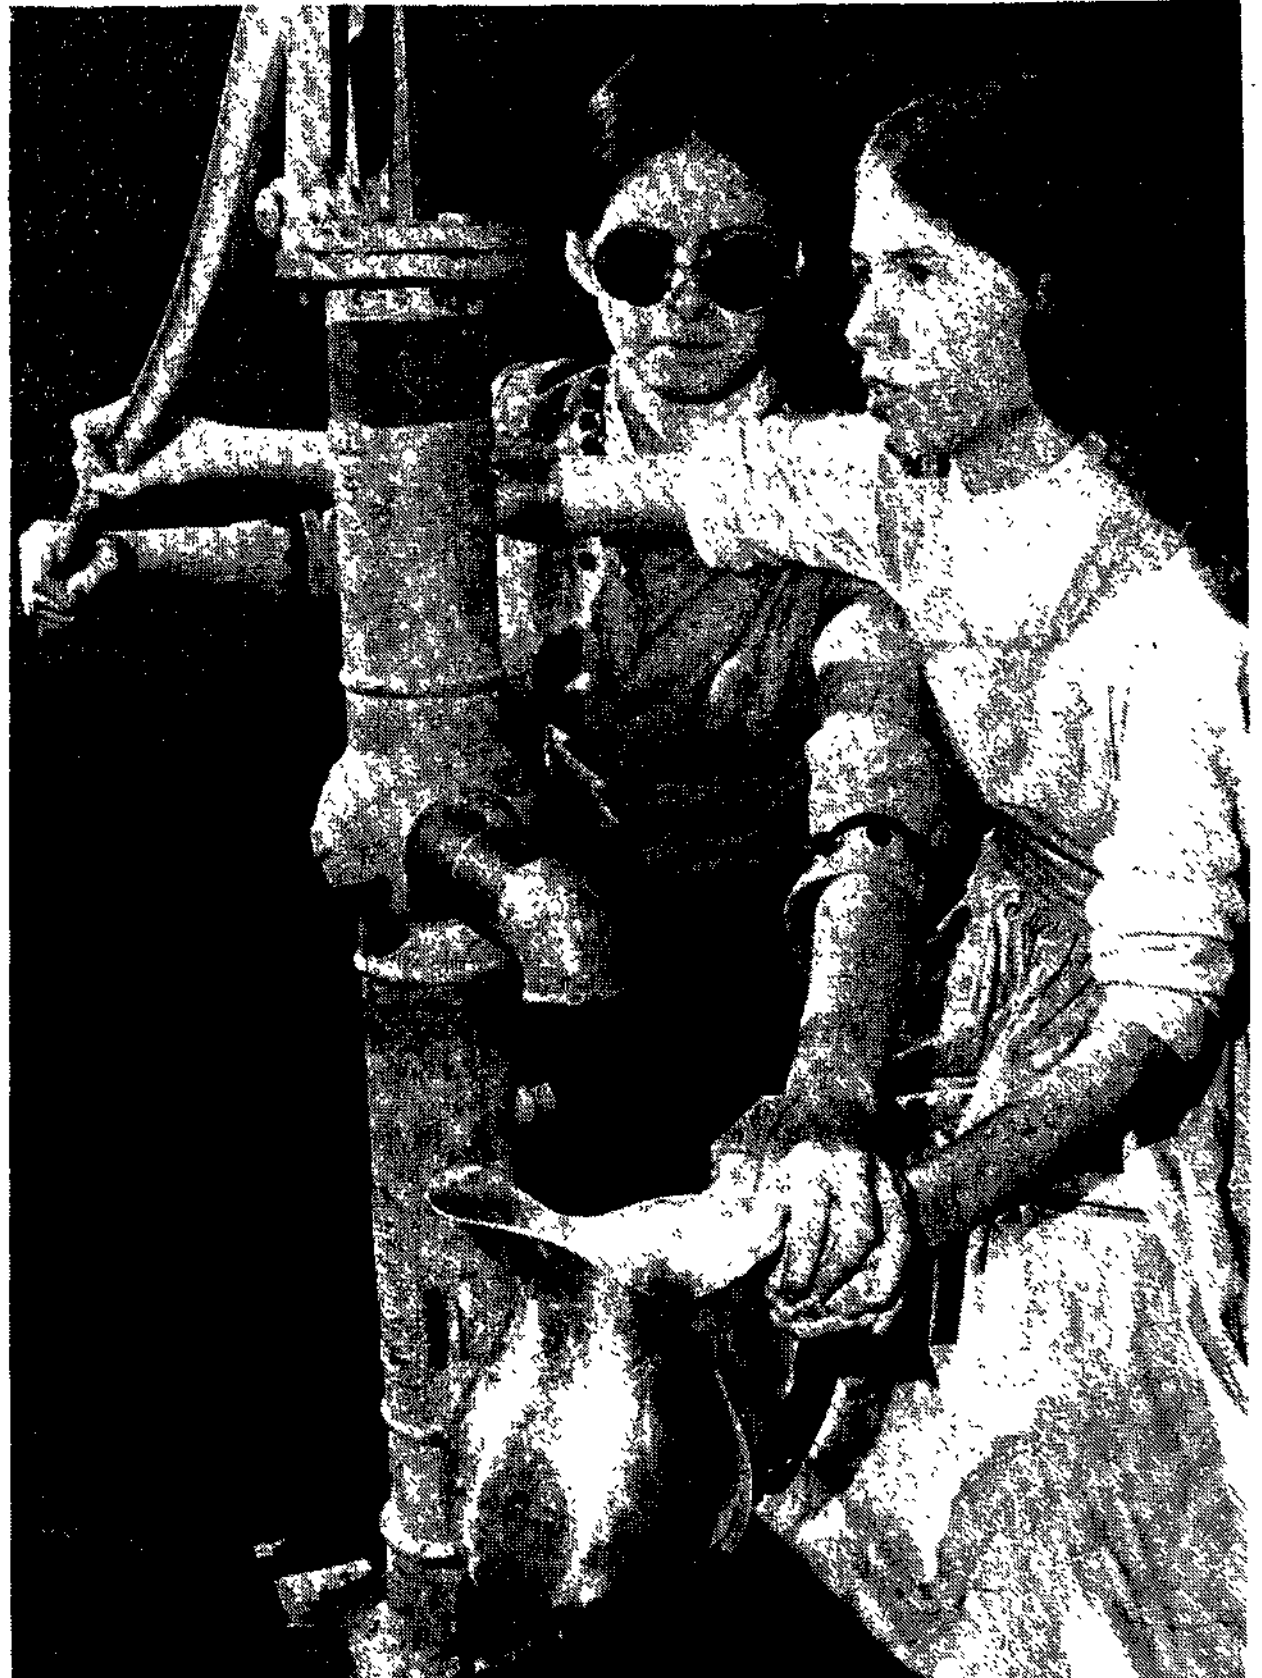

Lake County schools to back tax proposal

School Dist. 96 will support legal action requesting the state to add a tax multiplier to property assessments in Lake County.

Property owners in Lake County are being assessed at 1972 levels this year in an effort to equalize assessments between counties.

Because of the lowered assessments, Dist. 96 stands to lose at least $90,000 in anticipated revenue. Local Dist. 125 is expected to lose between $100,000 and $200,000.

Dist. 125 wrapup 7 school districts to meet and talk

A joint meeting is planned between the Dist. 125 school board and boards from the district's feeder elementary school districts to discuss mutual needs, problems and programs.

Dist. 125 School Board Pres. Robert Anderson said last Monday night he would issue invitations to the meeting to districts 96, 103, 102, 73, 76 and 79 and ask for agenda suggestions. No date for the meeting was set.

Citizens' progress reports

The Dist. 125 school board received progress reports Monday night from the three citizens' committees who are doing research on the freshman studies, mathematics and guidance programs at Stevenson High School.

Freshmen studies program committee chairman John Balmes reported that half of his committee has visited New Trier and Stevenson high schools and is planning trips to Deerfield, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove High Schools.

The other half of the freshmen studies committee, Balmes said, is drawing up a list of questions to be sent to all freshman and sophomore students and their parents. After the questions are reviewed by the entire committee, they will be presented to the board.

Guidance committee chairman Marion Slaga told the board that group has met twice with guidance counselors at Stevenson and will meet again next week. Slaga indicated the group may be ready to submit a report by the June school board meeting.

Edward Smith, chairman of the mathematics program committee, said after two meetings, the group has been unable to decide how to evaluate the math curriculum at Stevenson. A list of questions to be sent to other schools was developed, Smith said, but the group decided to move in another direction and that idea was dropped.

Co-op bilingual program?

Districts 125, 96, 102 and 103 have filed a joint application for a cooperative bilingual program to begin next fall.

A Spanish-speaking teacher and one Spanish-speaking aide will be hired to periodically visit each of the schools in the cooperative program for students in kindergarten through twelfth grade.

Enrollment jump seen

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Banser told the school board he expects an increase of about 114 students in September, boosting the present Stevenson enrollment to 1,168.

Banser said the additional students would necessitate the hiring of about five new teachers for the 1974-75 school year, probably in the areas of English, math, social science, business education, home economics, industrial arts, physical education and freshman studies.

A recent survey of housing projects under construction in Dist. 125 reveals that just under 1,000 new units will be constructed in the district by the fall of 1975, Banser said. The following year, an additional 1,500 units will be built and by 1977, another 2,300 are expected to be constructed.

In spite of these figures, Assistant Supt. Edwin Ellis said an unusual influx of students to Stevenson is not expected. Ellis explained that the district is presently getting about one student for every eight homes built.

SEDOL rep named

Dist. 125 School board member Frank Clayton of Buffalo Grove was named representative to the annual meeting of the Special Education District for Lake County (SEDOL) to be conducted in Gurnee this week.

SEDOL is a cooperative formed by several Lake County school districts to provide for the needs of students with special problems such as handicaps and retardation.

$23,526 grant received

The Dist. 125 has received a $23,526 grant from the Illinois Capital Development Board in a new program recently enacted by the state agency.

The grant will be applied against the district's 1974 bond and interest taxes, reducing the tax rate by that amount.

that the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs not be allowed to place a multiplier on the assessments that would increase the amount of money to go to Lake County schools and other taxing bodies.

Dist. 96 will support a counter-suit to be filed by Highland Park-Deerfield High School Dist. 113, calling for the multiplier. Board members took the action at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Besides donating $100 to help defray the costs of the Dist. 113 countersuit, Dist. 96 will also supply information for the record to substantiate claims that leaving off the multiplier will create financial hardships for Lake County schools.

Hoogasian's suit against the Department of Local Government Affairs is to be heard in judge's chambers May 29 in Waukegan.

Supt. William Hitzeman has said by supporting the countersuit, Dist. 96 hopes to establish a legal standing to be included in discussions of the matter if it goes into open court.

Hitzeman said the Dist. 113 countersuit is the first he knows of to be filed in response to Hoogasian's request to leave off the multiplier.

Mothers' unit seeks to promote German

by REGINA OEHLER

In an attempt to keep the German language and culture alive, a mothers' group has banded together to organize a German language school that will be meeting for two hours on Fridays beginning this September.

A meeting for parents interested in signing their children up for the school will be held at 8 p.m. June 6 at Immanuel Lutheran School, Plum Grove Rd. and Lincoln St., Palatine.

The school is sponsored by the German American National Congress, a German club which has 46 chapters in the U. S. The congress also runs schools in several Midwestern states, including two in Chicago. This will be the first time that a school has been attempted in the Northwest suburbs.

MRS. EDELTRAUD DILLMANN, one of the organizers of the school and a member of the congress, said that 50 parents have already indicated an interest in signing up their youngsters. She added that the group eventually hopes to have more than 100 students.

The classes will be open to any youngsters between the ages of 4 and 14. Tuition will be around $50 per student per year, a slight discount for congress members. For each additional family member, a correspondingly lower tuition fee will be charged. Specific details will be given out at the meeting.

The money will be used to cover the cost of hiring teachers and rental of classroom facilities at Immanuel Lutheran.

an, Mrs. Dillman said. She added that the school will be a non-for-profit organization.

At present, the group has lined up two instructors; one a teacher at Harper College and the other an instructor from one of the German language schools in Chicago. Mrs. Dillman said that more teachers would be hired if enough students sign up.

The congress is now negotiating to get high school credit for youngsters attending the German School, but presently, the student get no extra credit for taking the classes.

"There's a real need for such a school here," Mrs. Dillman said. The idea for the school began earlier this year when the 30 Germanic mothers from the Palatine area talked about how nice it would be to have a German school in the area so their children could learn German language and culture, she said. Several of the mothers have American husbands and generally do not speak German in the home, Mrs. Dillman said.

The group itself began meeting because women wanted to retain their knowledge of the German language. Once a month the 30 members meet at a home and for a few hours talk only in German, Mrs. Dillman said.

back riding, guitar playing, baton twirling, modern jazz techniques, belly dancing and bridge.

FOR SPORTS enthusiasts there will be classes in baseball, boys' and girls' gymnastics, boys' basketball, wrestling, golf, tennis and judo.

In addition to classes, the park district will operate summer playground programs at several schools, including Alcott, Kilmer, Longfellow, Tarkington, Willow Grove and Irving. There also will be day camp programs at Willow Grove School Park, Raupp Memorial Park and Willow Stream Park.

Registration for the Tiny Tots Camp and Kinder Korner Kamp will be June 10-11 from 9 a.m. to noon. Registration will be kept open until the classes are filled.

Tiny Tots Camp is open to youngsters who will be four before Dec. 1, 1974. The class limit is 30.

Kinder Korner Kamp is open to those who were four on or before Dec. 1, 1973, or who will be starting kindergarten in the fall. The class is limited to 60 youngsters.

Anyone with specific questions on times, fees or age requirements for the classes should call the park district at 537-0356 or consult the park district's summer brochure.

City to begin new Miner-River Road congestion study

by STEVE BROWN

City officials will begin a new study next week of possible solutions to easing the traffic snarls at the intersection of River Road and Miner Street in Des Plaines.

This newest review comes after years of study of the intersection, tagged by some officials as the biggest traffic problem in the city.

Ald. Richard Ward (8th) said he hopes to schedule a meeting of his streets and traffic committee meeting next week to review several proposed modifications which would hopefully correct the problems.

THE ALTERNATIVE plans, which center around the installation of left turn lanes at the intersection, were introduced at the same time the H. W. Lochner Co. submitted a new engineering report calling for some revisions in the proposed River Road-Thacker Street overpass.

Lochner engineers suggested splitting the project and putting emphasis on the River Road overpass which carries an estimated price tag of about $3.6 million.

A number of local residents protested the River Road-Thacker Street overpass proposal in 1972 and the Cook County Forest Preserve District has so far refused to turn over any land for the Thacker Street phase of the plan.

WARD DESCRIBED the new proposals for the intersection as possibly being interim remedies to the solution. City officials have been told that state and federal funds for the overpass could be delayed from 5 to 10 years.

"We have to look at every feasible alternative," Ward said.

City Engineer Robert Bowen said Wednesday that he is preparing a third possible alternative to modifying the intersection for presentation next week. Ward presented two possible solutions to the city council Monday.

Both plans would entail obtaining several small parcels of land to create the left turn lanes and realign Miner Street so that it crosses River Road in a more perpendicular manner.

However, Bowen said the third plan will involve modifying the intersection and possibly utilizing city plans to improve the intersection of River Road and Jefferson and Pearson streets to help improve the traffic flow through the area.

BOWEN SAID complete details of the third possible alternative for the intersection have not been completed as yet.

Ward said the study of the modifications for the interim improvements to the intersection might show enough improvements in traffic flow to eliminate the need for the overpass.

"We have to make the decision of whether or not the interim fits in with the long range goals or if the interim will satisfy the long range goals."

However, Bowen said that he is not at all confident that the interim solutions will eliminate the need for the overpass.

"We are attempting to design these improvements so that they would be able to accommodate the overpass," Bowen said. He added the city will attempt to seek federal funding for the overpass project during fiscal year 1976.

School board backs aid resolution

The Dist. 63 Board of Education endorsed a teachers' association resolution calling on state legislators to restore $70 million in state aid funds cut from the state budget.

Barbara Korb, president of the East Maine Education Assn., asked the board Tuesday night to join teachers in cooperative venture to gain restoration of the funds necessary to fully implement the new school aid formula.

Supt. G. Allan Gogo told teachers that the board supported the EMEA in its efforts to attain full funding and urged them to keep in contact with local legislators.

In other action, the board approved the appointment of Henry L. Jania as principal for summer school in the East Maine Elementary Schools. Jania is a math teacher at Apollo Junior High School.

The board also approved the appointment of Mrs. Elsie McAvoy as learning coordinator for the summer session. She is currently reading coordinator at Stevenson School. The summer session will run from June 24 to July 30.

10 scales at store found inaccurate

A new inspection program instituted by city officials last week has shown that grocery scales in at least one Des Plaines supermarket are registering inaccurate weights.

A team of city inspectors found that more than 10 scales at the A-Mart Food Store, 1111 Oakton St., registered inaccurate weights and that two scales were so far off that inspectors were forced to put condemned decals on the scales. Some scales found inaccurate registered in favor of the customer.

The initial report of the inspection program was presented Monday by Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), chairman of the council license and inspection committee. However, Bolek refused to identify the names of the stores which were inspected.

Marvin Martin and Robert Ladendorf, city sealers for the department of weight and measures, also refused to identify the stores.

However, The Herald has learned through reliable sources that the faulty scales were located at the A-Mart store.

CITY INSPECTORS found scales at the Jewel Food Store at 56 E. Northwest Hwy., and the K Mart at 1155 Oakton St. to be accurate.

An inspection of gasoline pumps at the Citgo gas station 2579 Ballard Rd., also showed accurate readings.

A spokesman for the A-Mart Food Store said all of the faulty scales had been corrected since the initial inspection was made.

City officials indicated they intend to inspect all scales and gasoline pumps in Des Plaines.

The inspection program was put into effect recently after the city council passed an ordinance creating the department.

Martin and Ladendorf attended a number of training sessions with state officials to learn how to properly check the accuracy of scales and gasoline pumps.

Bolek recommended the initiation of the program so city employees could take over for state inspectors to insure that scales and pumps could be examined with more regularity.

Parks will oppose Rosemont stadium

The Des Plaines Park District board of commissioners announced opposition to plans for a new proposed sports stadium in Rosemont despite cooperative attitudes toward the effort taken by other Des Plaines officials.

At a meeting Tuesday, the board adopted a resolution opposing the $20 million arena slated to be built on a 35-acre site just north of the Sheraton-O'Hare Motel on Mannheim Road.

The project is estimated to be completed in time for the 1974-75 hockey season to accommodate the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn.

LOCAL PARK commissioners voiced their concern, however, about increases in traffic volume, and that too many persons would leave their autos at the Lake Opeka Park area at Howard and Lee streets and walk to the stadium.

"The construction and use of the Rosemont Sports Complex would greatly increase the traffic volume, congestion and parking around the lake park and such an increased traffic volume, congestion and parking would drastically affect the programs and operation," according to the resolution.

"The board just wants to express to Rosemont village officials that our biggest concern will be when they have a hockey game and don't have enough parking space," said Park and Recreation Director Robert Kunkel.

With Lake Park being so close to the stadium site, Kunkel said, officials are concerned about the numbers of people that would park their cars there.

PLANS FOR THE area include parking for at least 4,200 cars around the arena that will be designed to seat 18,000 for hockey and basketball games.

A groundbreaking date for the complex may be announced next month, according to officials.

Schools to spend more in new '73-'74 budget

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary School Dist. 59 budget for the 1974-75 school year sets spending at a level 5 per cent higher than the 1973-74 budget of $13.9 million.

Costs of raises for administrators, teachers and maintenance personnel, which have not been figured into the budget, are certain to send spending levels even higher.

The budget, submitted to the board of education for review, calls for a total of $14.3 million for the coming school year.

Although it's still not definite, the district's tax rate budget is expected to decrease, despite the hike in spending, due to increased population and higher assessed valuation in the district.

The tax rate for the district is tentatively estimated at $2.37 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a $2.40 rate last year. State funds allocated to the district for tax relief, will send the rate down an additional estimated three cents per $100 assessed valuation for a tax rate of $2.34.

TAX-RATE COMPUTATIONS are based on an estimated 1974 equalized assessed valuation of $477 million for the district.

The breakdown by funds of the tax rate includes $1.46 for the district's educational fund, 25 cents for the building fund, 48 cents for the bond and interest fund, 8 cents for the transportation fund, 5 cents for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and 5 cents for the working cash fund.

The largest chunk of the budget is the education fund which is allocated approximately $10 million, compared to $9.8 million budgeted last year. Actual educational fund spending for the 1973-74

year was slightly less than budgeted for, about $9.7 million, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, who is responsible for preparing the budget.

PERRY SAID the reason for the educational fund surplus was that $75,000 was budgeted for spending, based on the assumption that the district was going to receive that sum in parochial. Following a court decision, however, that money was never released and never spent.

The building fund, which covers maintenance and improvements at schools, as well as new construction, has been set tentatively at $1.3 million.

The building fund is slightly higher than last year's expenditure of about $1.1 million, but doesn't take into account raises for maintenance employees, which is expected to send that portion of the budget even higher.

WHILE NO ESTIMATE can be made until salary negotiations are completed with teachers and other district personnel, raises for next year are virtually certain to send the total budget to well over $15 million.

The budget is based on the assumption that enrollment in the district will decrease more than 850 next year, from this year's enrollment of 11,156 to 10,294.

The decreased enrollment will also mean 11 fewer teachers will be employed next year, dropping from this year's total of 586 to 575.

The board is scheduled to discuss the budget at a committee meeting next Wednesday. The meeting, which will start at 8:30 p.m. will be held at the Dist. 59 administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Lounge owners seek to protect nude dancing

Owners of the Upstairs Lounge will continue to press for a court injunction to protect the nude dancing establishment from further police raids despite conviction on obscenity charges of the lounge owner's husband and three women dancers.

Members of the Cook County Sheriff's Police vice squad unit raided the lounge in the Dolphin Motel, 8550 W. Golf Rd., for the fourth time Sunday night.

A dancer, Gisela Howard, 24, of Des Plaines, was arrested for performing an obscene dance, and a bartender, William DuFor, 31, of Harwood Heights, was charged with presenting an obscene dance.

THE LOUNGE WAS the scene of three previous raids in March. Five dancers and a manager were arrested on similar charges then. Two of the dancers and the man, John Cardamon, who is the husband of the lounge owner, were later convicted, but charges against the other three dancers were dropped.

That decision is being appealed by the lounge's attorney, Julius Echeles.

At a hearing last week, Assistant State's Atty. Edna Epstein asked Judge Walter P. Dahl to dismiss the injunction request, arguing Echeles already has a legal recourse in the conviction appeal.

Dahl denied that motion, however, and granted the state 21 days to amend the motion granting Echeles a hearing on the injunction request.

An earlier request for a temporary restraining order was denied last month, but Echeles said he will request a permanent injunction that would stop the raids on the lounge until the appeal is heard.

MISS HOWARD AND DuFor currently are free on $1,000 bond and will appear June 24 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Echeles said Wednesday he also expects a hearing in either June or July on an appeal of a decision earlier this month not to renew the lounge's liquor license.

The ruling was handed down by the Cook County Board which refused to renew the license because Cardamon, 42, of Des Plaines was found guilty of federal gambling charges last year. In addition to his being found guilty in the obscenity case.

Housing commission meeting tonight

The recently created Des Plaines Housing Commission will hold its second meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at the Des Plaines City Hall.

The commission is expected to begin looking at possible study topics relating to the housing situation in Des Plaines.

The commission will probably devote some attention to the problem of sneak conversions of single family homes to rooming houses and regulations that might place greater control on this situation.

Anti-Superblock thrust mounting

A citizens' protest is quickly mounting against downtown redevelopment. In appears stronger than past protests with more than 1,000 names already collected on petitions.

Although some petition carriers say the main thrust of their drive is against the parking garage, planned for Ellinwood between Lee and Pearson, the tone of the petition is anti-Superblock and the coalition of people who created it.

The big question is whether or not the petition will work. Will Superblock topple before it is built? Probably not.

Thomas Mahon, city treasurer and petition passer, says it's not too late. As a member of Citizens for Common Good, he is asking residents to call their aldermen asking them to stop construction of the garage on Ellinwood Street and the railroad tracks, block the extension and widening of Prairie and Thacker, and reconsider the traffic problems before any garage or other structures are constructed in downtown Des Plaines.

THE MAIN CONCERN of the citizen's group, he says, is for the safety of the children who attend St. Mary's and Central schools. If redevelopment goes ahead as planned, the children will have to cross Prairie or Thacker streets which will be widened and much busier.

Without giving Superblock 100 per cent

support, let's look at a few facts:

- Children attending North School cross River Road. Children at Orchard Place School cross Mannheim at an intersection with no stop signs and no traffic lights. Children at South School also cross Mannheim.

Thacker is already a busy street during the morning rush hour. Central School, St. Mary's and Immanuel Lutheran School children are taken across the street right now by crossing guards. There are stop signs and school speed limits posted by Central and St. Mary's and traffic lights by Immanuel. Traffic is a problem near a school but it is not insurmountable when safety precautions are taken — as they have been, are being and will be.

- Central and St. Mary's are located downtown. There is no way to ignore that simple fact. Any improvement in the downtown area — be it Superblock as planned or anything else — will bring more traffic into this area.

The lack of traffic and the related lack of shoppers is the problem facing merchants in the downtown area. Take a look around town. Look down Center Street. Five years ago I worked on that street and it was decrepit then. Look at Ellinwood Street. The empty stores there have their counterparts on Lee. The streets in the downtown area have paths worn in them from shopkeepers moving in today and packing up and moving out in six months.

It is easy to sign a petition and be against something, but where are the alternatives, where are the studies, where are the other solutions to a dying downtown?

- Residents had a pro or con choice on Superblock in April, 1973. The time for protest was in the voting booth. These 1,000 people who have placed their names on petitions — and the thousands more who are supposed to do so, — had their opportunity when they elected nine aldermen and a mayor all of whom made their positions clear.

THESE ARE 7 of the 10 people elected:

Thomas Koplos (1st) — pro-Superblock.
Charles Bolek (3rd) — Pro-Superblock.
Daniel Kisslinger (4th) — Pro-Superblock.

Robert Hinde (4th) — Pro-Superblock but unopposed for election.
Irene Birchfield (5th) — Pro-Superblock.

Mayor Herbert Behrel — Pro-Superblock.

Some say the anti-Superblock uproar is a little too late. Make your own decision.

Bus service to continue despite law

Senior citizen bus service will be continued in Elk Grove Township despite a state law prohibiting townships from becoming financially involved in transportation systems.

The township board of auditors met in special session Tuesday night to consider procedural changes in allocating revenue sharing — a move forced by a decision from Illinois Attorney General William Scott which says the funds could not be spent by townships on some services, including the bus program.

Elk Grove and Wheeling townships filed suit recently in federal court, asking the U.S. Dept. of the Treasury to overrule Scott's decision, which stated townships may only spend revenue sharing funds for programs allowed under Illinois law.

Wheeling Township Atty. Richard Cowen told the Elk Grove township officials that under Illinois law, they could allocate up to $10,000 to a not-for-profit non-sectarian group for services for senior citizens.

ACCORDING TO STATE statutes, the township may present a resolution at an annual town meeting or a special meeting of township electors that would allow non-tax revenues to provide services for senior citizens. The resolution would have to be approved by a two-thirds vote.

Elk Grove Township auditor Richard Hall noted that the township had originally budgeted $20,000 for the bus service. He said that original plans had called for running the bus service all day long, but that the service would probably be cut back.

OTHER AREAS affected by the attorney general's ruling are public safety, mental health services, environmental protection and recreation. Cowen said Elk Grove Township has the power to spend non-tax monies to contract services and facilities for mental health care. He added, however, that the money can only be spent at institutions approved by the State Dept. of Mental Health and must have been in existence for at least one year.

The township will also be able to allocate federal revenue sharing funds for sewers, since the township does have a sewer ordinance under state law.

The township was forced to revive its federal revenue sharing expenditures after Scott questioned the legality of a proposed state law which would have allowed townships to budget money for any purposes defined as priority expenditures under federal statutes, including programs for youth, the poor and aged.

Pilot lunch plan to end at 2 schools

A pilot lunch program begun this week at three schools in Dist. 26 will continue through the end of the school year at only one of the schools.

The recommendation to abandon the pilot program at Indian Grove and Park View schools in Mount Prospect was made by Supt. John Fridlund at Tuesday night's school board meeting.

Dist. 26 serves the northeast portion of Mount Prospect and parts of Des Plaines.

A crowd of more than 50 residents heard Fridlund tell the board the program will continue only at Euclid School in Mount Prospect because it is "better suited there."

FRIDLUND SAID a decision to stop the program at Indian Grove and Park View was based on consultations, with school and lunch program personnel. Both schools will continue receiving pilot program lunches until the end of the week. District-prepared meals will be served at both schools starting Monday and continue through the end of the school year.

The pilot program serves frozen lunches purchased from Mass Feeding Corp. of Elk Grove Village. Fridlund read a statement explaining his position in recommending the pilot program. He said the administration is continually seeking ways to improve both the academic and nonacademic system in the district.

Fridlund said the pilot program was proposed partly to provide an opportunity to evaluate the district lunch program and also offer an opportunity for qualitative food analysis. The superintendent added an optimistic note for the current district program by stating, "Any program with merit can stand up to competition."

Board member Lloyd Demel, who voted against initiating the pilot program, also read a prepared statement. Although he opposed instituting the program, Demel urged the "indulgence" of residents until the pilot program is completed and evaluated.

Demel residents to attend the board meeting in which the final decision on the program will be made. He further recommended the board make a special effort to publicize when it will make its recommendations this summer.

Board Pres. Michael Sheyker said the program "was and is still considered a pilot program to provide a comparison of quality, service and cost."

SHEYKER SAID HE was personally disappointed with the reaction of lunch staff personnel who were vocal in protesting the pilot program without giving it a chance.

The board president was referring to the situation that developed at Indian Grove where the lunch program supervisor refused to serve the Mass Feeding lunches.

Sheyker was also critical of newspaper reports about the reaction of lunch staff personnel regarding the pilot program.

Residents at the meeting were vocal in their criticism of the pilot program, saying the oven facilities at the schools were not adequate to accommodate the Mass Feeding program.

Parents also objected to the menus of the frozen lunches, saying they did not offer a tasty and nutritious lunch as district-prepared meals.

Board member Leora Rose responded by pointing out that Mass Feeding lunches are nutritionally approved by the government.

Elk Grove Twp. to weigh day-care plans

Elk Grove Township officials will meet Tuesday night to hear presentations from various professional groups on possible ways to operate a proposed day-care center for preschool children from low-income families.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Monday the board of auditors will meet with representatives of different day-care centers to "try to clarify just what approaches there are and what the advantages and disadvantages are."

Hall said a citizen's group planning the day-care center was asked to be present at the meeting and denied that the group had been discontinued.

"As far as I'm concerned, the citizens' group is not disbanded," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor said plans for the center include formation of a not-for-profit organization by the citizens' group. He said the group would serve as the board of directors of the day-care facility with the township auditors acting as incorporators.

At the May 6 meeting of the township auditors, Hall said the township officials would act as the governing board of the day-care center and hire experts to run it. He said Wednesday that the township had always planned for the citizens' group to act as directors with a professional hired to run the day-to-day operation.

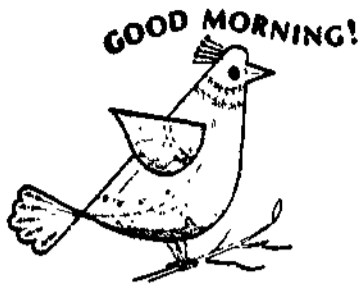

Hall said the township will be able to use revenue-sharing funds for operating the center. The budget calls for $30,000 to be spent on the facility.

Township officials met Monday night to revise federal revenue-sharing fund expenditures after Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the funds could not be spent by townships on some services. Hall said the township attorney advised him that the day-care center qualifies for the federal funds.

The township supervisor said he didn't expect any decision on the center at the Tuesday night meeting but that he hoped to begin operation of the facility by September.

"Whether it's possible or not is problematical," he said.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the township offices at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

May go even higher

Grade-school spending expected to increase 5%

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary School Dist. 59 budget for the 1974-75 school year sets spending at a level 5 per cent higher than the 1973-74 budget of $13.8 million.

Costs of raises for administrators, teachers and maintenance personnel, which have not been figured into the budget, are certain to send spending levels even higher.

The budget, submitted to the board of education for review, calls for a total of $14.3 million for the coming school year.

Although it's still not definite, the district's tax rate budget is expected to decrease, despite the hike in spending, due to increased population and higher as-essed valuation in the district.

The tax rate for the district is tentatively estimated at $2.37 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a $2.40 rate last year. State funds allocated to the district for tax relief, will send the rate down an additional estimated three cents per $100 assessed valuation for a tax rate of $2.34.

A X-RATE COMPUTATIONS are based on an estimated 1974 equalized assessed valuation of $477 million for the district.

The breakdown by funds of the tax rate includes $1.46 for the district's educational fund, 25 cents for the building fund, 48 cents for the bond and interest fund, 8 cents for the transportation fund, 5 cents for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and 5 cents for the working cash fund.

The largest chunk of the budget is the education fund which is allocated approximately $10 million, compared to $9.8 million budgeted last year. Actual educational fund spending for the 1973-74 year was slightly less than budgeted for, about $9.7 million, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, who is responsible for preparing the budget.

PERRY SAID the reason for the educational fund surplus was that $75,000 was budgeted for spending, based on the assumption that the district was going to receive that sum in parochial. Following a court decision, however, that money was never released and never spent.

The building fund, which covers maintenance and improvements at schools, as well as new construction, has been set tentatively at $1.3 million.

The building fund is slightly higher than last year's expenditure of about $1.1 million, but doesn't take into account raises for maintenance employees, which is expected to send that portion of the budget even higher.

WHILE NO ESTIMATE can be made until salary negotiations are completed with teachers and other district personnel, raises for next year are virtually certain to send the total budget to well over $15 million.

The budget is based on the assumption that enrollment in the district will decrease more than 850 next year, from this year's enrollment of 11,156 to 10,294.

The decreased enrollment will also mean 11 fewer teachers will be employed next year, dropping from this year's total of 586 to 575.

The board is scheduled to discuss the budget at a committee meeting next Wednesday. The meeting, which will start at 8:30 p.m. will be held at the Dist. 59 administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

SURREALISTIC. These Conant High School students are sitting in a 12-foot-by-12-foot plastic room suspended by forced air. The room is one exhibit in the school's art fair, open to the public during school Friday.

Teachers reach pact agreement

Negotiators for teachers and the administration in School Dist. 59 have reached an agreement on a teachers' contract for the 1974-75 school year, it was announced Wednesday.

Details of the new contract are being withheld, until Monday when the district's 588 teachers vote on ratification.

Sources say, however, that the new contract calls for a pay increase of between 12.5 and 13 per cent. It is believed that the settlement gives Dist. 59 teachers the highest base pay in the state, pending teacher settlements in other school districts.

The school board in the Elk Grove Township district is expected to vote on the new contract at its next regular meeting, scheduled for Monday, June 3.

THE PRESENT starting salary for a teacher in the district, is $8,369 per year. A 12.5 to 13 per cent increase would put starting salaries around $9,200 per year.

Because of teacher voting on the new contract, school in Dist. 59 will be dismissed one hour earlier this Monday, which is a regular school day. Students in K-5 buildings, who are normally dismissed at 3:25 p.m., will get out at 2:25 p.m. Monday.

Students at Holmes and Lively Junior High will be released at 1:40 p.m., rather than the normal 2:40 p.m. Students at Grove, Dempster and Friendship Junior high schools will be dismissed at 2:05 p.m. instead of 3:05 p.m.

Industrial lot splits to be OK'd?

The Elk Grove Village Plan Commission will meet in special session at 8 p.m. today to approve subdivisions in the Centex Industrial Park.

Commission member Leah Cummins said the meeting was called to complete unfinished business from the May 16 meeting when the commission lacked a quorum. Scheduled for discussion are requests for approval of several plots in the Higgins Industrial Park Unit and the Kotsios-Manaves subdivision.

A request by funeral director Anthony Maioriello for rezoning of two lots at Arlington Heights Road and Clearmont Drive will not be considered until the June 6 meeting of the board.

Residents in the area have filed petitions objecting to any zoning change that would permit a funeral home. Objectors said a mortuary on Arlington Heights Road would create a traffic problem and open the residential area to commercial development.

Maioriello owns two lots at 1199 Arlington Heights Rd. The property fronts on Arlington Heights Road on the northeast corner of Clearmont. The family lives in a home Maioriello plans to demolish if his plans for construction of the two-story funeral home is approved.

The funeral parlor would have entrances and exits on four-lane Arlington Heights Road and Clearmont Drive.

Maioriello said existing traffic from the funeral parlor would use the Clearmont Drive exit to Arlington Heights Road. There are no residential homes on Clearmont between the site and Arlington Heights Road.

Community Service Board names officers

The Elk Grove Village Community Service Board has elected officers for the coming year.

Ed Meikel was elected chairman of the board. Former village president Jack Pahl was elected vice president, and Kevin McCarthy was voted secretary-treasurer.

The board has also named a new member to replace the Rev. George Rassus, assistant pastor at Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church in Elk Grove Village.

LaVon Cooney was named to replace Rev. Rassus, who is being reassigned to another church and will be leaving the village.

Elk Grove Twp. to weigh day-care plans

Elk Grove Township officials will meet Tuesday night to hear presentations from various professional groups on possible ways to operate a proposed day-care center for preschool children from low-income families.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Monday the board of auditors will meet with representatives of different day-care centers to "try to clarify just what approaches there are and what the advantages and disadvantages are."

Hall said a citizen's group planning the day-care center was asked to be present at the meeting and denied that the group had been discontinued.

"As far as I'm concerned, the citizens' group is not disbanded," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor said plans for the center include formation of a not-for-profit organization by the citizens' group. He said the group would serve as the board of directors of the day-care facility with the township auditors acting as incorporators.

At the May 6 meeting of the township auditors, Hall said the township officials would act as the governing board of the day-care center and hire experts to run it. He said Wednesday that the township

VFW Buddy Poppy sale slated today

Elk Grove VFW Post 9284 and its auxiliary will hold their annual Buddy Poppy day today in Elk Grove Village.

The poppies, made by the hospitalized veterans, provide extra income for them and are used as rehabilitation in the form of therapy.

More than $3,500 was collected by the post and auxiliary last year. The proceeds went to Hines Veterans Hospital for recreation activities, the support of orphans and widows at the VFW National Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich. and an assistance fund for all needy veterans and their families within the community.

had always planned for the citizens' group to act as directors with a professional hired to run the day-to-day operation.

Hall said the township will be able to use revenue-sharing funds for operating the center. The budget calls for $30,000 to be spent on the facility.

Township officials met Monday night to revise federal revenue-sharing fund expenditures after Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the funds could not be spent by townships on some services. Hall said the township attorney advised him that the day-care center qualifies for the federal funds.

The township supervisor said he didn't expect any decision on the center at the Tuesday night meeting but that he hoped to begin operation of the facility by September.

"Whether it's possible or not is problematical," he said.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the township offices at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Have waste, will recycle

Barry Segal got his start in the recycling business at age 5, and he's still at it with Schaumburg firm

by PAT GERLACH
Haste, or anything else for that matter, can't make waste fast enough for Barry Segal.

Segal, 25, owns and operates Ecology Inc., a paper and metal recycling business he started in Schaumburg early this year.

In fact, Segal thinks he is probably one of few men his age who can boast of "having been in the business for 20 years."

"When I was five, my dad took me down to his plant and told me to get busy learning to sort newspaper. I've had a lot of experience since then," he said.

SEGAL CONSIDERS his business one that lends itself typically to a "family operation."

"Often the profits are such that you really couldn't trust an outsider," he said.

Though buying paper from individuals or businesses and selling it to paper dealers or mills is a reasonably lucrative business, Segal said he really "can't talk paper prices."

Presently, paper prices are the lowest they have been in 10 months, Segal said.

"Today it might sell for $16 per ton but tomorrow the price could be far different," he added, noting that it has sold for as much as $40 a ton last November, "before a steady drop" began.

After moving to Roselle last year, Barry decided to go into business for himself closer to home because the trip to his dad's plant in Chicago each day "just wasn't worth the hassle."

He said there were people at his door with newspapers to sell for recycling the day he opened shop last February at 622 W. Lunt Ave. in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park. "If someone is interested in collecting and selling paper they just somehow instinctively know where to take it," he said. He also accepts aluminum cans, auto batteries and radiators and just about every other recyclable discard.

SEGAL ESTIMATES that about 25 per cent of his business is "door trade" with the rest consisting of "paper accounts — people who use paper as a commodity," for example, lithographers, printers and banks.

"There is really big money in computer cards," says Segal.

Basically his operation is a one-man business, but Segal says that his wife and father-in-law often lend a hand and his college student brother will work with him during the summer.

Each Friday and Saturday the shop is open to receive paper from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., but other weekdays hours are limited to from 3 to 5 p.m. Still this represents a 10-to 14-hour workday for Barry, who does most of his own baling and sorting as well as scouting new accounts.

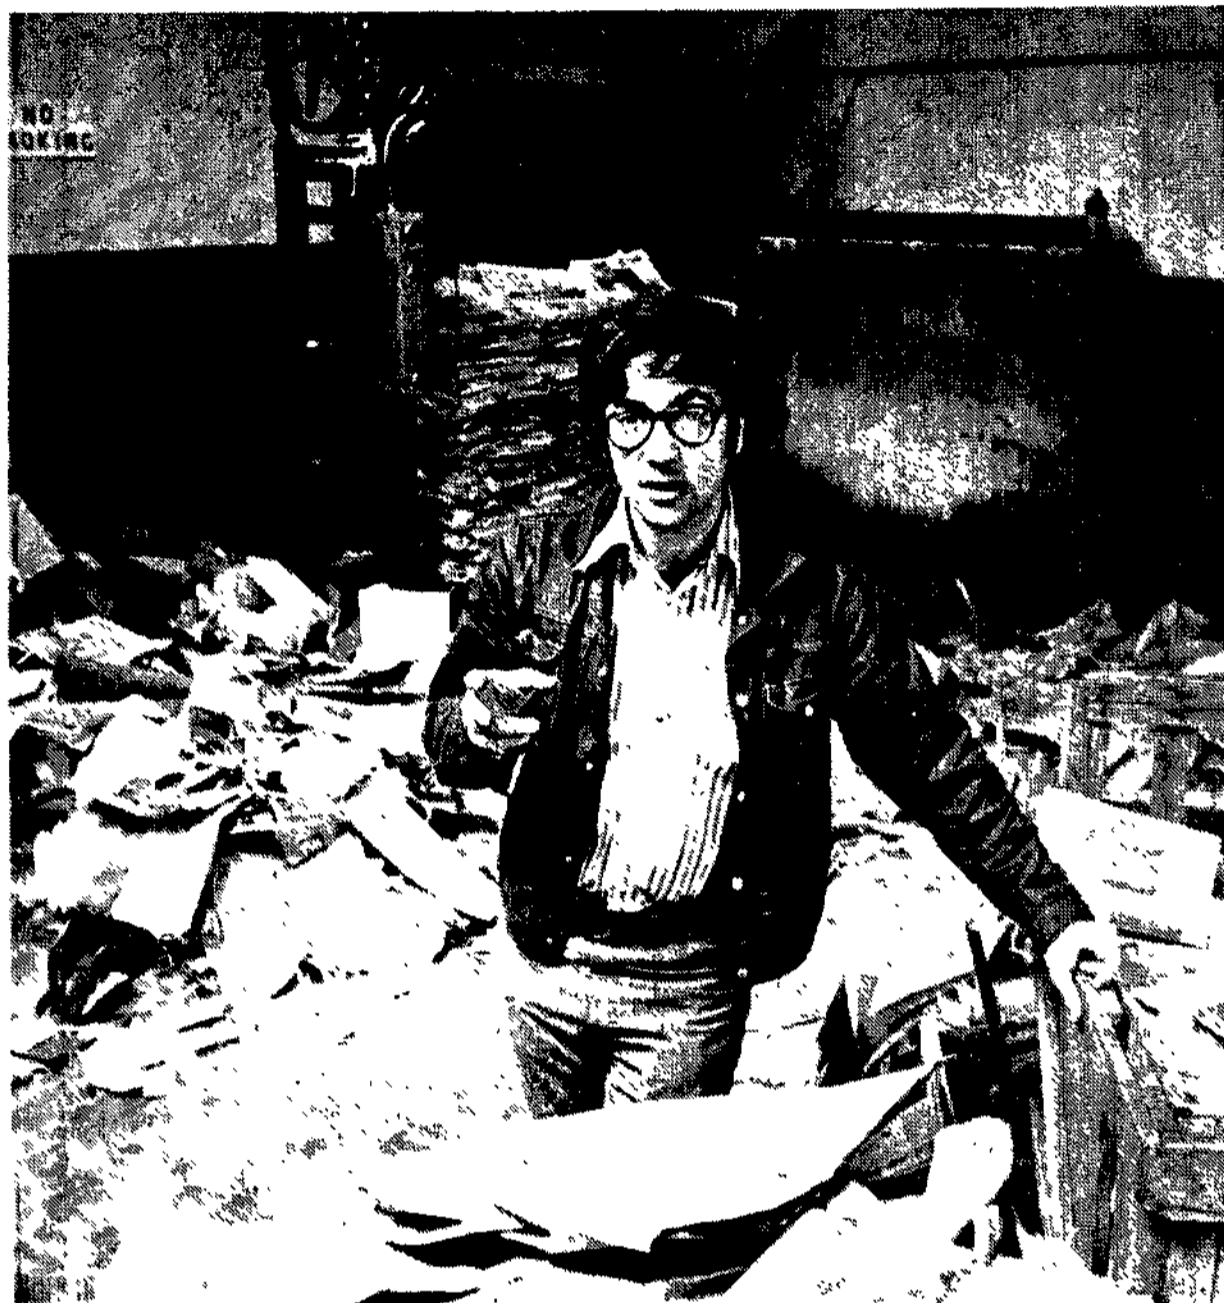

"RIGHT NOW it's tough and I'm just getting started, but the business is holding its own and in this field there is no where to go but up," Segal said.

As far as ecology is concerned, Segal says he would be a believer even if his livelihood did not depend on conservation-minded people.

"In this day and age there is just no other way. We have got to save and recycle to survive and that's just what I am here to help people do," he asserted.

SORTING, BALING and shredding all types of waste paper delivered to his Schaumburg plant often results in a 12-hour workday for Barry Segal.

"RECYCLING has to be a way of life today," says Barry Segal, owner-operator of Ecology Inc., a Schaumburg paper-metal salvage firm. Segal, 25, boasts more than 20 years' experience in the industry.

Parks will oppose Rosemont stadium

The Des Plaines Park District board of commissioners announced opposition to plans for a new proposed sports stadium in Rosemont despite cooperative attitudes toward the effort taken by other Des Plaines officials.

At a meeting Tuesday, the board adopted a resolution opposing the $20 million arena slated to be built on a 35-acre site just north of the Sheraton-O'Hare Motel on Mannheim Road.

The project is estimated to be completed in time for the 1974-75 hockey season to accommodate the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn.

LOCAL PARK commissioners voiced their concern, however, about increases in traffic volume, and that too many persons would leave their autos at the Lake Opeka Park area at Howard and Lee streets and walk to the stadium.

"The construction and use of the Rosemont Sports Complex would greatly increase the traffic volume, congestion and parking around the lake park and such an increased traffic volume, congestion and parking would drastically affect the programs and operation," according to the resolution.

"The board just wants to express to Rosemont village officials that our biggest concern will be when they have a hockey game and don't have enough parking space," said Park and Recreation Director Robert Kunkel.

With Lake Park being so close to the stadium site, Kunkel said, officials are concerned about the numbers of people that would park their cars there.

PLANS FOR THE area include parking for at least 4,200 cars around the arena that will be designed to seat 18,000 for hockey and basketball games.

A groundbreaking date for the complex may be announced next month, according to officials.

From the library

Serapes and straw hats, pinatas and painted pottery — every summer day will be a fiesta day at the Elk Grove Village Public Library with "book fiesta," the summer reading club for youngsters of elementary school age.

During "book fiesta" young readers will choose ten books to read and report on in the children's room of the library. At the end of the fiesta, readers with ten books under their sombreros will attend a pinata party.

Registration for fiesta-goers is the week of June 17. Youngsters will have until Aug. 10 to read their books. Call the children's room at 439-0447 for more information.

Bedtime story hours will be held every Tuesday from June 18 - August 27 at 7 p.m. and again at 8 p.m. at the Elk Grove Village Public Library. They will replace the usual Tuesday daytime programs.

Children in the three to five year age group are welcome. Head storytellers Justine Tarpy and Clara Knoepfle will provide plays, puppets, movies, sing-alongs and lots of stories. Some of the programs will have a Spanish flavor, as "book fiesta," the summer reading club for older children, progresses.

Registration is not required. Pajamas are optional.

The last daytime story hour will be May 28. Story hours will resume with the evening program on June 18.

Twinbrook Y summer program

She wants to return to camp

by PAT GERLACH

Ten-year-old Joanne Proue of Schaumburg went to Twinbrook YMCA summer camp last year and liked it enough to want to make sure she goes back this year.

In fact, Joanne, a student at Schaumburg Elementary School, sold the 15,000th case of YMCA peanuts this spring. The peanuts are sold by children to earn their way to summer camp.

"We consider 15,000 cases an all-time high," said Bob Williams, YMCA executive director. Williams said that less than 1,000 cases were sold last year but noted "sales just go along with the fantastic registration we have had for this year."

He said 450 young people are now registered with eight of the 14 week sessions filled to capacity.

Four of the Y-campers come from the Proue family, 15 S. Salem Dr.

JOANNE AND HER brother Danny, 9, will both be attending Y-Camp Edwards, a one week residence camp on Lake Beulah near Lake Geneva.

Activities there range from archery and riflery to a broad range of aquatic events such as canoeing, boating, swimming and sailing. The camp is limited to girls and boys entering grades four through six.

Both Joanne and Danny earned their complete way to summer camp by each selling 36 cases of YMCA peanuts and are now helping younger brother and sister, Linda and Bob, earn their way to Twinbrook Y's Day Camping program.

MORE THAN 200 youngsters are selling peanuts, Williams said. One Y-Indian Princess tribe is selling 32 cases and giving the profit to the YMCA Campership Fund, which helps needy youngsters go to camp.

Peanuts sell for $1 per can and the camper is credited with 35 cents for each can sold with cases checked out on a consignment basis.

Williams said peanuts are still in stock and encouraged children to register for one of the Y-Camps and begin selling immediately.

Lounge seeks to protect nude dancing

Owners of the Upstairs Lounge will continue to press for a court injunction to protect the nude dancing establishment from further police raids despite conviction on obscenity charges of the lounge owner's husband and three women dancers.

in the Dolphin Motel, 8550 W. Golf Rd., for the fourth time Sunday night.

A dancer, Gisela Howard, 24, of Des Plaines, was arrested for performing an obscene dance, and a bartender, William DuFor, 31, of Harwood Heights, was charged with presenting an obscene dance.

THE LOUNGE WAS the scene of three previous raids in March. Five dancers and a manager were arrested on similar charges then. Two of the dancers and the man, John Cardamon, who is the husband of the lounge owner, were later convicted, but charges against the other three dancers were dropped.

That decision is being appealed by the lounge's attorney, Julius Echeles.

At a hearing last week, Assistant State's Atty. Edna Epstein asked Judge Walter P. Dahl to dismiss the injunction request, arguing Echeles already has a legal recourse in the conviction appeal.

Dahl denied that motion, however, and granted the state 21 days to amend the motion granting Echeles a hearing on the injunction request.

An earlier request for a temporary restraining order was denied last month, but Echeles said he will request a permanent injunction that would stop the raids on the lounge until the appeal is heard.

MISS HOWARD AND DuFor currently are free on $1,000 bond and will appear June 24 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Echeles said Wednesday he also expects a hearing in either June or July on an appeal of a decision earlier this month not to renew the lounge's liquor license.

The ruling was handed down by the Cook County Board which refused to renew the license because Cardamon, 42, of Des Plaines was found guilty of federal gambling charges last year, in addition to his being found guilty in the obscenity case.

Unit petitions 'won't be filed'

by JUDY JOBBITT

Petitions for a Schaumburg-area unit school district probably never will be filed, said James Blankenship at a Sheffield Park Homeowners Assn. meeting Tuesday night.

The petitions were circulated as a safety measure to protect Schaumburg's tax base, he said. The committee will only file the petitions if Schaumburg's tax base is threatened by another group petitioning for a unit district.

He said Wednesday the committee prepared the petitions because it feared Rolling Meadows might incorporate Union Oil Co. and other industrial tax bases in the Schaumburg-area petition into its own unit district.

A unit district would place elementary and high schools under one administration.

THE COMMITTEE has obtained more than the 200 signatures required to filing the petitions with the Cook County school superintendent. The committee will hold onto the petitions as ammunition against another group that might threaten the Schaumburg-area tax base, he said.

Monday Blankenship said the committee would consider a Schaumburg Township unit district and would consider redistricting the petitions' boundaries to include the part of Hoffman Estates currently in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

The petitions currently include Schaumburg and the parts of Roselle, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Hanover Park now in Dist. 54.

The committee followed the recommendations of the feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors under the direction of Ralph Belnap.

The study also recommended unit districts be formed for Palatine and Inverness, and Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows. The study stated the most important reason for forming unit districts in the suburbs was increased community identity.

JOANNE PROUE, 10, recently sold the 15,000th case of Twinbrook YMCA Peanuts. Profits from the annual sale enable youngsters to attend Camp Edwards, near Lake Geneva, Wis., for one week each summer.

New 'Old Madrid' plan to be on display Saturday

Palatine residents will have a chance to review new development plans for the Old Madrid property at a public presentation at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

This will be the second public presentation this month by Sellergren Inc. in an effort to keep residents abreast of their latest plans for the development of the 65-acre parcel on the northwest corner of Northwest Highway and Hicks Road.

The revised plans for the development of the property were officially presented to the Palatine Village Board Monday. The board has referred the matter to the zoning board of appeals for a public hearing June 13.

THE NEW PLANS call for the development of nine 6-story condominium buildings and a cluster of commercial, recreational and cultural buildings on 36.8 acres. Previous plans for this parcel were for the construction of three additional 14-story apartment buildings to match the existing one.

The revised plans, if approved, would reduce the number of dwelling units on the undeveloped parcel by 377 units from the 881 now approved to 441. Of the 441 units 81 would be one-bedroom, 324 two-bedroom and 36 three-bedroom.

Sellergren had originally proposed to donate $200,000 to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 to cover the tax lag between when the district received children from the project and when it received tax revenue. Dist. 15 has received $50,000 for the existing apartment building and was to receive $50,000 each when building permits were issued on the other three apartment units.

The revised plans ask for a reduction in the donation from the remaining $150,000 to $90,000 payable concurrent with the issuance of a building permit for construction of each residential building, according to documents filed with village officials.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he was unaware of plans to reduce the donation and the last communication the school district had from Sellergren he pledged to donate the remaining $150,000 regardless of the proposed revision in the plans.

A recreation building with a bathhouse to serve an outdoor swimming pool is also planned. The commercial use is planned to be a small cluster of specialty shops which would provide a transition from the commercial use along Northwest Highway to the residential subdivisions to the north.

Commercial use is still planned for a 25.69-acre site at the intersection of Northwest Highway and Hicks Road. Woolco of Cleveland, a discount department store, has expressed an interest in locating on the site.

Four liquor licenses now are committed to the project, one for a tavern in each building. The revised plans call for four 4 a.m. liquor licenses. One would be for a restaurant on top of the existing apartment building, another for the recreation building and two others for the commercial development. Three liquor licenses are also proposed to permit the sale of packaged liquor.

Scheduled completion date for the project is Dec. 31, 1980.

Commercial zoning favored on highway

Commercial zoning for two parcels along Northwest Highway will be recommended by the Palatine Plan Commission.

The commission voted Tuesday to recommend to the village board approval of Yellow Freight Co.'s request to rezone the two parcels for commercial use. The plan commission will also recommend the annexation of one of the parcels now located in unincorporated Palatine Township.

The two adjacent parcels total more than three acres and are located at 495 W. Northwest Hwy. between the Village Oasis and another recently rezoned commercial development.

No specific plans have been proposed for the use of the land.

Fine arts week at high school

Fremd High School students will present fine arts week next week at the school.

The Orchestra troupe, jazz band and members of the speech team will give performances and the symphonic and concert bands and choirs will give concerts at 8 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Admission price is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Exhibits of student art work will be on display at the school throughout the week.

Mothers to promote German heritage

by REGINA OEHLER

In an attempt to keep the German language and culture alive, a mothers' group has banded together to organize a German language school that will be meeting for two hours on Fridays beginning this September.

A meeting for parents interested in signing their children up for the school will be held at 8 p.m. June 6 at Immanuel Lutheran School, Plum Grove Rd. and Lincoln St., Palatine.

The school is sponsored by the German American National Congress, a German club which has 46 chapters in the U. S. The congress also runs schools in several Midwestern states, including two in Chicago. This will be the first time that a school has been attempted in the Northwest suburbs.

MRS. EDELTRAUD DILLMANN, one of the organizers of the school and a member of the congress, said that 50 parents have already indicated an interest in signing up their youngsters. She added that the group eventually hopes to have more than 100 students.

The classes will be open to any youngsters between the ages of 4 and 14. Tuition will be around $50 per student per year, a slight discount for congress members. For each additional family member, a correspondingly lower tuition fee will be charged. Specific details will be given out at the meeting.

The money will be used to cover the cost of hiring teachers and rental of classroom facilities at Immanuel Lutheran, Mrs. Dillmann said. She added that the school will be a non-for-profit organization.

At present, the group has lined up two instructors; one a teacher at Harper College and the other an instructor from one of the German language schools in Chicago. Mrs. Dillmann said that more teachers would be hired if enough students sign up.

The congress is now negotiating to get high school credit for youngsters attending the German School, but presently, the student get no extra credit for taking the classes.

"There's a real need for such a school here," Mrs. Dillmann said. The idea for the school began earlier this year when the 30 Germanic mothers from the Palatine area talked about how nice it would be to have a German school in the area so their children could learn German language and culture, she said. Several of the mothers have American husbands and generally do not speak German in the home, Mrs. Dillmann said.

The group itself began meeting because women wanted to retain their knowledge of the German language. Once a month the 30 members meet at a home and for a few hours talk only in German, Mrs. Dillmann said.

Horse killed in crash with auto

A horse was killed and an auto totally demolished after the animal and the car collided on Northwest Highway, 1/4-mile east of Quentin Road in Palatine Tuesday night.

Burt J. Ising, 39, of Orchard Lake, Mich., told police he was driving west on Northwest Highway when he saw the horse in his lane heading east. According to police, the horse was flung on top of Ising's auto upon impact. Ising was uninjured in the accident.

The horse belonged to Kurt Stier, 510 W. Baldwin Rd. The accident occurred at 9:12 p.m. Tuesday.

Mystic Eye Bookstore caters to more metaphysical tastes

by TONI GINETTI

Walking into a store whose wares revolve around the occult, you might expect to meet a mysterious fortune-telling proprietor peering at you in a darkened room through parted strings or beads.

Walk into the Mystic Eye Bookstore and Psychic Center in Rolling Meadows, however, and you will meet normal teenager Jackie Frink, manager and one-third of the family who runs this small shop.

The store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center opened recently to offer a local place for students of the psychic and supernatural to indulge in their metaphysical interests.

"There are quite a few people out here involved in metaphysical things," Jackie said. "Before they would have to go into the city or borrow a book from the library. So my father said why not open a book store."

THE SHOP IS THE family's first business venture. It is being managed by 18-year-old Jackie and backed by her father and mother Larry and Flora Frink.

For Frink, who is a sales representative from American Rug and Carpet Co., and his wife, who is a secretary for United Airlines, a store dealing with the psychic wasn't really an unusual venture.

"My mother is president of the National Hypnotic Research Center in Arlington Heights, and my father is the business-oriented one," Jackie said. Frink also practices numerology, a method of using numbers to prepare personality charts and horoscopes similar to the use of stars in astrology.

The interest in starting the shop grew from the family's interest in metaphysics, according to Jackie.

"WE STARTED OUT going to psychics for readings, astrology study and that," she said. "My parents had seen another book store like this but it didn't make it, so my father said we should look into this.

"At first I thought it was nuts," she laughed. "I thought it would take a lot of money and we had never done anything like this before, but he kept on talking about it and asked me if I would manage it for them."

The store's book shelves display texts and paperbacks on such searching subjects as hypnosis, astrology, meditation, yoga, Unidentified Flying Objects, extrasensory perception, fortune telling, reincarnation, witchcraft, palmistry and satanism, among others. "The Exorcist" is, of course, available too.

The shop also intends to offer classes in hypnosis to be taught by Mrs. Frink as well as astrology courses and lessons in tarot card reading, which uses special cards to perform a type of fortune telling.

"That's my favorite," Jackie said of tarot.

OF METAPHYSICS in general, Jackie added she "used to dabble in it here and there" and is renewing her interest somewhat by working at the shop. "Now I sit here all day and pick up one of the books that interests me and read through it."

What in the store seems to attract people the most?

"It all depends on the person," Jackie said. "The younger kids will look at the astrology jewelry and astrology books. The people who are not really into metaphysics seem to stay with astrology."

Schaumburg state Bank announces C.R.C.

Would you like a credit reserve of $300 to $3000 to cover checks beyond the balance in your checking account?

C.R.C. The end of the overdraw

It happens . . . a genuine once-in-a-lifetime sale is announced . . . unexpected expenses or an emergency comes along . . . and the balance in your check book isn't sufficient to cover the cost. Where will you get the money?

You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account — C.R.C. — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

How much money can you borrow?

A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

Is it costly?

It costs you nothing to open a Credit Reserve Checking Account. In fact, you may never have occasion to use the credit reserve of your C.R.C. account — although it's a good feeling to know that it's there, — and should this be the case, this extra security will never cost you any more than a regular checking account. If and when you do write a check for more money than you have in your account, you pay only a small monthly interest charge.

A few quick facts about this modern new checking account concept:

☐ You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

☐ Repayments will be automatically deducted from your checking account each month in the amount determined by the loan agreement.

☐ Pre-payments can be made at any time without penalty charge.

☐ Notification of all funds deposited to your checking account is sent to you by the bank along with a statement of your Credit Reserve and regular checking account balance.

Survey showed residents 4-1 against

Plum Grove-Countryside parks won't be annexed

The Plum Grove-Countryside Park District will remain independent.

The park board last night reaffirmed their earlier stand against annexation to the Rolling Meadows Park District after survey results showed residents were more than 4 to 1 against the annexation.

Out of almost 500 surveys distributed, 170 were filled out and returned to the park district. Of those, 137 were against the annexation and 30 were in favor.

"At this point, based on the results of the survey, I should think that the board will not change its position and the issue is closed," said park board President Ernest Martin. The Plum Grove-Countryside Park Board has publicly taken a stand against the proposed annexation.

"THE BOARD DID not favor annexation for two reasons," Martin said. "One was the increase in taxes. Secondly, we did not feel that the increase in facilities, activities and management warranted the increase in taxes."

If Plum Grove-Countryside became part of the Rolling Meadows Park District, taxes would almost double. Martin added that several Rolling Meadows residents had criticized the Rolling Meadows Park District management, adding that it showed signs of improving.

The most violent objection to the board's stand was voiced by Rolling Meadows Ald. Thomas Scanlan after the meeting.

"I'M NOT ONLY disappointed in you, I'm disappointed in every person who voted against it (the annexation)," Scanlan said. He pointed out that the 4 1/2-acre park, which is the only recreation area Plum Grove-Countryside has, was leased from the city. He said the property was leased under the assumption that it would eventually become part of Rolling Meadows.

"I'm telling you what the city did for you and you're saying you don't want to be part of it," Scanlan said. Plum Grove Countryside is part of the city of Rolling Meadows, but has their own park district.

Martin said that Scanlan was confusing the city with the park district. Scanlan replied that "the Rolling Meadows park district is practically the city park district" and that it is recognized as such by the city.

THE ROLLING MEADOWS Park District has been trying to annex the Plum Grove-Countryside area for several years. The main block to the annexation was lack of a land corridor. Under law, the Rolling Meadows Park District has to touch some part of the land it plans to annex, before any merger can take place.

Annexing the area would give Rolling Meadows Park District a clear field for future annexations to the west, the area in which the city is expanding, Rolling Meadows Park Dist. Supt. Steve Person has said. The future annexations could lower the present park district tax, Person indicated earlier.

Rolling Meadows Park Board President Ray Neukranz said his park district will now probably annex property around Meacham road up to Plum Grove School, and then move west with the city.

"I'm sorry to see this," Neukranz said. He added that the major intent was to put all of Rolling Meadows under one park district. "This is a step backwards," he added.

A GOOD BOOK on the Zodiac is no longer hard to find, as Mrs. Flora Frink shows. Mrs. Frink and her family have opened a shop in the Rolling Meadows Shopping

Elk Grove Township set to weigh day-care centers

Elk Grove Township officials will meet Tuesday night to hear presentations from various professional groups on possible ways to operate a proposed day-care center for preschool children from low-income families.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Monday the board of auditors will meet with representatives of different day-care centers to "try to clarify just what approaches there are and what the advantages and disadvantages are."

Hall said a citizen's group planning the day-care center was asked to be present at the meeting and denied that the group had been discontinued.

"As far as I'm concerned, the citizens' group is not disbanded," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor said plans for the center include formation of a not-for-profit organization by the citizens' group. He said the group would serve as the board of directors of the day-care facility with the township auditors acting as incorporators.

At the May 6 meeting of the township auditors, Hall said the township officials would act as the governing board of the day-care center and hire experts to run it. He said Wednesday that the township had always planned for the citizens' group to act as directors with a professional hired to run the day-to-day operation.

Hall said the township will be able to use revenue-sharing funds for operating the center. The budget calls for $30,000 to be spent on the facility.

Township officials met Monday night to revise federal revenue-sharing fund expenditures after Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the funds could not be spent by townships on some services. Hall said the township attorney advised him that the day-care center qualifies for the federal funds.

The township supervisor said he didn't expect any decision on the center at the Tuesday night meeting but that he hoped to begin operation of the facility by September.

"Whether it's possible or not is problematical," he said.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the township offices at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Mystic Eye Bookstore caters to more metaphysical tastes

by TONI GINETTI

Walking into a store whose wares revolve around the occult, you might expect to meet a mysterious fortune-telling proprietor peering at you in a darkened room through parted strings or beads.

Walk into the Mystic Eye Bookstore and Psychic Center in Rolling Meadows, however, and you will meet normal teenager Jackie Frink, manager and one-third of the family who runs this small shop.

The store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center opened recently to offer a local place for students of the psychic and supernatural to indulge in their metaphysical interests.

"There are quite a few people out here involved in metaphysical things," Jackie said. "Before they would have to go into the city or borrow a book from the library. So my father said why not open a book store."

THE SHOP IS THE family's first business venture. It is being managed by 18-year-old Jackie and backed by her father and mother Larry and Flora Frink.

For Frink, who is a sales representative from American Rug and Carpet Co.,

and his wife, who is a secretary for United Airlines, a store dealing with the psychic wasn't really an unusual venture.

"My mother is president of the National Hypnotic Research Center in Arlington Heights, and my father is the business-oriented one," Jackie said. Frink also practices numerology, a method of using numbers to prepare personality charts and horoscopes similar to the use of stars in astrology.

The interest in starting the shop grew from the family's interest in metaphysics, according to Jackie.

"WE STARTED OUT going to psychics for readings, astrology study and that," she said. "My parents had seen another book store like this but it didn't make it, so my father said we should look into this."

"At first I thought he was nuts," she laughed. "I thought it would take a lot of money and we had never done anything like this before, but he kept on talking about it and asked me if I would manage it for them."

The store's book shelves display texts and paperbacks on such searching subjects as hypnosis, astrology, meditation, yoga, unidentified flying objects, extrasensory perception, fortune telling, reincarnation, witchcraft, palmistry and satanism, among others. "The Exorcist" is, of course, available too.

The shop also intends to offer classes in hypnosis to be taught by Mrs. Frink as well as astrology courses and lessons in tarot card reading, which uses special cards to perform a type of fortune telling.

"That's my favorite," Jackie said of tarot.

OF METAPHYSICS in general, Jackie added she "used to dabble in it here and there" and is renewing her interest somewhat by working at the shop. "Now I sit here all day and pick up one of the books that interests me and read through it."

What in the store seems to attract people the most?

"It all depends on the person," Jackie said. "The younger kids will look at the astrology jewelry and astrology books. The people who are not really into metaphysics seem to stay with astrology."

Correction

A sentence of six months' supervision, instead of six months' probation as reported Wednesday, was given Tuesday to Thomas Calderone of Rolling Meadows. Calderone had been charged in December by city police with impersonating an officer, but the charge was dismissed. The supervision sentence was issued for a charge of displaying a dangerous weapon.

On another charge of having no valid firearms identification, Calderone was found innocent.

Unit petitions 'won't be filed'

by JUDY JOBBITT
Petitions for a Schaumburg-area unit school district probably never will be filed, said James Blankenship at a Sheffield Park Homeowners Assn. meeting Tuesday night.
The petitions were circulated as a safety measure to protect Schaumburg's tax base, he said. The committee will only file the petitions if Schaumburg's tax base is threatened by another group petitioning for a unit district.
He said Wednesday the committee prepared the petitions because it feared Rolling Meadows might incorporate Union Oil Co. and other industrial tax bases in the Schaumburg-area petition into its own unit district.
A unit district would place elementary and high schools under one administration.
THE COMMITTEE has obtained more than the 200 signatures required to filing the petitions with the Cook County school superintendent. The committee will hold onto the petitions as ammunition against another group that might threaten the Schaumburg-area tax base, he said.

Monday Blankenship said the committee would consider a Schaumburg Township unit district and would consider redistricting the petitions' boundaries to include the part of Hoffman Estates currently in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.
The petitions currently include Schaumburg and the parts of Roselle, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Hanover Park now in Dist. 54.
The committee followed the recommendations of the feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors under the direction of Ralph Belnap.
The study also recommended unit districts be formed for Palatine and Inverness, and Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows. The study stated the most important reason for forming unit districts in the suburbs was increased community identity.

Mothers, proud of German heritage, seek to promote it

by REGINA OEHLER

In an attempt to keep the German language and culture alive, a mothers' group has banded together to organize a German language school that will be meeting for two hours on Fridays beginning this September.

A meeting for parents interested in signing their children up for the school will be held at 8 p.m. June 6 at Immanuel Lutheran School, Plum Grove Rd. and Lincoln St., Palatine.

The school is sponsored by the German American National Congress, a German club which has 46 chapters in the U. S. The congress also runs schools in several Midwestern states, including two in Chicago. This will be the first time that a school has been attempted in the Northwest suburbs.

MRS. EDELTRAUD DILLMANN, one of the organizers of the school and a member of the congress, said that 50 parents have already indicated an interest in signing up their youngsters. She added that the group eventually hopes to have more than 100 students.

The classes will be open to any youngsters between the ages of 4 and 14. Tution will be around $50 per student per year, a slight discount for congress members. For each additional family member, a correspondingly lower tuition fee will be charged. Specific details will be given out at the meeting.

The money will be used to cover the cost of hiring teachers and rental of classroom facilities at Immanuel Lutheran, Mrs. Dillman said. She added that the school will be a non-for-profit organization.

At present, the group has lined up two instructors: one a teacher at Harper College and the other an instructor from one of the German language schools in Chicago. Mrs. Dillman said that more teachers would be hired if enough students sign up.

The congress is now negotiating to get high school credit for youngsters attending the German School, but presently, the student get no extra credit for taking the classes.

"There's a real need for such a school here," Mrs. Dillman said. The idea for the school began earlier this year when the 30 Germanic mothers from the Palatine area talked about how nice it would be to have a German school in the area so their children could learn German language and culture, she said. Several of the mothers have American husbands and generally do not speak German in the home, Mrs. Dillman said.

The group itself began meeting because women wanted to retain their knowledge of the German language. Once a month the 30 members meet at a home and for a few hours talk only in German, Mrs. Dillman said.

Horse killed in crash with auto

A horse was killed and an auto totally demolished after the animal and the car collided on Northwest Highway, ¼-mile east of Quentin Road in Palatine Tuesday night.

Burt J. Ising, 39, of Orchard Lake, Mich., told police he was driving west on Northwest Highway when he saw the horse in his lane heading east. According to police, the horse was flung on top of Ising's auto upon impact. Ising was uninjured in the accident.

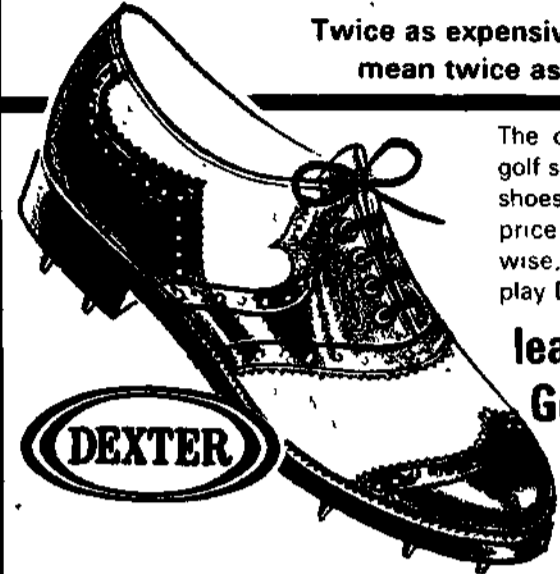

The horse belonged to Kurt Stier, 510 W. Baldwin Rd. The accident occurred at 9:12 p.m. Tuesday.

'Safety measure to protect tax base'

Unit school district petitions probably will not be filed

by JUDY JOBBITT

Petitions for a Schaumburg-area unit school district probably never will be filed, said James Blankenship at a Sheffield Park Homeowners Assn. meeting Tuesday night.

The petitions were circulated as a safety measure to protect Schaumburg's tax base, he said. The committee will only file the petitions if Schaumburg's tax base is threatened by another group petitioning for a unit district.

He said Wednesday the committee prepared the petitions because it feared Rolling Meadows might incorporate Union Oil Co. and other industrial tax bases in the Schaumburg-area petition into its own unit district.

A unit district would place elementary and high schools under one administration.

THE COMMITTEE has obtained more than the 200 signatures required to filing the petitions with the Cook County school superintendent. The committee will hold onto the petitions as ammunition against another group that might threaten the Schaumburg-area tax base, he said.

Monday Blankenship said the committee would consider a Schaumburg Township unit district and would consider redistricting the petitions' boundaries to include the part of Hoffman Estates currently in Schaumburg Township District 54.

The petitions currently include Schaumburg and the parts of Roselle, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Hanover Park now in Dist. 54.

The committee followed the recommendations of the feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors under the direction of Ralph Belnap.

The study also recommended unit districts be formed for Palatine and Inverness, and Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows. The study stated the most important reason for forming unit districts in the suburbs was increased community identity.

Plans for Heritage Center outlined for zoning board

Variegated multiple housing and commercial development, which may include 10 to 12-story buildings, is planned for a 121-acre Schaumburg Road site just west of the new Civic Center.

Heritage Center, a 2,400-unit housing development with an approximate 10-acre shopping center, was outlined for Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals members Wednesday night. The site is approximately one-quarter of a mile east of Roselle Road.

Development is being planned on land now under contract purchase to American Homebuilding Guild-Illinois Inc. by William Lambert. The petitioner is asking that land be rezoned from its R-6 single-family district to B-2 special use zoning for the planned development. It would consist of two-story, midrise four and five-story and highrise buildings of 10 to 12 stories.

HERITAGE CENTER was originally zoned for multiple-commercial use in 1969 but the zoning was later rescinded when the original developer, Zornel-Fornell Corp., found it financially impossible to proceed with its plans. At that time nine 12-story H-shaped buildings in clusters of three were planned for the site.

When zoning was granted at that time the 40-acre tract for a cultural civic center was donated to the village by Lambert, who holds extensive properties in the Schaumburg area.

Developers now hope to include that 40 acres in their overall site which would produce a gross density of about 20 units per acre.

Design for the new plan was by William S. Lawrence, Chicagoland planner.

Fourth drug case reported

The fourth drug incident this month involving a junior high school girl in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 was reported Wednesday at Eisenhower Junior High School.

A Hoffman Estates Fire District ambulance was called to the school after the girl began crying in class, Hoffman Estates police said.

It was reported the girl took four Secenal tablets from the family medicine cabinet at home before coming to school. She was taken to Northwest Community Hospital and released.

An eighth-grade girl was found at Eisenhower on May 2 in possession of a substance believed to be marijuana. She was not charged and is undergoing counseling.

ON MAY 6, a girl at Addams Junior High School was found cutting class. Police said she admitted being under the influence of a drug she reportedly took from the family medicine cabinet.

The third incident occurred May 13 when a girl at Addams was believed to be under the influence of a drug. She was taken to the hospital for treatment and placed under psychiatric care.

Board Pres. Gordon Thoren last week said officials have been aware of the incidents and indicated the district's drug committee is looking into curriculum to help prevent a drug problem.

Correction

Project Help in Hoffman Estates will not take place this weekend, as erroneously reported in The Herald Tuesday.

Originally scheduled for last Saturday, the project was postponed because of rain. It now is planned for June 1. Volunteers in the roadway clean up project will meet at 8:30 a.m. at the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. They should be ready to start litter pickup at 9 a.m.

Participants should bring boots, gloves, old clothing and rakes. The village will supply plastic bags for litter that is collected.

Barry Segal, 25, head of Ecology Inc.

His motto: have waste, will travel

by PAT GERLACH

Haste, or anything else for that matter, can't make waste fast enough for Barry Segal.

Segal, 25, owns and operates Ecology Inc., a paper and metal recycling business he started in Schaumburg early this year.

In fact, Segal thinks he is probably one of few men his age who can boast of "having been in the business for 20 years."

"When I was five, my dad took me down to his plant and told me to get busy learning to sort newspaper. I've had a lot of experience since then," he said.

SEGAL CONSIDERS his business one that lends itself typically to a "family operation."

"Often the profits are such that you really couldn't trust an outsider," he said.

Though buying paper from individuals or businesses and selling it to paper dealers or mills is a reasonably lucrative business, Segal said he really "can't talk paper prices."

Presently, paper prices are the lowest they have been in 10 months, Segal said. "Today it might sell for $16 per ton but tomorrow the price could be far different," he added, noting that it has sold for as much as $40 a ton last November, "before a steady drop" began.

After moving to Roselle last year, Barry decided to go into business for himself closer to home because the trip to his dad's plant in Chicago each day "just wasn't worth the hassle."

He said there were people at his door with newspapers to sell for recycling the day he opened shop last February at 622 W. Lunt Ave. in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park. "If someone is interested in collecting and selling paper they just somehow instinctively know where to take it," he said. He also accepts aluminum cans, auto batteries and radiators and just about every other recyclable discard.

SEGAL ESTIMATES that about 25 percent of his business is "door trade" with the rest consisting of "paper accounts" — people who use paper as a commodity," for example, lithographers, printers and banks.

"There is really big money in computer cards," says Segal.

Basically his operation is a one-man business, but Segal says that his wife and father-in-law often lend a hand and his college student brother will work with him during the summer.

Each Friday and Saturday the shop is open to receive paper from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., but other weekdays hours are limited to from 3 to 5 p.m. Still this represents a 10-to 14-hour workday for Barry, who does most of his own baling and sorting as well as scouting new accounts.

"RIGHT NOW it's tough and I'm just getting started, but the business is holding its own and in this field there is no where to go but up," Segal said.

As far as ecology is concerned, Segal says he would be a believer even if his livelihood did not depend on conservation-minded people.

"In this day and age there is just no other way. We have got to save and recycle to survive and that's just what I am here to help people do," he asserted.

"RECYCLING has to be a way of life today," says Barry Segal, owner-operator of Ecology Inc., a Schaumburg paper-metal salvage firm. Segal, 25, boasts more than 20 years' experience in the industry.

Park district wrapup

$26,700 surplus for fiscal year

The Hoffman Estates Park District is off to its best financial start ever with about a $26,700 fund surplus to begin the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Last year, at the start of the 1973-74 fiscal year, the park district had a deficit balance of $12,036.

Al Binder, park district director, attributed some of the increased funds available to the recreation fund which "is now at a point where it balances." Last year, $1,264 was left over in the recreation fund, but this year, about $10,900 remained in the fund. He said about $8,000 in fees from a newly instituted athletic camp help boost the fund.

Also last year, the park district had to borrow from various funds to pay $10,600 for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, and this year, the district was able to levy for IMRF expenditures, Binder said.

Accounting for the other surplus is accumulating money in various funds like paving and lighting and insurance, Binder said.

The district had issued about $80,000 in tax anticipation warrants in 1973 to cover the same amount in tax warrants borrowed in 1972. Binder said the increase in the recreation fund surplus may prompt the park board to issue less in tax warrants for recreation this year.

Board Pres. George Seaver called the surplus "noteworthy" and said he was "rather pleased with the situation."

Budget hearing June 4

The Hoffman Estates Park District will conduct a public hearing June 4 for a proposed 1974-75 budget and appropriation ordinance.

The proposed budget is $454,793. The hearing will start at 7 p.m. at the Village Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd. A special park board meeting has been called for 7 p.m. June 25 for approval of the budget and appropriation ordinance.

Shrubs for South Twin Lake

Shrubs will be planted, and other plants relocated at South Twin Lake to add to its attractiveness and to lure waterfowl away from nearby houses.

The Hoffman Estates Park Board of Commissioners Tuesday night approved purchase of $600 in shrubs this year and $700 next year for the lake area. Commissioners were responding to a plan compiled by Edwin Huff, whom the park board designated to work with area residents in alleviating undesirable conditions.

Huff proposed the park district put in a windscreen area composed of plum and dogwood plants. This area would be away from resident's backyards and hopefully would draw ducks and geese to nest away from residences, Huff said. Residents in the area had complained that waterfowl had become unbearable nuisances.

Huff's plans also asked that a present "no mow" area be planted with grass and that where tractors can not mow, canary grass be planted. This would cut down on unsightly weeds and cover for the ducks near the homes, he said.

Huff also noted residents would like to see an erosion ditch turned into a path. He added residents would be able to supply some labor for planting shrubs.

Bedsprings for fish

Bedsprings will be dropped into three Hoffman Estates Park District lakes this summer to provide shelter for fish.

The park board Tuesday night voted to have four sets of bedsprings placed in Evergreen, High Point and Highland lakes each in sections where they will be at least two feet underwater when the lakes are low.

Comm. Fred Weaver said there is no shelter in the bottom of the lakes for fish. The park district plans to stock the lakes with some bass and catfish to provide open fishing for neighborhood children. There are carp and bullheads at the lakes.

Commissioner on plan panel

Hoffman Estates Park District officials will ask a village official to continue liaison between the two governmental bodies by appointing a park commissioner for a vacant post on the village plan commission.

The request will come in a letter to Richard Regan, chairman of the plan commission. The vacancy was created when Comm. Fred Weaver resigned from the plan commission after five years of service.

Letter carriers report some gains

Postal union negotiations took a positive turn at Wednesday's meeting with Roselle Postmaster Edward A. Budzyn.

Local carrier union officials met with Budzyn to discuss 34 complaints and grievances. The meeting followed the carriers' picketing of the Roselle Post Office two weeks ago when they demonstrated against poor postal service in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg and poor communications between the union and management.

The carriers were dissatisfied with the results of a union-management meeting held in April. Only 13 of 62 grievances presented at that meeting were resolved.

"We would have been happier if the complaints were totally resolved," said Dennis Brodie, administrative assistant for Northeast Illinois No. 825 of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, of Wednesday's meeting. "But at least they say they are trying now."

EDWARD KEONJIAN an employee and labor relations representative, and another regional management representative also attended the meeting. Management representatives were unavailable for comment.

"For once we were dealing with people who have some authority," said Brodie.

Although positive resolutions were obtained on only a few of the complaints, management is looking into about half of them for the next meeting. The meeting should be held within the next three weeks.

Management did agree to sign the local agreement. Union members have been working without a signed agreement since October, 1973.

MANAGEMENT is checking into:

- reimbursing employees who must use their own cars when post office vehicles break down $6.25 per day;
- starting the carriers day at 6 a.m. rather than 7 a.m. to allow earlier mail delivery;
- setting a cut-off time carriers receive mail to be sorted for each delivery day.

Management agreed to:

- schedule two clerks at the Hoffman Estates branch office from 7 to 9 a.m. to help sort the large number of misthrows received at the branch office. This should help and the mail delay.
- post vacant routes and other assignments as agreed upon with the union.

Management refused to increase the number of full-time employees, have all carriers work out of the Schaumburg annex, convert the 12 auxiliary routes to regular routes or post work schedules one week in advance.

Decision

on suit against K&B June 3?

The Hoffman Estates Village Board may decide June 3 whether it will file suit against Kaufman and Broad Inc. seeking compensation for damages stemming from K&B's bribery of former village officials.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said Wednesday it "could well be" that the board will vote on the lawsuit question that night. Hofert now is researching the possible case, reading transcripts of the trial of Bernard M. Peskin, and examining legal precedents to assess potential success. Peskin was convicted of passing $35,000 in bribes from K&B to village officials in 1968-69.

"I am seriously looking into it, and I have been. I am looking at every aspect of it," said Hofert. But he emphasized he has reached no conclusion on whether to advise the board to file suit. "At this point, I have not arrived at any position," he said.

THE VILLAGE WAS challenged to file the suit by Atty. John Ryan of Chicago, representing his brother, David Ryan of Hoffman Estates.

Attorney Ryan informed the board April 8 he intended to file suit unless the village agreed to do so first. Ryan said then he doubted the village would take the step, but was inviting officials to do so to comply with legal requirements. Ryan proposed filing a class-action suit himself on behalf of current and past village residents. He said he would ask for a payment directly to each person who suffered because of the granting of zoning to K&B due to payment of bribes. Two basic problems of such a suit would be proving actual damage in taxes or services and devising a plan to fairly distribute any funds resulting from a potential judgment against K&B.

IN APRIL, RYAN SET a June 1 deadline for filing his suit. But this week he said it is not now a realistic date because of the time needed for a village decision, and the preliminary work he is doing. Ryan said he detected a change in village attitude, and now believes "there is a very good chance" the village will file the suit instead of him.

"They sound more optimistic about it than they did at first. To some degree, they are interested in making sure that they are not associated with the past regime," said Ryan, suggesting going to court might be the best way to prove the current administration's displeasure with the bribery scandal. "There is probably a very good chance," Ryan said.

Homeowners give OK to Lincoln Federal plan

Owners of four homes adjoining the proposed Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan project at Higgins Road and Gannon Drive formally dropped objections to the development last night.

Lincoln Federal won Hoffman Estates Plan Commission approval of a phase one site plan, including a 22,000-square-foot building and eight drive-in windows. It now must obtain village board confirmation of the plan commission recommendation and approval of village engineer John Hossack for its engineering design. Building permits then can be issued.

The homeowners had been concerned about landscaping and lighting impact on their homes, but Wednesday night said they were pleased with Lincoln Federal's cooperation.

However, the owners of two 80-acre parcels of land near Barrington Road and the Northwest Tollway did not find equal congeniality from their neighbors.

IRVING ROOTBERG and Mason Shefner both opposed a village petition to rezone their parcels from single-family, one-acre lots to light industrial use. They learned the village of South Barrington supports the Hoffman Estates petition.

Each of the two parcels includes about 60 acres in Hoffman Estates and 20 acres in South Barrington.

Shefner, who has owned his acreage since 1946, said he has never been asked to sell his land for industrial use. He reminded the commission he currently is awaiting village board action on his request for new zoning permitting construction of 490 apartment units. The commission has recommended denial.

Rootberg said many of his objections would die if South Barrington grants him light industrial zoning for the portion of his land they control but, unless that happens, he would be stymied for development with two types of zoning on a parcel this small, he said.

He also suggested industrial zoning would delay development of the land about five years, noting he has already paid mortgage interest and taxes on the vacant site four years and has voluntarily accepted a special assessment to bring sewer and water mains to the land.

The plan commission promised to present its recommendation on the rezoning proposal to the village board within 30 days.

JOANNE PROUE, 10, recently sold the 15,000th case of Twinbrook Y-M-C-A Peanuts. Profits from the annual sale enable youngsters to attend Camp Edwards, near Lake Geneva, Wis., for one week each summer.

Twinbrook Y summer program

She wants to return to camp

by PAT GERLACH

Ten-year-old Joanne Proue of Schaumburg went to Twinbrook YMCA summer camp last year and liked it enough to want to make sure she goes back this year.

In fact, Joanne, a student at Schaumburg Elementary School, sold the 15,000th case of YMCA peanuts this spring. The peanuts are sold by children to earn their way to summer camp.

"We consider 15,000 cases an all-time high," said Bob Williams, YMCA executive director. Williams said that less than 1,000 cases were sold last year but noted "sales just go along with the fantastic registration we have had for this year."

He said 450 young people are now registered with eight of the 14 week sessions filled to capacity.

Four of the Y-campers come from the Proue family, 15 S. Salem Dr.

JOANNE AND HER brother Danny, 9, will both be attending Y-Camp Edwards, a one week residence camp on Lake Beulah near Lake Geneva.

Activities there range from archery and riflery to a broad range of aquatic events such as canoeing, boating, swimming and sailing. The camp is limited to girls and boys entering grades four through six.

Both Joanne and Danny earned their complete way to summer camp by each selling 36 cases of YMCA peanuts and are now helping younger brother and sister, Linda and Bob, earn their way to Twinbrook Y's Day Camping program.

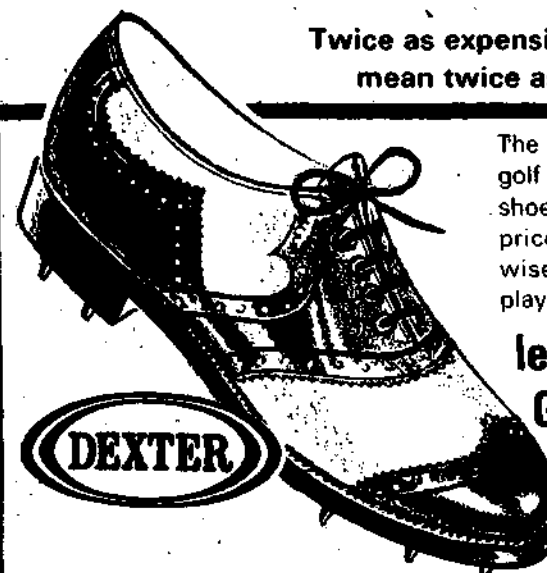

MORE THAN 200 youngsters are selling peanuts, Williams said. One Y-Indian Princess tribe is selling 32 cases and giving the profit to the YMCA Campership Fund, which helps needy youngsters go to camp.

Peanuts sell for $1 per can and the camper is credited with 35 cents for each can sold with cases checked out on a consignment basis.

Williams said peanuts are still in stock and encouraged children to register for one of the Y-Camps and begin selling immediately.

Board of auditors approves funds for youth minibus

Funds for purchasing and maintaining a Schaumburg Township youth minibus were approved by the township board of auditors Wednesday night. The board approved $9,500 from federal revenue sharing funds for the bus.

According to Larry Walker, youth director, the bus will give youth workers a mobile facility that will help them extend their services to the southern part of the township.

It will also give the workers an enclosed area for counseling out on the road. Walker said. The bus should provide the Youth Outreach program with a better identity, he said.

Another function of the bus will be to extend the Youth Employment Service.

Claudia Tull, youth worker, said the bus can be used as an outpost to take applications, interview youths and provide a means of distributing publicity.

Bids will be sought within a month. The minibus requested will be similar to the bus now being used for senior citizens. Senior citizen minibus service started in February uses a 1973 Dodge van.

The board intends to purchase the bus in time for summer programs.

Fred McKenzie, Elk Grove Village, was hired as Schaumburg Township Youth Outreach worker. McKenzie, 22, is the fourth youth worker on the township staff. He was selected from 53 applicants and will begin work within a week.

You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account — CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

How much money can you borrow?

A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

Is it costly?

It costs you nothing to open a Credit Reserve Checking Account. In fact, you may never have occasion to use the credit reserve of your CRC account — although it's a good feeling to know that it's there, — and should this be the case, this extra security will never cost you any more than a regular checking account. If and when you do write a check for more money than you have in your account, you pay only a small monthly interest charge.

A few quick facts about this modern new checking account concept:

☐ You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

☐ Repayments will be automatically deducted from your checking account each month in the amount determined by the loan agreement.

☐ Pre-payments can be made at any time without penalty charge.

☐ Notification of all funds deposited to your checking account is sent to you by the bank along with a statement of your Credit Reserve and regular checking account balance.

Village ordinance may be required

Deputy police chief post a departmental change?

by TOM VON MALDER
Mount Prospect may have its first deputy police chief soon.

As part of a series of organizational changes announced this week by newly appointed Police Chief Ralph J. Doney, Lt. John Savage would be named deputy chief. However, Doney said a village ordinance creating the position may have to be passed by the village board first, because of the existing fire and police commission regulations.

For now, Savage has been named "Officer in Charge of Operations." Doney said that Savage, in that capacity, will continue as head of the patrol division; however, he will also be in charge of the other three created divisions — license enforcement, investigation and records.

"I WILL ATTEMPT to operate this department as a big business, a professional business," Doney said Wednesday. Part of that "big business" attitude, he continued, will be the placing of more responsibility on the department's lieutenants and sergeants.

His intention to make Savage a deputy chief is his "step one." Savage will also be in charge of staff inspections and a newly-created internal affairs division. The latter is a means of investigating citizen complaints against policemen, as well as an internal departmental control.

Under the reorganization, Lt. John Homola has become the "License Officer," meaning he will work with other village departments in order to enforce the laws requiring licensing of businesses, liquor establishments, vending machines, catering and taxicabs. Homola will also retain his old duties as court liaison and evidence officer.

LT. FRED HEDLUND's duties in the records section will be expanded to include that section's civilian employees and the actual storage of the records. Doney said one of Hedlund's first duties will be to investigate a new storage system.

The three shift supervisors, each of whom command the on-the-street patrolmen, will remain sergeants Joseph Bopp, Gerald Glascock and William Broderick.

"The shift supervisor's role is very important because they are the guides, the leadership the men need," Doney said. "I'm giving them more responsibility (in the way they handle the men on their shift). I want the overall opinion of the public of each officer to be the same. I don't want some hard guys and some soft guys."

PATROLMAN RICHARD Pascoe has been named acting supervisor of the investigation division at least until July. Patrolmen Warren Fischer, Richard Yost and Roland Lischalk, all of whom are on the sergeant's eligibility list, have been designated acting supervisors who could take over if a shift supervisor is absent.

As Doney said he feels "that policemen are as much a citizen as the citizens they serve," he will permit policemen to grow mustaches, sideburns and longer hair (if neat). Doney also has made flared pants optional for the policeman's uniform.

Doney will meet with all policemen at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in the village courtroom. He said Arlington Heights police have agreed to take any emergency calls in Mount Prospect for the hour or so of the meeting.

A MODERN SET, using ladders instead of traditional props, will be part of the Hersey High School production of Thornton Wilder's play "Our Town" this week. end. Paul Gonzalez, left, Philip Svaline and Diane Buteau will be among the performers in the play Friday and Saturday. Curtain time both nights will be 8 p.m.

Teachers reach pact agreement

Negotiators for teachers and the administration in School Dist. 59 have reached an agreement on a teachers' contract for the 1974-75 school year, it was announced Wednesday.

Details of the new contract are being withheld, until Monday when the district's 588 teachers vote on ratification.

Sources say, however, that the new contract calls for a pay increase of between 12.5 and 13 per cent. It is believed that the settlement gives Dist. 59 teachers the highest base pay in the state, pending teacher settlements in other school districts.

The school board in the Elk Grove Township district is expected to vote on the new contract at its next regular meeting, scheduled for Monday, June 3.

THE PRESENT starting salary for a teacher in the district, is $8,389 per year. A 12.5 to 13 per cent increase would put starting salaries around $9,200 per year.

Because of teacher voting on the new contract, school in Dist. 59 will be dismissed one hour earlier this Monday, which is a regular school day. Students in K-5 buildings, who are normally dismissed at 3:25 p.m., will get out at 2:25 p.m. Monday.

Students at Holmes and Lively Junior High will be released at 1:40 p.m., rather than the normal 2:40 p.m. Students at Grove, Dempster and Friendship Junior high schools will be dismissed at 2:05 p.m. instead of 3:05 p.m.

170-home subdivision annexed

The 170-home Prospect Meadows subdivision west of the Randhurst Shopping Center was annexed to Mount Prospect Tuesday night by the village board.

The subdivision officially will become part of the village after a 30-day period during which owners of property on the fringe of the area can contest the annexation.

Police and fire service, however, is expected to begin this week, and scavenger service will begin in September. Residents of the area also will be eligible for village vehicle stickers at half price.

William F. Maisel, president of the homeowners group, said Prospect Meadows residents decided to become part of the village because "we feel we should have some governing body — either Arlington Heights or Mount Prospect — somebody to go to to answer some of our questions."

"For a long time, we have been a part of Cook County and have had problems as far as people from Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights — high school kids and so forth — cutting through our area and leaving garbage and so forth."

THE SUBDIVISION is near Prospect High School — bounded by Euclid Avenue on the north, Kensington Road on the south, Elmhurst Street on the east and Forest Avenue on the west.

Maisel said under questioning by Trustees George B. Anderson and Richard N. Hendricks that he was aware resi-

Schools won't have to split classes

There will be no split classes in River Trails School Dist. 26 next year.

The school board Tuesday approved a staffing plan which calls instead for the hiring of additional teachers to allow for more single-grade classes with fewer students per class.

The decision means the two schools which were tentatively scheduled to have split classes at some grade levels, Feehanville and Park View schools in Mount Prospect, will now have more single-grade classes than originally recommended by the administration.

At Park View, where one split fifth-sixth grade combination class was proposed, there will be three classes each of fifth and sixth grade.

AT FEEHANVILLE, where one split second-third grade combination class and one split fifth-sixth grade combination class was recommended, there will be two classes each of second and third grades and three classes each of fifth and sixth grade.

As a result of the decision not to split any classes, two additional teaching positions will be opened at Feehanville and one at Park View.

The staffing report also recommended the addition of one teaching position at Bond School and four added teaching spots at River Trails Junior High. Both these recommendations were based on input from principals at the two Mount Prospect schools.

The staff composition at Indian Grove and Euclid schools, also in Mount Prospect, will remain unchanged.

The administration also recommended the hiring of an additional teacher for River Road School, whose operation is completely subsidized by the state. Students from Maryville Academy in Des Plaines who are wards of the state, attend River Road.

A recommendation to hire a reading specialist and a learning disabilities teacher was also approved as part of the staffing report. The learning disabilities teacher will deal with approximately seven to 10 special-education students who will be bused from their schools to a centrally located school for special instruction.

THERE ALSO WILL be a plan which eliminates study hall classes in the junior high. Students entering junior high from sixth grade will be given a choice of taking French or reading.

Students will be recommended for French by their sixth-grade teachers based on their academic abilities, but students who are not recommended will not be prohibited from studying the foreign language.

Students who do not take French will be required to take reading.

Caylor welcomed as one of 'fellas'

Marie L. Caylor was welcomed to the Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday night as "just another one of the fellas." Mayor Robert D. Teichert made a point of explaining that other board members traditionally rise when a trustee is sworn in, saying it was not done simply in deference to Mrs. Caylor's status as the first woman to become a trustee in Mount Prospect's 57-year history.

Mrs. Caylor's predecessor, Patrick J. Link, went out of office by being ruled out of order; he tried to make the motion to nominate Mrs. Caylor for his seat moments after his resignation was officially accepted by the board. "I just wanted to give you one last chance to shoot me down, mayor," he quipped. Link turned over to Mrs. Caylor "the only physical things I ever got from the village" — a key to the committee room and a key to his (empty) desk.

Mrs. Caylor, of 1308 Pima Ln., said her swearing in was actually "kind of a sad moment" because of Link's leaving. "I'm going to try awfully hard to do the job." She will serve until the next general election in April, 1975.

Fireman Kooiker honored

Mount Prospect fireman Robert D. Kooiker was officially commended this week for pulling three victims from a burning car May 12, saving the lives of two.

Kooiker, 36, of 1836 Locust Ln., was given the mayor's award and a standing ovation of village trustees and residents attending the village board meeting Tuesday night while his wife and four children stood by his side.

Teichert, in presenting the award — the highest local honor — cited Kooiker's "alertness" and "quick and deliberate action" while he was off duty. He commended the fireman for "strength of character of which all citizens of Mount Prospect are proud."

One of the victims of the auto accident was killed, and another is listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. The third passenger sustained minor injuries.

'Senior Citizen Day' Friday

Friday has been designated "Senior Citizen Day" in Mount Prospect. In issuing the proclamation, Teichert urged residents "to pay tribute to our senior citizens for the many contributions they are making and have made throughout the years to our community." A special program for seniors featuring handwork made by seniors, information booths and entertainment will be staged from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday at the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Grun Ave.

Stop sign to be installed

A stop sign is to be installed on Cree Lane at Burning Bush Lane near Indian Grove School in the New Town section of Mount Prospect.

Zoning variation to committee

Three requests for zoning variations have been referred to the village board's building committee for study. The village's zoning board of appeals has recommended that one of the requests, to build a professional building at 415 W. Prospect Ave. be turned down. The zoning board gave favorable recommendations to a fence variation for Courtesy Home Center, 750 E. Rand Rd.; and a setback variation for a home at Thayer Street and Forest Avenue.

Free rides to end

The free ride for commuters who park their cars in the municipal lot at the railroad station will end next Wednesday, when meters are scheduled to be installed. The recent addition to the lot wound up increasing the number of parking spaces by 102, rather than the projected 122, but Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said another 10 spaces can be provided — for compact cars.

dents of Prospect Meadows would have to foot the bill for any special assessment to upgrade roads or improve sewers in the subdivision.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley indicated Forest and Elmhurst may have to be improved to eliminate dead-end streets, which hamper police protection and snowplowing.

The subdivision has been served by Cook County Sheriff's Police and the Prospect Heights Fire Department. The sanitary sewer system is owned by the Prospect Meadows Homeowners Assn., and the water system is privately owned.

Annexation of the subdivision, Eppley stated, "would be a worthwhile addition to Mount Prospect in that it eliminates the last large area of contiguous unincorporated land in our northern area." The subdivision has been in Wheeling Township. An estimated 600 persons live there.

PTA notes

The Indian Grove School PTA will meet today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1340 N. Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

The program will include a variety show and installation of officers for next year. The annual school art fair also will be on display, with student artwork on exhibit in the hallways and class rooms.

Downtown construction halt proposed

The Mount Prospect Village Board was asked this week to impose a moratorium on downtown construction until a plan for redeveloping the central business district is completed.

Robert Bennett, chairman of the central business district planning committee, a subcommittee of the village's planning commission, asked the board for "a short-term moratorium on building" until an overall plan to upgrade the downtown area is devised.

The board did not discuss the request, but Mayor Robert D. Teichert indicated later a moratorium probably would not have a great effect, because most of the downtown area is already built.

IN AN INTERIM report on progress since the downtown study group was formed six months ago, Bennett also recommended that the village board:

- Hire a professional planner to work with the downtown group, and commit itself to the goals, objectives and concepts set forth by the downtown group.

- Create a central business district development commission for the village to become "formally involved" in downtown development, including land acquisition, the power of eminent domain, public bonding power, joint development ventures and acceptance or rejection of proposed private developments.

"It is very easy to draw buildings, cut off streets and start rearranging things," Bennett said. "But we don't have the expertise now the time to state what those elements ought to be and whether it would work."

Mayor Robert D. Teichert indicated that village trustees are "as committed as they can be to a downtown plan." He urged the downtown committee to recommend an outside consultant to the board and to define more specifically the powers and goals of a downtown development commission.

FOR ITS PURPOSES, the downtown group has defined the central business district as the triangular piece of property bounded by Central Road on the north, Maple Street on the east and Prospect Avenue on the southwest.

Bennett indicated that in devising a downtown plan the study group will consider land use, functional use of existing structures, new construction, economic feasibility, traffic flow, parking requirements, aesthetics, unique zoning and movement of the train station.

"In the interest of a healthy downtown area," he said, five services should be available: Local government, civic and social, commercial, modern residential, and recreational. "A healthy and vital downtown area is of supreme importance to every citizen of the village; a decaying downtown area leads to a decaying village."

Des Plaines agrees to boundary settlement

Des Plaines officials this week agreed to accept the negotiated settlement with Mount Prospect of the long-standing Elmhurst Road boundary dispute. Mount Prospect officials approved the settlement in April.

The settlement sets Elmhurst Road as the east-west dividing line between the two towns and extends the boundary along Oakton Street to form a north-south dividing line.

Both towns have been feuding over annexations and development along Elmhurst Road for a number of years. Recent controversies sparked a new lawsuit between the two towns.

ALTHOUGH OFFICIALS held a series of negotiation sessions over the dispute in an effort to reach an out of court settlement, Des Plaines amended the final agreement to eliminate the boundary line drawn along Elmhurst Road.

Mount Prospect officials refused to go along with the modification and renewed its efforts to get a court judgment on a lawsuit challenging a number of annexations made by Des Plaines along Elmhurst Road.

In speaking for approval of the settlement, Ald. Richard Ward (8th) noted four items that he said made the agreement more acceptable. He said assessed valuations of the United Air Lines office complex and the gasoline storage tanks which lie in an unincorporated area west of the city were not as great as anticipated and that area did not represent as "ripe a plum" as some believed.

WARD, WHO had raised questions over the Oakton Street boundary, said he also felt more comfortable with a pledge by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert to attempt to develop a 10-acre parcel of land on the west side of Elmhurst Road, south of Algonquin Road as either commercial or industrial.

Des Plaines officials have complained in the past that several high-density, multiple-family developments have been approved by Mount Prospect that could burden Des Plaines schools and other services.

WARD ALSO stated Monday that the agreement would not cause a monetary drain on Des Plaines to provide services to about 50 unincorporated parcels of land that lie south of Oakton Street.

In reviewing the agreement, Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) said Des Plaines has lost its battle to control most of the development along Elmhurst Road.

Abrams said Des Plaines could continue to fight the matter through the courts but added, "that would probably be fruitless and wasteful of the taxpayers' money."

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said recently that he was pleased to see an agreement had been reached.

E-Hart Girls award ceremony tonight

The E-Hart Girls Club will hold its annual Award Ceremony and Dinner today at 6:30 p.m. at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights.

Approximately 180 girls will receive awards at the ceremony, which will also mark the club's seventh anniversary. The awards, silver charms, are earned for participation in at least one activity in each of E-Hart's programs.

Awards will also be presented for general participation and specialty achievements.

A trophy, the Barbie Carlson Memorial also will be awarded to the E-Hart group judged to have given the most effort and time during the past year to service activities.

Each girl will also contribute two cents for each year of her age for the Bertha T. Ehard Memorial Fund. Money from this fund is donated annually to a local service or project.

PHIA endorses park referendum

by TOM VON MALDER

The June 4 $1.1 million Prospect Heights Park District referendum is endorsed by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

"On the over-all balance, we felt it was a good proposal," said PHIA member Richard Wolf of the referendum proposal. He added that some PHIA members disagreed on some of the individual proposed park improvements.

The PHIA's endorsement came after members of the group attended Tuesday night's park district information meeting on the referendum. Primarily, the referendum, which would cost an estimated $18 a year for 16 years for each $10,800 assessed valuation, will provide funds to renovate the Lions Park pool, build an adjacent community center/sports complex and make other park improvements throughout the park district.

WOLF SAID THE park district's plans "show good foresight for the future of our area" and will benefit the whole community and "not just a few individuals." He said that strong community interest has been shown in the additional Little League baseball fields, tennis courts and new handball courts.

The PHIA support might also mean helping out the park district with informational coffees.

Several weeks ago a committee of the PHIA, the Environmental Action Force, decided to circulate petitions calling for opposition to the park district referendum unless it included money to aid in the public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course. Those petitions stopped circulating several days before the endorsement was made.

In response to the petitions' circulation and talks with PHIA members, the park board added an opinion question to its referendum which asks voters if they would want another referendum at a later date to raise funds to help pay for Rob Roy. The referendum does not include any money for the Euclid Avenue golf course, which is the subject of current apartment zoning requests in Mount Prospect.

WOLF SAID THE PHIA was "very pleased" with the addition of the Rob Roy opinion question to the referendum ballot.

"We recognize they cannot include a specific amount of money at this time," Wolf said. He referred to previous park board members' statements that they have no legal power over the golf course because it is outside of the district's boundaries. The park district has said it would be willing to work with other public bodies in a joint effort to buy the golf course, however.

Schools to spend more in new '73-'74 budget

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary School Dist. 50 budget for the 1974-75 school year sets spending at a level 5 per cent higher than the 1973-74 budget of $13.8 million.

Costs of raises for administrators, teachers and maintenance personnel, which have not been figured into the budget, are certain to send spending levels even higher.

The budget, submitted to the board of education for review, calls for a total of $14.3 million for the coming school year.

Although it's still not definite, the district's tax rate budget is expected to decrease, despite the hike in spending, due to increased population and higher assessed valuation in the district.

The tax rate for the district is tentatively estimated at $2.37 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a $2.40 rate last year. State funds allocated to the district for tax relief, will send the rate down an additional estimated three cents per $100 assessed valuation for a tax rate of $2.34.

TAX-RATE COMPUTATIONS are based on an estimated 1974 equalized assessed valuation of $477 million for the district.

The breakdown by funds of the tax rate includes $1.46 for the district's educational fund, 25 cents for the building fund, 48 cents for the bond and interest fund, 8 cents for the transportation fund, 5 cents for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and 5 cents for the working cash fund.

The largest chunk of the budget is the education fund which is allocated approximately $10 million, compared to $9.8 million budgeted last year. Actual educational fund spending for the 1973-74 year was slightly less than budgeted for, about $9.7 million, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, who is responsible for preparing the budget.

PERRY SAID the reason for the educational fund surplus was that $75,000 was budgeted for spending, based on the assumption that the district was going to receive that sum in parochial. Following a court decision, however, that money was never released and never spent.

The building fund, which covers maintenance and improvements at schools, as well as new construction, has been set tentatively at $1.3 million.

The building fund is slightly higher than last year's expenditure of about $1.1 million, but doesn't take into account raises for maintenance employees, which is expected to send that portion of the budget even higher.

WHILE NO ESTIMATE can be made until salary negotiations are completed with teachers and other district personnel, raises for next year are virtually certain to send the total budget to well over $15 million.

The budget is based on the assumption that enrollment in the district will decrease more than 850 next year, from this year's enrollment of 11,156 to 10,294. The decreased enrollment will also mean 11 fewer teachers will be employed next year, dropping from this year's total of 596 to 575.

The board is scheduled to discuss the budget at a committee meeting next Wednesday. The meeting, which will start at 6:30 p.m. will be held at the Dist. 50 administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Day-care centers to be weighed

Elk Grove Township officials will meet Tuesday night to hear presentations from various professional groups on possible ways to operate a proposed day-care center for preschool children from low-income families.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Monday the board of auditors will meet with representatives of different day-care centers to "try to clarify just what approaches there are and what the advantages and disadvantages are."

Hall said a citizen's group planning the day-care center was asked to be present at the meeting and denied that the group had been discontinued.

"As far as I'm concerned, the citizens' group is not disbanded," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor said plans for the center include formation of a not-for-profit organization by the citizens' group. He said the group would serve as the board of directors of the day-care facility with the township auditors acting as incorporators.

At the May 6 meeting of the township auditors, Hall said the township officials would act as the governing board of the day-care center and hire experts to run it. He said Wednesday that the township had always planned for the citizens' group to act as directors with a professional hired to run the day-to-day operation.

Hall said the township will be able to use revenue-sharing funds for operating the center. The budget calls for $30,000 to be spent on the facility.

Township officials met Monday night to revise federal revenue-sharing fund expenditures after Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the funds could not be spent by townships on some services. Hall said the township attorney advised him that the day-care center qualifies for the federal funds.

The township supervisor said he didn't expect any decision on the center at the Tuesday night meeting but that he hoped to begin operation of the facility by September.

"Whether it's possible or not is problematical," he said.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the township offices at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

May provide 100 units in village

Walsh supports low-income rent subsidy housing plan

by KURT BAER

A resolution that could provide up to 100 subsidized apartment units for low- and moderate-income families apparently has the political backing of Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh.

The resolution, now being drafted by the Arlington Heights Housing Commission for consideration by the village board, would make the village eligible to participate in a new federal rent-subsidy program.

Under the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's Section 23 leasing program, the maximum rents for new, as yet unbuilt apartments, are high enough to include even luxury apartment complexes.

SUBSIDIES FOR existing apartment units are much lower, probably too low to apply to the bulk of apartments in Arlington Heights.

"I tend to share the government's conclusion that, as a practical matter, to supply housing this route seems to me to get the job done with the least amount of time and impact," Walsh said.

"As long as we are consistent with the policy already established with respect to low- and moderate-income housing, I'd consider this largely a matter of implementation," he said.

Two years ago, the village board adopted as a goal the creation of 50 units of low- and 150 to 250 units of moderate-income housing. There currently are no such units in Arlington Heights.

"The policy only begins to accommodate, not satisfy, the need in our community," Walsh said.

Arlington Heights and Cook County Housing Authority officials are now in the midst of planning for 119 units of low-rent senior citizen housing.

While low- and moderate-income seniors presumably would be eligible for the Section 23 program, the 119-unit project is independent of the rent-subsidy program.

THE SECTION 23 guidelines set the maximum rents eligible for subsidy in existing apartment units as $137 for one-bedroom units, $161 for two-bedroom units, and $185 for three-bedroom units.

At these levels, most of the existing apartment units that would qualify for subsidy likely will be in older, smaller apartment buildings, rather than large complexes, Jack Pittas, chairman of the village housing commission, said at a meeting Tuesday night.

Two-flats, small numbers of apartments above stores, and rooming houses likely are places the commission will have to check into to determine eligibility. In some cases, persons already living in these units would be eligible for rent subsidy, Pittas said.

"As I understand it, there is a built-in dispersal in this program, in that what would be considered generally will be older pieces of property," Walsh said.

Maximum rents in new apartment units, that is apartment buildings not yet constructed, are higher, partly to take into account higher rents that will prevail generally in one or two years.

FOR EXAMPLE, a low- or moderate-income tenant would be eligible to rent a one-bedroom apartment in a new elevator building for up to $349 a month under the subsidy plan.

Maximum rent for a two-bedroom unit in a new elevator building is set at $434. A four bedroom house, renting for up to $516 a month, also could be included in the Section 23 program, according to the guidelines.

Under the Section 23 program, tenants pay about a quarter of their income toward rent, with the remainder paid by the federal government.

Personal income levels for the program have not yet been determined.

Walsh said he did not know how apartment building owners and managers in Arlington Heights might react to the Section 23 program. But he did note that participation in the program would be voluntary. "We're not going to impose this on any building owner," he said.

"If I owned a building and it wasn't being rented, Section 23 might be a good program economically. I don't know about socially," he said.

BEFORE THE VILLAGE can participate in the program, the housing commission's resolution must be passed by the village board and an agreement signed with the Cook County Housing Authority, or a local housing authority created for the purpose.

The housing authority then negotiates with the building owner for subsidies for up to 20 per cent of the building's units.

Walsh said he did not foresee an immediate need for a public hearing on the housing commission's resolution, which likely will be presented to the trustees at their June 17 meeting.

"My own inclination is that a hearing wouldn't be necessary or necessarily productive," he said, adding that if other members of the village want a public hearing on the resolution, one could be scheduled.

A MODERN SET, using ladders instead of traditional props, will be part of the Hersey High School production of Thornton Wilder's play "Our Town" this weekend. Paul Gonzalez, left, Philip Svaline and Diane Buteau will be among the performers in the play Friday and Saturday. Curtain time both nights will be 8 p.m.

Also Susan Kowalczyk, Sheri McWherter, Tracy Piper, Kelly Reagan, Lisa Schams, Heidi Schmidt, Laura Sheridan, Heidi Wiersma, Jennifer White and Peggy Wuerth.

To defray planning costs for center

Cultural commission to seek donations

The Arlington Heights Cultural Commission will make a mailing to 50 area persons and corporations asking for contributions of at least $1,000 to help fund the design and architect's fees for the proposed cultural center to be built south of the Memorial Library.

The commission has proposed a $3 million multi-use fine arts center. The site was purchased through village funds totaling $200,000. Funds for the construction of the center will be solicited from the public after the design is completed.

The commission hopes to raise about $20,000 to be coupled with $8,000 already contributed by the Arlington Heights Arts Council, an umbrella organization of local arts groups. The money will be used for architect's fees and a model for use in the later fund-raising drive.

DON M. HISAKA and Associates, of Cleveland, was selected as the architect for the center. The commission is now engaged in contractual discussions with Hisaka.

Hisaka has made a proposal calling for a $24,000 fee plus $3,000 for the center model. The commission hopes to persuade him to lower his initial fee with the proviso that the difference be made up with the funds raised later.

Persons receiving the letter of solicitation will also get a copy of George C. Izenour's study for the center Izenour, an internationally-known theatre consultant, suggested in a village-financed study that a multi-purpose center with an expanding seating capacity up to 1,800 be built. The expansion area, when not used for stage performances, could house lectures, displays and exhibitions.

Persons making the initial contributions will become members of the Founders' Circle. Members of the circle will be recognized with a permanent plaque in the center and special membership considerations once the center opens.

The first mailing will go to about 25 potential subscribers this Friday. Sidney Rosenfeld, commission chairman, said the letters will be followed up by personal visits from commission members.

A second mailing will follow in a week if necessary, Rosenfeld said.

Rosenfeld said contributions may also be made to the commission from those not on the mailing. He said contributions and inquiries could be handled through Darryl Kenning, assistant village manager and municipal liaison to the commission.

Schools to spend more in new '73-'74 budget

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary School Dist. 59 budget for the 1974-75 school year sets spending at a level 5 per cent higher than the 1973-74 budget of $13.8 million.

Costs of raises for administrators, teachers and maintenance personnel, which have not been figured into the budget, are certain to send spending levels even higher.

The budget, submitted to the board of education for review, calls for a total of $14.3 million for the coming school year.

Although it's still not definite, the district's tax rate budget is expected to decrease, despite the hike in spending, due to increased population and higher assessed valuation in the district.

The tax rate for the district is tentatively estimated at $2.37 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a $2.40 rate last year. State funds allocated to the district for tax relief, will send the rate down an additional estimated three cents per $100 assessed valuation for a tax rate of $2.34.

TAX-RATE COMPUTATIONS are based on an estimated 1974 equalized assessed valuation of $477 million for the district.

The breakdown by funds of the tax rate includes $1.46 for the district's educational fund, 25 cents for the building fund, 48 cents for the bond and interest fund, 8 cents for the transportation fund, 5 cents for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and 5 cents for the working cash fund.

The largest chunk of the budget is the educational fund which is allocated approximately $10 million, compared to $9.8 million budgeted last year. Actual educational fund spending for the 1973-74 year was slightly less than budgeted for, about $9.7 million, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, who is responsible for preparing the budget.

PERRY SAID the reason for the educational fund surplus was that $75,000 was budgeted for spending, based on the assumption that the district was going to receive that sum in parochial. Following a court decision, however, that money was never released and never spent.

The building fund, which covers maintenance and improvements at schools, as well as new construction, has been set tentatively at $1.3 million.

The building fund is slightly higher than last year's expenditure of about $1.1 million, but doesn't take into account raises for maintenance employees, which (Continued on Page 5)

Horse killed in crash

A horse was killed and an auto totally demolished after the animal and the car collided on Northwest Highway, 1/4-mile east of Quentin Road in Palatine Tuesday night. Burt J. Ising, 39, of Orchard Lake, Mich., told police he was driving west on Northwest Highway when he saw the horse in his lane heading east. According to police, the horse was flung on top of Ising's auto upon impact. Ising was uninjured in the accident. The horse belonged to Kurt Stier, 510 W. Baldwin Rd. The accident occurred at 9:12 p.m. Tuesday.

The park district plans to build a $1 million, 18-hole golf course on the site.

THE REMAINING 75 acres is the last section of the base. Its fate was clouded earlier this year when funding for the Nike-Hercules missile program was cut from the federal budget and the units stationed there "lost their mission."

The Army put forth plans in April to transfer five Reserve units from Chicago to the base. The units, with a total strength of 441 persons, would join two other Reserve units already stationed there.

The units being considered for the move are command personnel, security forces, informational and a military history detachment.

The park district is trying to block the transfer of the five units and met last month with Eugene Berg, Undersecretary of the Army, in Washington. Berg said a final decision on the move would be made by June. He said he would keep the park district and local legislators advised of the situation.

SPOKESMEN FOR U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said they have not heard from Berg and had been unable to confirm or track down the helicopter and war game reports.

Barry Goode, an aide to Stevenson, said the only troop movements during the June dates would be two elements of the Illinois National Guard going to Camp Atterbury, Ind., for two week maneuvers. He said the move to the Indiana base, 35 miles south of Indianapolis, would not involve the Arlington Heights base.

Tom McDonnell, of the Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base, a community organization seeking to open the base as public park land, said, "I haven't heard of it (the reported transfer of helicopters) I'm not too concerned."

Notice to Monday and Tuesday Customers

There will be no garbage service on Memorial Day. This is one of 6 holidays during the year on which, per our contract, no garbage service is provided, and no credit given. During the other 46 weeks, our men work the full 6 days.

We equalize these 6 holiday-service omissions among our three routes, so that each route averages two per year. Therefore, next week:

Monday routes will receive service on TUESDAY instead.

Tuesday/Friday customers, will not receive their usual Tuesday pick-up. Their next service after Friday, May 24 will be on FRIDAY, May 31.

Under our equalization system, these Tuesday/Friday customers will not receive another holiday-service omission until Thanksgiving.

We will appreciate your cooperation.

Elk Grove Twp. to weigh day-care plans

Elk Grove Township officials will meet Tuesday night to hear presentations from various professional groups on possible ways to operate a proposed day-care center for preschool children from low-income families.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Monday the board of auditors will meet with representatives of different day-care centers to "try to clarify just what approaches there are and what the advantages and disadvantages are."

Hall said a citizen's group planning the day-care center was asked to be present at the meeting and denied that the group had been discontinued.

"As far as I'm concerned, the citizens' group is not disbanded," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor said plans for the center include formation of a not-for-profit organization by the citizens' group. He said the group would serve as the board of directors of the day-care facility with the township auditors acting as incorporators.

At the May 6 meeting of the township auditors, Hall said the township officials would act as the governing board of the day-care center and hire experts to run it. He said Wednesday that the township had always planned for the citizens' group to act as directors with a professional hired to run the day-to-day operation.

Hall said the township will be able to use revenue-sharing funds for operating the center. The budget calls for $30,000 to be spent on the facility.

Township officials met Monday night to revise federal revenue-sharing fund expenditures after Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the funds could not be spent by townships on some services. Hall said the township attorney advised him that the day-care center qualifies for the federal funds.

The township supervisor said he didn't expect any decision on the center at the Tuesday night meeting but that he hoped to begin operation of the facility by September.

"Whether it's possible or not is problematical," he said.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the township offices at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

PHIA endorses park district referendum

by TOM VON MALDER

The June 4 $1.1 million Prospect Heights Park District referendum is endorsed by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

"On the over-all balance, we felt it was a good proposal," said PHIA member Richard Wolf of the referendum proposal. He added that some PHIA members disagreed on some of the individual proposed park improvements.

The PHIA's endorsement came after members of the group attended Tuesday night's park district information meeting on the referendum. Primarily, the referendum, which would cost an estimated $18 a year for 16 years for each $10,800 assessed valuation, will provide funds to renovate the Lions Park pool, build an adjacent community center/sports complex and make other park improvements throughout the park district.

WOLF SAID THE park district's plans "show good foresight for the future of our area" and will benefit the whole community and "not just a few individuals." He said that strong community interest has been shown in the additional Little League baseball fields, tennis courts and new handball courts.

The PHIA support might also mean helping out the park district with informational coffees.

Several weeks ago a committee of the PHIA, the Environmental Action Force, decided to circulate petitions calling for opposition to the park district referendum unless it included money to aid in the public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course. Those petitions stopped circulating several days before the endorsement was made.

In response to the petitions' circulation and talks with PHIA members, the park board added an opinion question to its referendum which asks voters if they would want another referendum at a later date to raise funds to help pay for Rob Roy. The referendum does not include any money for the Euclid Avenue golf course, which is the subject of current apartment zoning requests in Mount Prospect.

WOLF SAID THE PHIA was "very pleased" with the addition of the Rob Roy opinion question to the referendum ballot.

"We recognize they cannot include a specific amount of money at this time," Wolf said. He referred to previous park board members' statements that they have no legal power over the golf course because it is outside of the district's boundaries. The park district has said it

Hearing to set vote date continued

The hearing to establish an election date for a referendum on Prospect Heights' incorporation was continued Wednesday until June 6. Attorneys for and against incorporation met in a lengthy afternoon session in the judge's chambers in an apparent attempt to begin negotiations that could lead to a resolution without further court testimony.

The June 6 date apparently was set to inform Cook County Circuit Judge Harry G. Comerford of the progress of the negotiations. Neither Donald Kreger, attorney for the incorporation-sponsoring Prospect Heights Improvement Association, nor Jack Siegel, attorney for objecting Arlington Heights, could be reached for comment after the meeting in the judge's chambers.

SIEGEL TUESDAY made a motion to have Kreger's demographer's testimony thrown out in total. He also has said he will object to the election-requesting petitions. As one of his written objections, Siegel has questioned the constitutionality of the state law, passed last year, under which Prospect Heights is attempting to incorporate.

Any or all three of Siegel's objections could force the PHIA to submit a new petition requesting an incorporation election.

In court Wednesday morning, Christina Carlson and Jack Gilligan, both of the PHIA, testified on the collection of the petition signatures. In addition, Gilligan testified that he checked the petition signatories against the registered voters lists and found only two of 316 signatories not to be on the voting lists. The law requires a minimum of 200 signatures.

Other park district plans for the referendum money include 10 lighted tennis courts, lights for the Lions Park baseball field, development of park sites at Eisenhower and Muir schools and a $70,000 fund for land acquisition. The proposed sports complex would include a gym, two handball courts, sauna, exercise room, two craft rooms and three meeting rooms.
